Fancy Sounding Fabrics Appear In New 'Simple' Fall Clothes

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Correspondent
New York — The new clothes, although simple in silhouette, come in some fancy-sounding fabrics.

This fall, if a girl is to shop wisely, she will have to know such materials as silk broadcloth, lame chiffon, crepe marocain, hammered satin, tissue tweed and chantilly wool lace.

Designers employ such a variety of fabrics the International Silk association put out a glossary of terms in collections shown this week by the couture group of the New York Dress Institute.

That broadcloth, for instance, is "a fine smooth silk cloth frequently used for shirts." Only this year, it'll be in dresses also.

Lame chiffon is a light weight silk cloth with gold or silver surface of metallic threads. Crepe marocain is just a heavy silk crepe; hammered satin, a fabric with mottled surface-like hammered brass or copper.

Tissue Tweed

Tissue tweed is one way to describe the non-bulky lightweight tweeds for fall. And chantilly wool lace is like any other chantilly lace in pattern, but made from wool yarn.

Other jaw-breaking terms for the new season:

Roshanara crepe, a heavy silk crepe with a wool backing, gros de londre, a heavy formal dress fabric with a pronounced rib in the weave; chamusee, a very thin silk with satin weave and the high polish of satin and panne velvet, a velvet which has been pressed so that the pile lies flat.

A girl also had better get used to the term plastron front, which is a trimming for the front of a dress, narrowed from shoulders to waistline. The marin silhouette also is with us — marin is French for sailor, and describes the midly-like cut of two-piece dresses or suits.

Sailor Influence

One designer influenced by seafarers is Karen Stark of Harvey Berin. She not only uses dresses in marin blue wool, a blue just a bit lighter than regulation navy. She also shows the sailor collar and the cable stitch of sailor sweaters adapted into the weave of wool jersey dresses.

"Project vanguard," the launching of America's first earth satellite, inspires Adele Simpson's fall collections. Most of her clothes are cut on easy-fitting but slim lines.

Included is the "telescope" silhouette, with horizontal tiers forming the narrow skirts of daytime and cocktail dresses of black crepe. Mrs. Simpson shows split-level skirts for evening. A strapless gown with softly-draped bodice has a floor length skirt caught just above the knee by a big bow, and slit to reveal a second midcal length skirt beneath.

New Colors

The Simpson collection included "cosmic colors," such as Venus pink, moon white, meteor red, vapor beige and Saturn or medium brown.

Mollie Parnis prefers the slim silhouette for fall, but has eliminated the skin-tight sheath. She is one of several designers providing at least 10 more inches at the hemline in this classic dress.

Unlike some designers who have hauled jacket lengths down, Miss Parnis keeps the short jacketed costume or suit—the jacket ending at the waistline or a couple of inches below, and often collared in fur.

Pictures Reversed In Sunday Paper

Due to a mistake in the stereotyping department at the Mail Tribune, two engravings in the society section of the July 14 newspaper were transposed. The Mail Tribune regrets the error.

The two pictures, one of Huot Fisher, band director at Ashland High school for the past two years, and the other of a porcelain figurine presented to a recent bride, were incorrectly placed on the page.

Lithia Park Scene Of Garden Club Picnic Luncheon

Central Point — The Central Point Garden club met July 10 at Ashland's Lithia park for a pot luck luncheon at noon. Mrs. E. W. Jermark was hostess with Mrs. Francis Russell and Mrs. Paul Anderson assisting.

Following the business meeting, Dr. L. G. Gentner, honored guest, led members on a tour of the park, pointing out trees and shrubs of major interest. Leaflets were also provided.

Arrangements of the month were brought by Mrs. John Homer, Mrs. James Curnum and Mrs. Walter Sutherland. The corsage went to Mrs. Eileen Stone.

Guests included Mrs. Shirley Asher, Mrs. W. D. Jackson, Mrs. Cora F. True, Mrs. Virginia Westfield, all of the Ashland Garden club; Dr. and Mrs. L. G. Gentner, Medford; Mrs. Alice L. McCuen, Stockton, Calif.; and Mrs. Madylon L. Dale, of Iowa.

Talent Garden Club Holds Noon Picnic Luncheon

Talent — The Talent Garden club held its regular meeting July 10. Members met at noon for a picnic lunch on the lawn of the H. J. Straus home, with Mrs. Loyal Bates and Mrs. E. G. Taylor serving as hostesses.

Mrs. C. A. Long and Mrs. E. G. Taylor gave a report on the recent state convention of garden clubs held at Coos Bay. Mrs. Phil Hoyland, horticulture chairman, gave a talk on delphinium culture. Seventeen members attended.

Luncheon Held By Felixianne

A 1 p.m. luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Orpha Wendel, 411 Arcadia court, July 9 by members of the Felixianne club.

Two visitors were present, Mrs. Ora Davis and Mrs. C. D. Hershiser. Mrs. Hershiser assisted Mrs. Wendel in serving.

Notes of greeting from the Felixianne club in Norton, Kan., were read during the social hour. The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Lydia Goff at 410 Beatty street in August.

Contestants Drill For Miss Universe Beauty Pageant

Long Beach, Calif. — Miss Universe contestants today were allowed to rehearse at Long Beach Municipal Auditorium where Tuesday they will parade in front of judges.

The 76 girls, including 32 from foreign countries, Sunday passed in review in the world's biggest beauty parade. Thousands of persons lined Ocean Blvd. to see the bathing suit-clad contestants ride by on individual floats.

Executive Producer Oscar Meinhardt of the pageant claimed the parade was the most spectacular in the six year history of the Miss Universe contest. Carol Morris, 1957 Miss Universe, led the procession in an automobile.

Routine Practiced

The rehearsals were scheduled today to allow the contestants to get acquainted with the judging area and also to practice their routine for stage shows later in the week. The actual judging gets under way Tuesday with the selection of 15 finalists in the "Miss U.S.A." contest.

Miss Universe will be selected Friday night. The activities conclude Saturday night with a coronation ball.

Meanwhile, Sanita Pelkey, Miss New York, said she planned to remain in the contest after hearing that her father, Ralph Pelkey, had died Saturday in the East of a heart attack.

"My dad was so proud that his daughter had been selected to represent New York in the contest," the 21-year-old Miss Pelkey said. "I just wish he'd want me to see it through."

Crosby Tells Work On E-R Commission

Portland — The conspiracy trial of Teamster leader Clyde C. Crosby went into its second week today with the defendant due back on the stand.

Crosby, 43, took the stand as the trial continued Saturday and told of his work as an Exposition - Recreation Commission member and of his past life.

He is charged with conspiracy to realize a profit from sale of property in the Broadway-Steel bridge site for the E-R center.

Crosby told of the hiring of the Stanford Research Institute to survey proposed sites for the $8 million center. He said it was his own feeling that the commission should obtain the best professional advice. He said he favored the Broadway - Steel bridge site since early reports of the institute which he thought favored it.

Crosby said he was appointed as international representative of the Teamsters in 1934 and before that was secretary-treasurer to local 162. Before that he was a truck driver.

On The Side

By E. V. Durling

Reviewing the Paris presentation by the American company of O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night," several critics praised the performances highly but indicated they found the play a bit boring. I am gratified to find somebody who agrees with me. That's what I thought. In the writing of the play being discussed, O'Neill seems to have forgotten everything about dramatic technique he learned in Professor Baker's Harvard Workshop. It certainly is a sloppy piece of playwriting. Even more so than that dreary O'Neill opus titled "The Iceman Cometh."

ROUNDABOUT

While waiting at a Fifth ave. intersection for the light to change, I heard a nearby blonde say to her companion, "He is going to propose to me. Of that I am certain." Her companion said, "Don't be too certain." How right she was! A Ben Franklin said, "Mais dans ce monde il n'y rien d'assure que la mort et les impostes."

ASKING

Queries from clients. Q. Maxfield Parrish's painting titled "Old King Cole" decorated the 1916 Knickerbocker bar in 1916. On that my friend and I agree. We differ on the price of a Manhattan cocktail in that bar at that time. Help please. A. At the time you mention, cocktails (Manhattan, Martini or Bronx) were priced at the Hotel Knickerbocker bar at two for a quarter. Q. Don't you know it was Byron, not Fanny Fern, who said "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach"? A. It was Fanny Fern who made the observation referred to. What Byron said was:

All human history attests. That happiness for man—the hungry sinner. Since Eve ate apples — much depends on dinner.

PASSING BY

Eddie Fisher. The conscientiously amiable crooner. As Eddie is a young married man and father, it is nice to know he has a steady job. He has a 15-year television contract calling for a salary of $17,000 a week. His wife, Debbie, is working, too. She is only making about $2,000 a week but as the Fishers are planning to rear a large family every little bit helps.

HYNOTISM

Hypnotism is not difficult to master. In fact, a 13-year-old boy after reading a book on the subject put a schoolmate into a trance. That hypnotism is easily learned creates a dangerous situation. It is repeatedly claimed that a person under a hypnotic spell will not do anything that is abhorrent to him. However, according to some authorities on the subject that is not

Abbott-Costello Part On 'Friendly Terms'

Hollywood — Comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello have decided to part on "friendly terms" after 20 years of being one of Hollywood's top money-making teams, the comics' agent revealed today.

The agent, Eddie Sherman, said Abbott wanted to end the partnership so he could devote full time to raising thoroughbred at his Ojai, Calif., ranch. Sherman said Costello planned to continue as a "single" in movies, nightclubs and on television.

Legally, the partnership remains in force. Both will continue to share percentages from their movies.

Costello, the rotund member of the team, has made three solo appearances on the Steve Allen television show. He also is scheduled to make a movie based on the life of the late New York Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia.

AMONG THE MARRIED

Is your daughter, by any chance, considering marriage with a man of Irish birth or descent? If so advise her not to take too lightly the claim that marrying an Irishman greatly increases her chances of being the mother of twins. Practically every day I hear of the wife of some Irishman having a double feature blessed event. The latest is Mrs. Patricia Monahan of Cresskill, N.Y. She is the mother of twin boys who at birth weighed seven pounds and nine ounces and eight pounds and fourteen ounces. The lads are named Michael and Timothy.

BUSINESS WOMEN

Paulette Goddard is the smartest business woman in Hollywood history. So I note it said that's wrong. Smartest business woman of all film actresses is Mary Pickford. Ruth Roland rates second in that respect. Ruth made a million dollars in business deals when money was much more difficult to acquire than now. Paulette Goddard rates third among Hollywood females as to business shrewdness. Janet Gaynor is fourth. Rosalind Russell is fifth.

PLEASE NOTE

Georges Carpentier, the gallant French ringman, fought in all classes — bantamweight, featherweight, light weight, middleweight, light heavy and heavyweight. That, you probably know. But did you know the same can be said of Pacific Coast brawler "Fat Willie" McEwan? Willie fought Jack Dempsey a couple of times and gave the "Manassa Mauler" plenty of trouble.

UNDIES GO UNDERGROUND

London — Visitors from Mars could be forgiven if they assumed English women wore nothing but brassieres and scanties, an official of the British Professional Womens Clubs said here. Audrey Taylor said her federation was "perturbed" about the growing number of advertisements for scanty undies, particularly in subway stations.

STAGE LUMINARY DIES

New York — Amy Busby, celebrated beauty and stage luminary, just before the turn of the century, died Saturday night in East Stroudsburg, Pa. She was 85.

Seattle Hiker Rescued Following Heart Attack

Cleelum, Wash. — Kittitas County Sheriff's deputies and volunteers rescued Glen Knox, Seattle, from Red Top Mountain Sunday after he had suffered a heart attack while hiking with his wife.

The sheriff's office at Ellensburg said Knox was carried by makeshift stretcher, two miles out of the rugged Mineral springs area. A doctor who examined Knox said the Seattle man was able to make the motor trip back to his home Sunday night.
