Honeydew Found

If honeydew is found in orchards it means pear psylla are present. Growers should examine leaves in the tops and centers of trees to determine whether or not there are live psylla. If live psylla are found, spraying is necessary. He emphasized importance of driving the spray rig slowly (about 1 1/2 miles per hour), spraying when there is not wind and repeating the operations if the psylla remain after the first spray application.

Greater Than Average Infestation of Pear Psylla Reported Here

There is a greater than average infestation of pear psylla in Jackson county this year, according to C. B. Cordy, county horticulture agent.

Pear psylla are insects which suck juices from leaves of pear trees and secrete a fluid called honeydew. If honeydew drops on the fruit, marking of pears results.

To control the insects, Cordy said a more thorough job of spraying is required than has been done this year. He noted that the recommended spray program of parathion, malathion and EPN is effective if spraying is thorough, especially on the insides and tops of trees. Increased dosages of the spray material will not result in better control, he pointed out, since control depends on thorough coverages.

Eisenhower Let Cat Out of Bag on Plan For Disarmament

London—The President's press conference when he spoke at the London disarmament conference Thursday. He quoted Eisenhower's statement that the latest Soviet disarmament proposal, which included a call for immediate suspension of nuclear tests, are a hopeful sign.

Stassen added the United States is now ready to include some controls on nuclear tests in a "first step" disarmament agreement. But he did not indicate whether he had suspension in mind.

Switch in Policy Seen

Authoritative circles here believed there has been a switch in the basic U.S. policy on suspension of nuclear tests but that Eisenhower had revealed it prematurely. It would be premature because Western consultations on disarmament policy here still had not cleared up their differences.

The conference was adjourned after Thursday's session to permit French delegate Jules Moch to return to Paris on government business.

The talks resume Tuesday and Stassen requested sessions be held daily to permit him to present the new U.S. disarmament plan.
