

Lilliput Theater to Be At Ashland During Month-Long Festival

Ashland — San Francisco's popular Lilliput Theater will move to Ashland for a month's run during August, offering Oregon Shakespearean Festival visitors an added daytime opportunity for an unusual form of entertainment.

Billed as "The Smallest Theater in the World," the Lilliput is operated by Hugh Evans, brother of famed actor Maurice Evans, and Frank Bray, a former associate of choreographer Anthony Tudor and director Vida Hope.

Theater in Miniature

With the Lilliput, Evans and Bray have created a theater-in-miniature, complete with curtained boxes, chandeliers, intricate lighting, a revolving stage, extensive scenery, and the latest sound equipment. Hundreds of tiny figures, operated on wands on stage level, portray Lilliput's many characters. Delicate black light effects and fluorescent-colored costumes complete the "masterpieces in miniature."

During the Festival's August run, the Lilliput Theater will be installed on the Plaza in the ground floor area of Ashland's city hall building. Its repertory performances will be staged daily at 10:15 a.m. and 2:15 p.m., offering rotating showings of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Beggar's Opera," and "The Mikado."

The full Mendelssohn score of Incidental Music for the Shakespearean play will be included in the production. Both the Oregon Shakespearean Festival and the Lilliput Theater open their full month's runs on Aug. 1.

Congress Urged To Revamp Program of Government Security

Washington — The head of a special study commission urged Congress today to overhaul the government's "haphazard" loyalty-security program before adjourning this year.

Chairman Loyd Wright of the Commission on Government Security said the entire program, particularly for government employees, "warrants early attention" of Congress.

Wright, a Los Angeles lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association, was the opening witness at House Civil Service Committee hearings on his commission's proposal to revamp government loyalty and security procedures. The committee is considering the security commission's controversial proposal to fine or jail newsmen or others who publish secret government information.

Wright made no direct mention of that in his prepared statement. He did say that "unfortunately" the commission's proposals on criminal laws "are not yet understood by some segments of the public and the press."

Advancing Stock List Loses Most of Gain

New York — Stocks met resistance today after advancing to within striking distance of the all-time average highs set in April 1956.

A number of pivots lost gains running to three points. In some cases gains were turned into losses.

Aireracts led the early advance, which carried the industrial average to within half a point of its record high. This group finished well below its high for the day. Motors were firm. Tires were mixed. So were oils and metals. Sugar stocks met demand.

Du Pont was up three points at its high, touching a new high of 206. However, it lost almost all the gain. Other chemicals did little.

DOW-JONES AVERAGES

Dow-Jones final stock averages: 30 industrials 517.42, off 2.74; 20 railroads 153.45, off 0.56; 15 utilities 71.23, off 0.41; and 65 stocks 179.23, off 0.59.

Sales today were about 2,510,000 shares compared with 2,480,000 shares Monday.

posals on criminal laws "are not yet understood by some segments of the public and the press."

The 12-man commission which spent a year and a half studying the nation's security programs, made its proposals in a report released June 23.

Despite his plea for prompt congressional action, the committee is not expected to even finish hearings on the broad-scale proposal before adjournment.

Wright told the committee the current security program for government employees has been "hanging in doubt" since a Supreme Court decision last year that it does not apply to workers in "non-sensitive" jobs.

Describing the present setup, Wright said: "Since 1947 there has evolved a vast, intricate, confusing and costly complex of temporary, inadequate, uncoordinated, programs and measures designed to protect the nation against the agents of Soviet imperialism."

Heavy Smoke Cuts Alaska Visibility

Anchorage, Alaska — Heavy smoke from countless forest fires in central Alaska has halted attempts to fly food and supplies to firefighters, the Bureau of Land Management said Monday.

Smoke over the interior and western coastal areas was so dense that scheduled airlines were not landing planes at regular stops. The ceiling was reported reduced to 500 feet.

Russ Hanson, bureau fire dispatcher, said no men were without food but that supplies were dwindling. The situation could become "serious" in some spots, he said.

The fires, most of which were set by lightning, are so numerous that the bureau's fire service had lost count of both the acres involved and the number of blazes.

Brophy Building Remodeling Starts

Remodeling of the Brophy building at Main st. and Central ave. in Medford, which includes two of the city's original masonry structures built about the turn of the century, started this week.

The building, which takes in what was originally the old Jackson county bank building, on the corner, and the Vawter building, next to it on Main st., occupies the entire northeast corner of the block between the two entrances to Mann's Department store.

Modernizing of the front, with the use of ceramic tile, and bringing all the windows to a uniform height will be included in the project, as well as remodeling of store interiors, according to owner Leland S. Brophy.
