Ex-U.S. Army Intelligence Officer, Wife Cited as Spies

New York — A former Army intelligence officer and his San Francisco-born wife were indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges they have given U. S. military secrets to an international Russian spy ring since 1940.

The couple, now living in Paris, were identified as George Zlatovsk, 47, a Russian-born former resident of Duluth, Minn., and his wife, Jane Foster Zlatovsk, 45, daughter of Dr. Harry Emerson Foster of San Francisco. She was a wartime employee of the super-secret Office of Strategic Services.

They are charged with participating in the same spy ring as Jack and Myra Sobel and Jacob Albam, who have pleaded guilty to espionage and are now awaiting sentence.

The ring was believed broken in part through the work of Boris Morros, noted Hollywood film music director. One of the 33 overt acts with which the Zlatovskis are charged was their giving to Morros, in Vienna, in June, 1951, several sheets of paper headed by their alleged code names, "Rector" and "Slang."

Served in Army U. S. Attorney Paul W. Williams refused to disclose more of Morros' role but told newsmen the former top priced music maker is "a loyal American citizen who has been working for the government."

The Zlatovskis are charged with conspiring with the Sobels and Albam to pass to Russia information on U. S. counter-espionage and military secrets.

Zlatovsk was in the U. S. Army from 1943 to 1948, and was serving as a lieutenant in intelligence when he left the service.

Williams said the French government is being asked to return the couple to the United States for trial. He said, however, that French law views espionage as a political rather than a criminal offense and that extradition laws may not apply.

The couple was said to have been married in Washington in 1943 and again in New York in 1945. The government had no explanation of the two ceremonies. Mrs. Zlatovsk was said to have been married previously to a Dutch resident of the Netherlands East Indies, where she had served in the OSS.

Meeting in Moscow The 35 overt acts of the indictment begin with an alleged meeting between Sobel, the confessed spy, and the late Russian Chief of Secret Police Lavrenti P. Beria in Moscow in 1940.

They first note the activity of Morros in 1945 when he was allegedly summoned to New York from Hollywood by a member of the spy ring.

The indictment charges that Mrs. Zlatovsk met with Sobel in New York in December, 1945 and gave him information on Indonesia based on her OSS work there.

It charges that in October, 1947, when Zlatovsk was an officer of the Army and Mrs. Zlatovsk a U. S. government employee, they met in Vienna with a Russian intelligence officer. The following March, the indictment charges, Mrs. Zlatovsk went to Paris to give further information on U. S. defenses to a Russian agent.

Continued determination as expressed in your July 26 news conference to negotiate a first step disarmament agreement with the Soviet Union and the other major powers.

"An agreement to end nuclear weapons tests offers one of the most promising areas of negotiation, since inspection is relatively simple," he said.

"Such an agreement should cover all nuclear weapons tests which can be detected by a United Nations monitoring agency. We urge you to support a sound, forthright U.S. proposal, without unnecessary conditions, as the first step in all the major powers can take to their mutual advantage."

Vagueness Criticized At the same time, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) criticized Eisenhower for showing "some vagueness" about atomic bomb tests. He said differences of opinion within the administration have added to the problems of U.S. negotiators at the London conference.

It suggests that "the United States is not firmly behind an effective program of nuclear limitations," he said.

Kennedy said the President's vagueness hinged on two alternatives—whether to continue nuclear tests to develop a clean bomb or to go ahead with original U.S. proposals to halt such tests for nearly a year, a plan now being discussed in London.

The telegram to the President was sent Sunday by a group headed by Norman Thomas, many times Socialist candidate for president; Charles C. Price, former chairman of the Federation of American Scientists; Robert Nathan, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, and E. Raymond Wilson, executive secretary of the Friends Committee on National Legislation.

They told Eisenhower they were "happy to learn of your continued determination as expressed in your July 26 news conference to negotiate a first step disarmament agreement with the Soviet Union and the other major powers."

83 Leaders Appeal To President To Seek Ban on Atomic Tests

Washington — Eighty-three leaders in various walks of life have appealed to President Eisenhower to seek a ban on atomic weapons tests.

The group, including scientists, educators and religious leaders, praised the President in a telegram for his "continued determination" to negotiate a first step disarmament agreement talks in London "have aroused great hopes throughout the world."

At the same time, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) criticized Eisenhower for showing "some vagueness" about atomic bomb tests. He said differences of opinion within the administration have added to the problems of U.S. negotiators at the London conference.

Czech Communists Meet To Hear Story Of Molotov Removal

Prague, Czechoslovakia — Czech Communists met throughout the country this week end to hear the story of the Molotov affair before the arrival of Soviet party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev and premier Nikolai Bulganin.

The visit is a critically timed one, just five days after the Soviet party Central Committee announced ouster of the "anti-party group" and obliterated from public Soviet life its three leaders — Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Lazar Kaganovich and Georgi Malenkov.

This same campaign of obliteration is now taking place in Czechoslovakia, and Communists met in farms and factories to discuss and move Rude Pravo, the Czech Communist organ, reported 911 separate meetings in one province.

The Soviet leaders originally were scheduled to arrive in Prague on July 2, but apparently postponed their visit a week because of the Moscow political situation. In the meantime the Czech press reported great enthusiasm of the people of this country for the visit.

Rude Pravo said factory workers pledged themselves to greater efforts of production in honor of Bulganin and Khrushchev.

Determines Solidarity In an editorial it said, "The Soviet leaders are coming to us as comrades, as collaborators, as representatives of millions of Soviet people. Their visit will again confirm that our country and our people will stand determinedly with the Soviet Union."

It was noted that one of the charges against the deposed Soviet leaders was that they opposed trips by Soviet leaders abroad and frequent trips to the Soviet Union of foreign dignitaries both from the West and the East.

Under Josef Stalin, high Soviet leaders almost never went abroad.
