

Klamath, Medford Legion Clubs Clash

Medford's first evening doubleheader of the baseball season is scheduled today.

Klamath Falls comes here for a pair of contests with the American Legion junior aggregation. First battle is set for 6:30 p.m. at the fairgrounds diamond.

The games will be subdistrict scuffles. Medford will be out to cinch the crown for this area. The locals need to win both to gain their objective if it is to be accomplished tonight. Teams in the subdistrict are playing eight games. Medford has a 4-0 record, Klamath .2-2 and Lakeview 0-4.

The Medfordites whipped Klamath in a June doubleheader by a close 6 to 4 and by a more substantial 11 to 2.

Good Crowd Desired
Klamath Falls draws its players from the high schools of the Klamath county area. Medford and Crater high baseballers make up the roster of the local Legion team.

Team officials are hoping for a sizable turnout of fans, pointing out that the support is needed if the club is to continue in action after completion of the subdistrict season.

Tonight's games will be the first in the subdistrict in more than two weeks for Medford and will mark the second time that the club has performed at home.

68s Fired By Old Pros In Canadian

Kitchener, Ont. — The tricky, rolling Westmount golf course was causing loud means today among the touring pros in the 48th Canadian Open, but Ed (Porky) Oliver and Henry Ranson weren't complaining.

The two "old pros," who between them have been playing professionally for 45 years, showed the young guard how it was done during the first round of the $25,000 Canadian Open Wednesday, posting identical scores of 32-36—68 to assume a one-shot lead.

By pressing the 40-year-old Oliver and the 46-year-old Ranson was a flight of 14 other par-breakers. Mike Souchak, Grosingers, N.Y., Mike Fetcheck, Mahopac, N.Y., Don Fairfield, Casey, Ill., and Masters champion Doug Ford, Mahopac, N.Y., were all one shot back.

Major League Attendance Increases 2.2 Per Cent; Nine Clubs Show Boost

By JOHN GRIFFIN
New York — Despite the confusing babble about franchise shifts and all that palaver in Congress about baseball's antitrust troubles, attendance at major league baseball has increased 2.2 per cent this season, a United Press survey disclosed.

Nine of the 16 big league clubs led by the World Champion New York Yankees, report a boost in turnstile business. Seven others have suffered losses, with the Chicago White Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates in the biggest slump.

The survey showed that 8,703,448 fans had attended major league games up to the three-day All-Star game break—traditional holiday milestone in the season. This compared with 8,512,611 for the same number of home dates last year, a boost of 190,837.

Chicago — Bob Satterfield quietly sat in a darkened corner of his modest South Side apartment and said all he wants is to be a champion.

"I've reformed. Honest, I have," he pleaded. "No more playing around for me. Boxing is the only business I know, and that's what I'm treating it like now: a business."

Satterfield said he'd fight anyone in either the light-heavy or heavyweight divisions.

"All I want is to be champ. I don't care which champ," he said.

But the only trouble, Satterfield said, is that no one will fight him.

"Why not, mister?" he asked. "Why won't they just let me come back once more? I'm only 34."

Only Close
Three times Satterfield has come within a hair's breadth of a title fight. He's been within an official announcement of an opportunity to prove himself, three times he's been shoved aside.

In 1931 Satterfield was slated to meet light heavyweight champ Joey Maxim in Chicago. But the battle was switched to New York at the last minute and Maxim fought, and beat, Bob Murphy.

Then it was 1934 and Satterfield was guaranteed $30,000 if he'd take on light heavy champ Archie Moore in Miami. But first, Satterfield wanted one final "soft one," so they booked him against Marty Marshall.

Out In Second
Marshall knocked Satterfield out in the second round.

Later the IBC promised him a shot at Rocky Marciano and the heavyweight title. While waiting for the match, Satterfield and Manager Ike Bernstein figured they'd pick up some easy money by taking on Johnny Holman. Satterfield had met Holman twice before.

Once he knocked him out in the tenth round. The other time he finished him in the first round. This time Holman knocked Satterfield out in the eighth round.

Camp Whitters Trip Ashland-Talent 6-0, Entertain GP Friday

Ricker Field, Camp White — Camp White, with Ned Landers twirling two-hit ball, downed Ashland-Talent 6 to 0 here last night to create a three-way knot for fourth place in the Rogue Valley Baseball league.

The Camp White nine, Talent and Butte Falls all have 2-4 records in the loop.

Non-league competition is next for the Veterans Administration domiciliary-sponsored team. It meets Grants Pass here Friday night with play ball planned for 8 p.m. Talent and Camp White tussle again in league contention this Sunday afternoon at Ashland.

Landers Whiffs Eight
Landers whiffed eight batters and walked just two last night in the RVL victory. His mound foe, Mark Fitch was tapped for eight hits. He gave seven bases on balls, hit two batters and struck out five.

Dick Wooton and John Eggink were the leading VAD hitters with two safeties each.

Singles by Dick Nix and Bill Seymour and two bases on balls helped Camp White to two runs in the third inning. In the fourth inning there were singles by Landers, Wooton and Bob Serak and one walk for two markers. One score in the fifth canto came on a walk, hit batter and an error. Eggink's safe clout, a walk and a hit batter produced a final counter in the sixth.

Hunting and Fishing Southern Oregon

By MEL REES

With the moon coming into the light phase, the fishing generally has slowed in most lakes. There are still fish being taken but when the number of fishermen is taken into account the percentage per angler drops considerably.

This moon phase angle to lake fishing has been a source of controversy for as long as there have been anglers. There is a large school of thought that during the light part of the moon the fish feed at night and therefore are hard to catch in the daytime. Of course there is the other school that says that it makes no difference and point with pride at the record catches they have made during this period.

I have listened to no end of campfire discussions on the subject and have had considerable experience in which I felt there was something to the former theory but I have also fished long enough (too long) to know that if you make a rule, a hard fast one, concerning the fish—they have a regular habit of breaking it.

A trout is a hungry creature, never seeming to have enough and I feel that in a small stream or shallow lake he will eat when, where and as often as he can. In larger, deeper lakes this does not seem to hold true.

Records Kept
I can remember a large lake in the high Sierras where the fishing was superb during the dark phase of the moon but as the moon was coming into its light side the fishing would drop to almost nil. We kept records on this lake for several years and found it constant.

One year a party fished this lake in the light of the moon and during five days time they only found a half hour one evening when the fish bit like mad, then quit as suddenly as they started.

On my recent trip into the Bend country the fishing had been tops on a lake on which we were camped but a fellow angler made the statement that just as soon as the moon started to shine again this would change. It is a fact that the last two days of our stay the decline was very evident. On the last day when the moon was in its first quarter the success ratio among fellows who had been limiting had dropped to the point where they were talking of moving somewhere else. I noticed that where before the fish had been hitting a fly savagely—now they were just rolling for it.

As I stated before, it would be a foolish angler who would attempt to draw a hard, fast conclusion about the fish for if this were possible there wouldn't need to be the thousands of lures and baits on the market to confuse us.

Diamond Lake—This may not have anything to do with the foregoing but the Diamond lake resort says that the fishing has dropped considerably from what it was. There are lots of anglers there now and some of them are catching a few fish but they say that generally speaking the fishing is only fair now.

Fish Lake—Here goes the old theory! Reports from here indicate that the fishing has been good for the past three days and is picking up. The largest fish has been 21 inches but plenty of fish have been taken. Trolling with knobby wobblers either behind a flasher or along, silver flatfish and green, still fishing with eggs and worms all have produced. There is no algae now and plenty of good boats are available.

Willow Creek Reservoir — Fishing was slow last week but over the week end it was fair to good with trolling the best producer.

Four-Mile Lake — Returning anglers say that the fishing has picked up here and is good now. Some nice brookies being taken to 13 inches.

Klamath Lake—This shoots the theory! The fishing has been good over the week end (the moon was at least half full)! Bob Sloan of Harriman's resort went out for about an hour and took a 6 1/2 pounder for himself. Carl Miller of Medford connected with a 10 1/4 pound fish. El Beck of Talent landed a 5 1/2 pounder and Earl Niederman of Grants Pass took two fish, 5 1/2 and 4 1/2.

Other visiting anglers to this area landing big fish were Dexter McCarty, Gresham, Ore., 4 1/2; Bill More, San Diego, 4 1/2 and 4 1/2; Warren Baker of Fallbrook, Calif., 4 1/2 and 6—his wife Lil a 5 lb. Betty Robinson of Klamath Falls 5; Bruce Brickell of Grants Pass, 7 1/2; Glen Ditto, Junction City, Ore., 5 1/2 and 4, and Tom Trocera, Orinda, Calif., 4 1/2. Dorothea Cunningham of Portland battled an 8 1/4 pounder and won.

There were witnessed reports of a 12-pounder and one which tipped 15 pounds, but these were not weighed officially. Best baits are artificials now with Andy Reekers, Freaks and Flatfish holding the spotlight.

Chetco river—Hewitts Anchorage at Harbor, says that the trout fishing is poor, the salmon fishing isn't as yet but expect it any day, the perch, flounder and smelt fishing in the mouth of the river is good.

COURTNEY VICTOR
Stockholm, Sweden — Olympic 800-meter champion Tom Courtney of Livingston, N. J., posted a 1:48.8 clocking in winning his specialty Wednesday during an international track and field meet at the old Olympic stadium. Six of the eight other events were won by Americans — Rink Babka, Charlie Jenkins, Leamon King, Willie Stevens and Frank Herrman.

WATCH THOSE TREES
Roselle, N.J. — An ordinance currently being considered by the city would require that a tree surgeon be in attendance during any digging that might damage the roots of a shade tree.

PROPOSED HOME FOR GIANTS—A building contractor has urged the city council of Hayward, Calif., to join it in seeking to persuade the New York Giants to transfer their baseball franchise to this city on the east shore of San Francisco Bay. Shown above is an artist's conception of the 90,000-seat all-purpose stadium which Braden Enterprises proposes to build if the Giants move to Hayward. Preliminary cost estimate of the stadium, parking facilities and an adjoining motel (left) is $8,370,000.

Boat Racer Takes Sick

Los Angeles — A Honolulu movie producer, who became ill in mid-Pacific aboard one of the entries in the Transpacific Yacht race, Wednesday night was transferred from the Coast Guard cutter Gresham to a destroyer tender.

The Gresham, escort vessel for the race, took the ill man, Richard Fairservice, aboard from the yacht Queen Mab. The Gresham then sped to a rendezvous with the Dixie and transferred Fairservice for medication unavailable on the Coast Guard ship.

Dr. Walter Thompson, aboard the Gresham, had diagnosed Fairservice's condition as a bleeding peptic ulcer. The Gresham radioed Coast Guard officials here that the Dixie would take the ill man to Honolulu.

Fairservice was a member of the Queen Mab's crew. The yacht had to turn on its engines Wednesday to negotiate a transfer to the sick seaman to the Coast Guard cutter. However, race officials said the Queen Mab didn't deviate from its course and wouldn't be disqualified.

Meantime, the 83-foot cutter Barlowe continued to lead the 34-boat field in the race. The yacht was reported 950 miles from Diamond Head.

LIGHTNING TOLL
Urbana, Ill. — Lightning kills about 360 persons, injures 900 and causes 18 million dollars worth of property damage in the United States each year, according to O. L. Hogsett, extension safety specialist at the University of Ill.

Lemley, Hunter In 2-Way Race For Hardtop Honors

Race for the 1957 championship at Valley View speedway currently is a two-way contest between Wayne Lemley and the 1956 hardtop auto titlist, Crook Hunter.

Lemley, in A-57, has a 234 to 203 lead over Hunter, in 15-X. This Saturday evening's program will find Hunter trying to slice down the gap which Lemley increased slightly last week end.

The usual program of a main race, semi-main, four heat races and two trophy dashes is on the agenda. And then there's the twice-postponed challenge match between Ray Asher, C-1, and Lemley. Time trials, as usual, will be at 7 p.m. with the first race at 8 p.m.

Asher is still third in the point standings with 168 and Bob McGilvary, C-50, is next with 165. Bob Wilcox is fifth with 148 in M-3, Jenkins, M-4, with 135, has taken over sixth position and Lou Kurz, M-7, seventh with 131 as Wally Cannon, A-20, fell from sixth to eighth despite adding tallies. Cannon has 126.

Others among the top 12 are Johnny Jones, M-5, 109; Lee Davis, M-14, 104; Elmer Sisemore, M-43, 102, and Joe Ellison, A-24, 98. Sisemore is back among the leaders while Monte Hall, M-16, and Art Pollard, R-87, fell back.

Pollard, at east, is expected to rise back among the leaders. The Roseburg driver was absent last week but the car jockeys from his community are due to return to action here on Saturday.

Pointers Cop Junior Fray

Central Point romped out for six runs in the fifth and final inning yesterday to trim Ashland 8 to 5 for its second win in the Southern Oregon Junior Baseball league intermediate division.

Talent is claiming a forfeit because Medford did not show up yesterday evening for a contest. However, Medford team officials maintained that no trip to Talent was scheduled because it was up to that club to contact Medford and make arrangements for a game. Talent did not make the contact, it was said.

Bill Anhorn's two-base hit with two men on highlighted the final inning uprising. Jim Allen two-baggered, Don Pfaff singled and there were walks and two errors.

Raspo's double, two miscues and two walks had given Ashland five runs and a 5 to 2 edge in the fourth canto.

Anhorn tossed a four-hitter for CP, walking four and fanning eight and Nelson whiffed four and walked two pitching for Ashland. Anhorn and Raspo each singled and doubled.

CHARITABLE GESTURES
Hollywood — Shapely actress June Blair took almost everything off when she raised $10,000 for charity by doing a strip-tease. But the last successful bidder had to wait until she returned from her dressing room fully clothed before he could collect her Bikini.

Baseball's Bigwigs Face Charges of Intimidation

Washington — Baseball bigwigs, already under fire by congressional investigators for alleged monopolistic practices, today faced a possible "intimidation" charge.

Rep. Patrick J. Hillings (R-Calif.), disclosed Wednesday that staff investigators of the House anti-trust subcommittee have started a check to determine if baseball owners and officials are "intimidating" Bob Feller because of his recent critical testimony before a House committee.

The disclosure came about after Feller was prevented from holding a baseball clinic for youngsters in Brooklyn. Dogwooder Wrigley field in Los Angeles this week.

Billings' statement brought conflicting statements from all concerned, but the congressman said that if the House anti-trust subcommittee finds "substantial evidence of reprisals against Feller because of his testimony, then it would ask the department of justice to prosecute the individuals responsible."

Hartack, the nation's leading rider with 185 wins to date this year, was spilled in the first race at Arlington Park Wednesday.

At first it was feared he had suffered a fractured vertebra and would be sidelined "indefinitely."

A later re-examination of X-rays revealed there had not been a fracture. Doctors said Hartack probably would be ready to ride again within a week.

Hartack tried to persuade the doctors to let him out by Saturday so he could ride Iron Liege in the $100,000 Arlington classic. But they apparently told the spunky veteran that he wasn't as well as all that.

Moore Bout Seems Sure

Los Angeles — A match between champion Archie Moore and Tony Anthony for the lightweight title appears definitely set here for Sept. 11.

After singer-actor Frank Sinatra offered to withdraw from the promotion and permit local clubs to handle it, the California Athletic commission Wednesday gave informal approval for the match to be sponsored jointly by the Hollywood Legion Stadium and Olympic Auditorium.
