Classes Continue All Year for Employees Of Pacific Telephone

School is out for Oregon's 377,000 elementary and high school students, but for the craftsmen and women of Pacific Telephone's plant department in Oregon, classes will go on through the summer months.

At the new centralized training center in Portland, telephone employees learn to construct, install, operate, maintain and repair equipment.

Known as the Plant Training school the year-around technical institute has as its motto, "Learn by Doing."

Students From State
Students from more than 20 Oregon communities, in addition to those from the metropolitan Portland area, have attended the school so far this year.

Medford employees who have attended the school to date, according to Manager Jack Creager, include J. M. Richardson, S. C. Horton, H. H. Halverson, T. E. Haime, H. R. Parrott Jr., J. A. Strobel, W. W. Williams, M. D. Walker, E. D. DeLisle, B. B. Bigham, W. E. Morrison, J. Messer and J. Branan.

In the first five months of 1957 more than 56,000 hours of training were recorded. C. B. Scott, plant training supervisor, estimated that close to 150,000 hours of training will be completed by the end of the year.

Classes are taught by training foremen selected for their technical knowledge and teaching ability. Instruction ranges in length from several days to more than 25 weeks.

Both new and experienced employees are trained at the school. Rapid advances in the field of communications make the demand for specialists greater every day.

Courses are taught in operation and maintenance of local and long distance switching equipment, teletypewriter, telephoto, complex telephone systems for business and industry, FCC radio requirements, microwave radio for television and telephone use, local and long distance equipment testing, splicing, construction and maintenance of cable and other "outside plant," mathematics, electrical theory, electronics, drafting and many other subjects.

4-H Club News

Antelope 4-H Livestock Club
The Antelope 4-H Livestock club held a meeting June 21 at Hubbard's home. Preceding the business meeting, club members judged two classes of dairy cows for practice.

During the business meeting Nyla Murray, Karen Jossy, Larry Meyer and Linda Malloroy reported on their experiences at 4-H summer school. Dorothy Malloroy and Cora Anderson were appointed to obtain new cups with which to serve refreshments to the club. Members desiring to attend 4-H summer camp July 13-20, were recorded. A scholarship from Brainerd's Studio will be available.

The next meeting will be on July 12 at Garoener's. The re-estimation committee appointed is Pruitts, Coxes, and Malloroy. Unless members are otherwise notified, steers will be weighed June 29. The business meeting was adjourned and refreshments served.
