Texas Girl To Attend Games for Deaf

By O. B. LLOYD JR.

United Press Correspondent

Austin, Tex.—A 32-year-old physical education instructor, who tried out "just for the heck of it" is well on her way to becoming the first American woman ever to compete in the women's track and field division of the International Games for the Deaf.

The only thing that could hold Mrs. Ruth Seeger back is completing a $1,200 bankroll needed to finance the trip to Malin, Italy for the Deaf Olympics Aug. 25-31.

Mrs. Seeger already has deposited $450 with the U. S. International Games for the Deaf Committee, but needs $750 more if she's going to be among the 25 U. S. entries who sail from New York, August 11.

Tried Out On Her Own

She will be one of three women making the trip, but the only one competing in field and track. The other two will take part in swimming and diving.

Until a few years ago, Ruth, a naturalized Texan from Minnesota who came here to teach at the Texas State School for the Deaf in 1949, didn't even know there was a women's track and field division.

"When we found there was such a division, Ruth looked over some of the records, and decided that just for the heck of it she would see how close she could come to them," explained one of her teaching colleagues.

She came so close that Raymond Butler, the school's football coach who acted as official record keeper for Ruth's efforts, thought they might get her a place on the U. S. team. He sent the marks to Alexander Fleischman, head of the U. S. committee, at Silver Springs, Md., and Ruth was in.

From Gallaudet

Without any meet competition experience since her college days and with no special training, she hit four feet, four inches—the women's record is four feet, six inches—in the high jump; came within two feet of the broad jump record of 13½ feet, and threw the shot 28 feet, five feet shy of the record.

This will be the first meet competition outside of intramural contests in college, for Ruth, who was an outstanding athlete at Gallaudet College, a school for the deaf in Washington, D.C.

She hasn't made up her mind what events she will enter, but friends at the school say it will probably be the high jump, the broad jump, and the 100-meter race, with an outside possibility that she might compete in the javelin throw being inaugurated in the women's division this year.

Spiked Heels Cause Women Traffic Troubles

New York—A spike heels have tripped many a woman driver into an automobile accident.

The Leather Industries of America, quoting safety officials on the high-heeled hazard warns that the best footwear for the lady motorist is a "driving" shoe — with a heel no higher than 1½ inches. The organization says high heels are hazardous because the shoe slips off the pedal, often with disastrous results when braking or using the clutch. Taking your shoes off may rest you on a long trip, but stocking feet are just about as hazardous as spike heels.

Save Money With Low Heat Cooking of Meat

Chicago—An expert recommends low temperature cooking of meat, regardless of what method is used.

"To the homemaker, the important figure isn't cost per pound but cost per serving," said Clifford G. Bowes, meat director of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

"Low temperatures mean less shrinking and assure more servings per pound of meat," Bowes said.

Prunes

Most packaged prunes will boil tender in 15 to 20 minutes. Add a few mint sprigs to the hot prunes. Cover closely and let stand overnight. Use in salads and for garnishes.
