Installation Set By Garden Club In Rogue River

Rogue River — Rogue River Garden club will hold installation of officers at a meeting set for Tuesday, June 18, at the home of Mrs. F. M. Shontz, Highway 99. Dessert will be served at 1 p.m. with the installation to follow.

The club holds the 10th annual flower show, June 5-6, at the VFW hall, the show theme being "Flowers in Swing Time." Due to unseasonable weather, the flowers were not as choice as for past shows, and the club was also disappointed because the show drew small audiences. Since members spent much time, effort and money on the event, it is said, it is considered doubtful if any show will be held in the future.

Mrs. Carl Christensen, club president, has extended her thanks to all members and others who aided the project. Sweepstakes ribbons were awarded to Clarence Stiehl for his magnolia display, to Mrs. Mauchlin for an arrangement of white roses and to Frances Palmer for an arrangement entered in the junior division.

A blue ribbon went to the Girl Scouts for an entry "Flowers in Swing Time." It was made by Kathleen Clastick and other scouts.

Plan Picnic

Ruth Esther unit of Wesleyan Service guild has planned the annual picnic for Monday, June 17, at 8:30 p.m. in Hawthorne park, south of Main street. Those attending are to take table service.

Where Angels Fear To Tread

"Bob is out of work again," sighs Betty. "He got angry about something in the office—and told off the boss. He lost his job because he lost his head."

Angela rushes in—to family arguments, office disagreements, business quarrels—where angels fear to tread. She rather enjoys being considered a breezy, impetuous character—but she has earned the reputation of being undependable, "card" at a party, but not a friend-to-be-trusted.

Impetuosity is often a sign of emotional instability and immaturity. In small amounts and at the right times and places, it spices up life in a delightful way. In excess, it may lead to ruin in profession and in marriage.

The impetuous lover is a washbuckling figure, famous in song and story, a hero of the air waves, an idol of television and movie screen. He dashes into any place, and time, and by sheer bravado works his will. He wouldn't be afraid of an unreasonable boss. He wouldn't be reluctant about anything or anyone he wanted—law, order, and Mrs. Grundy be hanged—But he'd be a dud in a real marriage.

Reality has little place for such heroes, who belong rightfully to young and immature fantasy. Marriage, based upon impetuosity, is bound for trouble. Marriage demands maturity, stability, and an acceptance of reality in a working world.

Bob must learn to act not upon impulse but with deliberation, if he is to maintain a stable job and marriage. He must think first and act afterwards, to guarantee security for himself and family.

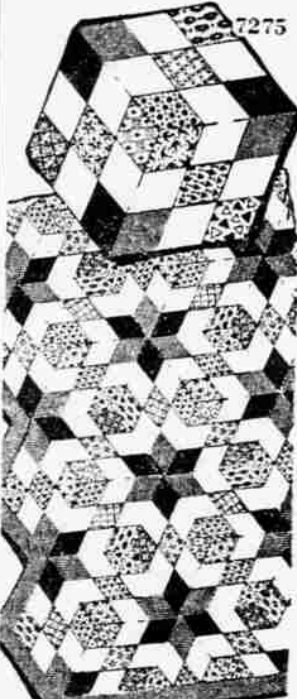

Angela must learn to weigh her impulses before she rushes into uncertain situations. As a wife she must consider not only her own welfare but also that of her family—and of her community.

The husband-lover who considers his wife's happiness and satisfaction, and the wife-lover who tries above all to please her partner—these are the people who will have that most prized of possessions—a successful marriage.

To Meet

Colonel Sargent camp, United Spanish War Veterans and auxiliary will meet Sunday, June 16, at 1 p.m. at Redman hall for a potluck dinner. This will be the last meeting of the two groups before the annual summer recess.
