

Portland Places 2 On North All Star Team

Los Angeles — Most of the top talent in the Pacific Coast league takes the field tonight in the annual North-South All-Star Game at Wrigley field.

The South holds a firm upper hand in the rivalry series. In nine previous All-Star games, the southerners have won seven.

However, tonight the South will be minus two of its batting stars, Steve Bilko and Jim Baxes, both of Los Angeles. Both originally were named by fans to start in the game but since have been sidelined with injuries.

Charlie Metro of Vancouver is managing the northern team while Clay Bryant of Los Angeles is the pilot of the southerners. Metro named Morrie Martin (7-2) of Vancouver to start for the North while the South will rely on Hollywood mound ace Bennie Daniels (10-2).

The last North-South game was held in 1950. In the past two seasons the previous year's pennant winner met an All-Star team from the rest of the league.

Beavers Split Pair With Vancouver Club

By UNITED PRESS

It was Dominion Day Monday in Canada and Vancouver's Mounties planned to celebrate it by winning a pair of Pacific Coast league games from Portland and thus sneak within a game of the idle San Francisco Seals, who lead the league.

But Portland spoiled the holiday for the hosts and kept them two full games out of first place by splitting a pair with the Canadians at Capilano Stadium.

The Beavers grabbed the opener, 7-6, then bowed to the Mounties in the nightcap, 3-2.

Bad Day

It was a bad day all around for the 7,404 fans who turned out in a holiday mood and undoubtedly went home a bit gloomy.

The first game was delayed for 90 minutes to allow the field to dry from morning rains. Then in an abbreviated seven innings, the Beavers won the lifeline.

Portland moved to a commanding 7-3 lead, sparked by a two-run single by Ed Wincemak in the third, but the lead almost vanished in the seventh when the Mounties scored three times.

Bob Thorpe, third Beave-pitcher, came on in the final frame to save the win for Ray Bauer, who now has a 3-2 rec-

Odds Favor Martinez in Friday Bout

New York — Featherweight Isidro Martinez of Panama is favored at 8-5 to beat Davey Moore of Springfield, O., Friday night at Washington, D. C. in what shapes up as the best fight on the light holiday-week boxing schedule.

The 10-rounder will be televised nationally by ABC.

Eddie Erautt went the route for third win against five losses. The loser was Dick Marlowe, 1-3, who went the route and gave up only four hits.

It will be a return bout, Martinez outpointed Moore in Panama in 1955. But Moore improved much since then. Martinez, unbeaten in his last eight bouts, was rated among the contenders after licking Ike Chestnut and Bobby Courchesne. But he dropped out of the top ten because of inactivity caused by a virus infection. He hasn't fought since Feb. 8. Moore is rated 10th.

Ortega Picked

Gasper Ortega of Mexico, second ranking welterweight contender, is favored at 3-1 over Larry Baker of Indianapolis for their TV-radio NBC 10-rounder at the Miami Beach Auditorium Wednesday night. Baker is unranked. He had but one bout this year and two in 1955.

Without benefit of TV, middleweight contender Joey Giardello of Philadelphia engages unranked Joey Gray of Dearborn, Mich., at Detroit Tuesday night. Giardello is favored at 3-1.

The week's boxing schedule includes:

Tuesday — Detroit — Joey Giardello vs. Joey Gray; Richmond, Calif. — Bob Butcher vs. Andy Domebo; Stockton, Calif. — Tommy Romulo vs. Teddy Hall.

Wednesday — Miami Beach — Gasper Ortega vs. Larry Baker.

Thursday — Los Angeles — Sonny Hett vs. Artie Dixon.

Friday — Washington — Isidro Martinez vs. Davey Moore.

New York — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick said today that the method of selecting the All-Star teams would be discussed at the major league winter meetings as result of the Cincinnati ballot box stuffing and it seems obvious that there are at least two better systems.

The fan pays the baseball freight and it would be ideal if he could fairly select the All-Star team. But the way they did it in Cincinnati made old Tammany Hall look like a bunch of amateurs and proved that as of the moment it's a complete farce.

Frick admits that something will have to be done to "tighten it up"—and there are two good ways to come up with better teams.

Let Big Leaguers Do It

The first would be to let the managers choose the All-Star teams but without selecting any of their own team members.

Another method which would be fair and equitable would be to allow each major leaguer to pick an All-Star team — again without being allowed to name anyone from his own team.

At any rate, the Cincinnati landslide proved that the current system is ludicrous. Disproportionate voting would have placed Redlegs in seven of the eight fielding positions.

There were 500,000 votes from Cincinnati alone in the last week. Of these, 481,882 were for Don Hoak—and you must remember that last year's top choice, Dale Long of the Pirates, won with only 179,744 votes. So Frick stepped in and knocked off three of the Redlegs, putting Stan Musial, Willie Mays and Hank Aaron in the lineup. You can't argue with the fact that they belong in the lineup.

But, if you were a Cincinnati voter, you could argue over whether Frick has a right to do what he did. Ballots are ballots and every other city had the same privilege of unlimited voting.

Points Up Farce

Yet it points up the farcial nature of the fan balloting. Any newspaper or radio station can conduct balloting by applying to the commissioner. Some count the votes religiously. It's no secret that others, buried under an avalanche of ballots, take a sample, weigh the rest and multiply the sample by the poundage involved.

Warren Giles, the National League president, has suggested that each city be given an equal number of official ballots. This would shut out some of the voters and doesn't seem fair, either.

So the thought here is to put it in the hands of those who really have the inside info on who the real All-Stars are, anyhow — the managers or the players.

Eisenhower Back At White House

Washington — President Eisenhower returned here Monday night from a four-day week end at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm to celebrate his 41st wedding anniversary.

The President plans to remain at the White House throughout the week despite the Fourth of July holiday. He will return to Gettysburg next week end.

Mrs. Eisenhower remained at the farm when the Chief Executive returned to the White House Monday night.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerly said Eisenhower has a new experience ahead of him—testing out the new White House helicopters. Hagerly said sometime between July 12 and 19 Eisenhower will take off from the south lawn of the White House and fly to a secret relocation center as part of the civil defense exercise "Operation Alert 1957."
