Measure To Inspection of FBI Files Approved

Senate Committee Vote Unanimous

Washington—The Senate Judiciary committee approved quickly and unanimously today a bill to limit the right of criminal defendants to inspect FBI files. The measure, rushed to the Senate for possible passage this week, grew out of the recent Supreme Court decision that the government in certain criminal cases must make available to defendants FBI reports supplied by informers whom the government calls as witnesses against them. Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. said the bill was necessary to prevent wrecking law enforcement by too strict interpretation of the ruling. It would let federal judges examine FBI files and submit to defendants only such material as is relevant to a particular case. If the government balked at producing the files, the judge could strike out the witnesses' testimony or declare a mistrial. The House Judiciary committee was scheduled to act on a similar bill Tuesday. Quick Action Planned Senate leaders planned to act quickly on the FBI bill and a number of other "must" items this week to clear the way for the lengthy and bitter battle expected over President Eisenhower's civil rights program. GOP leaders, supported by some northern Democrats, will propose some time next week that the civil rights issue be put to a vote. Southerners are expected to start an immediate filibuster that could last anywhere from 10 days to a month or more.

OTI Survey Contract Given

Salem—A $9,000 contract has been awarded to Stevens and Thompson, Portland consulting engineers, to make a comprehensive survey of Oregon Technical Institute at Klamath Falls to determine if rehabilitating the school is feasible. The contract calls for a final report by the end of the year, according to John Richardson, director of the Finance Department. Oregon Technical Institute was created after World War II and is on the site of a former military base. Buildings are mostly converted barracks which were built as temporary barracks. The Joint Ways and Means Committee of the past two legislative sessions has questioned feasibility of renovating the buildings. A request for money to improve the plant was turned down and the Finance Department was told to make a study of school facilities. The engineering and architectural firm of Portland will determine the useful life of the buildings and estimate cost of making them suitable for permanent use.

state Water Board Opposed To Flood Control Bill Now

The Oregon state water resources board went on record in Medford this morning opposing the introduction at this time of any legislation effecting the Rogue river basin. The board met in the courthouse auditorium at 10 a.m. today. Present were the seven regular members plus L. A. Stanley, state engineer, E. J. Watson, chief engineer, and Quentin Bowman, field representative. Porter's Bill The board's move opposing legislation affecting the Rogue basin was prompted by a bill which Congressman Charles O. Porter has drafted and intends to introduce in congress. The bill would authorize several flood control projects in the basin, including a high dam at Lewis creek. The board wants to discourage such a move until its study of the Rogue basin, and the survey of the basin now being done by the Army Corps of Engineers are finished. The board was directed by the last state legislature to make a study and prepare a water use program for the basin for the 1959 legislature. Jess Speaks William L. Jess, Eagle Point, chairman of the Rogue River Basin Flood Control and Water Resource association was present in the audience and told the board Porter planned to introduce his bill but "not press for passage." The association, Jess said, tried to dissuade Porter at meetings in Grants Pass and Medford earlier this year. Robert Root, Medford, made the motion that the board oppose basin legislation. An audience of about 25 watched the two-hour proceedings. Included on the agenda were a report on a meeting of the Columbia River Compact commission in Spokane, Wash., June 20 and 21, and a report of the program committee regarding the staff draft of the Umpqua Basin program report. Changes Needed Root said the staff working on the Umpqua basin turned in a preliminary report to the program committee, but that changes were needed. He said another report would be made later. Dr. Vincent A. Ostrom, instructor of political science at the University of Oregon, was introduced as a new board member. Ostrom was later elected vice-chairman. He was appointed by Gov. Robert Holmes to fill the unexpired term of the late H. E. Maxey. The meeting was adjourned with the time and place of the next meeting left to the discretion of the chairman. Board members present included Fred Merryfield, Corvallis; Robert H. Foley, Bend; John Davis, Stayton; Vincent Ostrom, Eugene; Wayne Phillips, Baker; Robert Root, Medford, and chairman L. C. Binford, Portland.

Senate Completes Action on Money To Run Interior

Washington—The Senate today completed congressional action on a compromise bill providing $456,189,600 to run the Interior Department and related agencies for the coming year. The bill was sent to the White House for President Eisenhower's signature. The House approved the bill Friday. Senate passage was by voice vote after Chairman Carl Hayden (D-N.Mex.), of the Senate Appropriations committee assured Sens. John A. Carroll (D-Colo.) and Gordon Allott (R-Colo.) that nothing in the conference committee agreement directed the dismantlement of the oil shale demonstration plant at Rifle, Colo. The compromise figure in the bill represents a 8 1/2% of almost 11.5 per cent from the $515,189,700 originally asked by Eisenhower. The Senate earlier had voted $457,152,600, compared with $454,397,700 approved by the House. Included in the bill was $6,700,000 to continue purchases of asbestos and fluorspar for the government stockpiling program temporarily settling a stalemate between the two houses over the minerals purchase program.

Four Stranded on Mt. Adams Located By Search Parties

Goldendale, Wash.—Four men, stranded overnight near the 10,000-foot level of towering Mt. Adams in Southwest Washington, were located by rescuers early today, the sheriff's office here reported. Sheriff Ed Kaiser of Klickitat county reported to his office here that two of the men were on their own power and that two others were being helped by a search party. Apparently none had been injured. The sheriff's office said that Dave Bishop, 22, Toppensish, Wash., and Mike McGuire, 20, Yakima, Wash., had become exhausted and spent the night on a ledge. A group of searchers from Yakima located them at the 9,500 foot level. The other two, Dr. Ralph Uber, 40, and Robert Swenson, 33, both of Yakima, were located by searchers and were on their way out by themselves, the sheriff's office said. Mt. Adams towers 12,307 feet in the Cascade range and is located about 40 miles north of here and 55 miles southwest of Yakima. It was feared at first that one or more of the men had been injured seriously, but reports from the sheriff's office here indicated that apparently no one had been hurt although Bishop and McGuire were reported exhausted. Temperatures on the mountain ranged near the 20-degree level Sunday night. The men had been reported stranded on a treacherous ice wall last night and rescue teams from Seattle, Yakima, Ellensburg, Longview and Hood River, Ore., rushed to the desolate area. Their plight was reported by George Gans, a Yakima climber, who said the four had not moved from their position for several hours Sunday.

Violence Answer To Government's 'Peace Rally'

Havana—Reports of gun battles, sabotage, widespread combings and dozens of arrests reached Havana today from throughout the nation—the rebels' answer to the government's huge "peace rally" Sunday at Santiago. Five persons were killed and three injured in a gunfight on the outskirts of Santiago which broke out while government orators were calling on the populace to abandon violence as a political weapon. The fight was between soldiers in a jeep and car thieves who opened fire. Police Give Chase Two soldiers were killed and a third wounded when the unidentified civilians opened fire. Other police gave chase and killed three of the men in the car. Two bystanders were wounded, one of them a seven-year-old boy. The three-hour political rally itself was marred by occasional attempts to jam the radio transmission of the speeches. Occasionally there could be heard faint cries for rebel leader Fidel Castro and shouts of "Down with President Fulgencia Batista." Saboteurs cut cables in Havana and other cities, blacking out the street lights and homes. Arsonists set fires throughout Cuba. In Camaguey young rebels seized a radio station and read a proclamation calling on the people to join the 26th of July insurrectional movement. Dozens of persons were reported arrested. Batista described the Santiago meetings as a "call to peace and understanding" and said the large turnout was a formidable lesson in democracy to "those who wished and tried to damage our economy, hurt business, impede improvement in the standard of living and retard the progress of the nation."

Coexistence Best For Peace, Tito Says

New York—Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia told a U.S. television audience Sunday that active coexistence is the best solution to world peace. "I think the best solution is coexistence. Not a passive coexistence but one in which we should strive to solve peacefully by way of negotiations, and agreement all problems which could arise," Tito said. Filmed Interview The 65 year-old Yugoslav President, who broke with the Kremlin in 1948 to establish his own brand of nationalist Communism, expressed his views in a filmed interview conducted by commentator Edward R. Murrow. The interview was broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System on "See It Now." Tito said he believed the world's leaders have concluded that international problems can be settled by negotiation. "If all those responsible for international affairs agree to the practice of solving international problems peacefully by negotiations and agreement, then there is no reason for an armistices race," he said. Disagrees With Khrushchev During the hour-long interview, Tito widened his breach with the Kremlin by disagreeing with an opinion expressed by Soviet boss Nikita S. Khrushchev several weeks ago during a filmed interview also telecast by CBS. Khrushchev had predicted that America would turn Communist in two generations. Tito, asked for his opinion, smiled and said he didn't quite see it that way. "I wouldn't say so categorically that your grandsons would live in socialism because it is up to the American people to decide what system of society it will develop and what system it would prefer," he said. Two-Rule Closure Ruling in Effect The Governor's two-rule closure proclamation covering all national forest land within the Rogue River National forest goes into effect today. This proclamation requires the public to refrain from smoking while traveling and to have axe, shovel and water bucket when using campfires, except when traveling as a pedestrian or camping at improved, designated and posted campgrounds. The reminder was issued by the Rogue River National forest.
