Elegance from the East

by Ruth W. Lee, home-furnishings consultant

THE TIMELESS BEAUTY and simplicity of Far Eastern furniture are scaled to fit today's American home. Low chests, used singly or in pairs, are particularly suited to that awkward wall beneath the large picture window; other pieces are planned for use in many ways and help to minimize decorating problems. If you need lots of side tables but can't find the space, consider creating a "bench" with several tables placed in a row—they're easily rearranged at party time. Too-long walls can be "pulled together" by companion pieces which give an elegant air that belies their utility. Oriental-inspired designs do not bear the stamp of a specific room; they are appropriate to any setting, in many combinations. Lovely wood grains of natural or dark-finished walnut invite the use of your favorite Oriental and domestic ceramic-ware accessories.

Chest with cane door panels makes an elegant side table. Pairs create an important grouping for any wall.

Lamp tables, benches, or buffet: these tables are all three. Loose-cushioned benches slip under tables.
