The Medical Roundup by Walter Alvarez

The Woman Who Would Be Loving. A woman asks a good question. She says, "I read your article on how a loving wife can cause her husband to live longer if she is affectionate. But, please, tell me how can she keep passing her hand through his hair or patting his hand if he'll never let on that she is doing it, or pay any attention to her, or appreciate her affection? What, also, can she do when she'd give anything to have her husband do these same things to her, and he never does?"

"He did a little of this for a few years after our marriage, but then his affection seemed to wear off, and now all his urges to love are gone. If I am affectionate, he growls and says, 'Leave me alone.' The woman fears there is nothing she can do about it, but she is so lonely and so hungry for love. My heart goes out to people like her; and I am sorry, also, for her husband because he, too, is missing much that he might have in rich abundance. It is hard to say always why such things happen; even the two people concerned can seldom agree as to why they came to be living largely apart in their house. As I have said several times in this column, there are millions of both men and women who were not born to get affectionate with anyone. They never care to reach out and touch even their child, and many are distressed when anyone touches them. Many of these persons are "schizoid," and relatives of schizophrenics.

To illustrate, a woman came to see me because she is worrying terribly and feels as if she were headed for a nervous breakdown. She is sad because she cannot show her kind husband the affection she would like to give him. I asked, "Did your parents ever show you any affection?" and she said, "No, Dad was never affectionate, and I cannot remember a time when Mother ever cuddled me, kissed me, tucked me up in bed, or showed the least sign of love for me. Dad came to hate her because, also with him, she never showed any sign of affection. Because of this, they were always quarreling bitterly." I asked, "What happened to your mother?" and my patient said, "She withdrew more and more from life and eventually had to be put into a mental hospital. My sister is also in a mental hospital with schizophrenia."

Navy Planning Homecoming

Chicago—The Navy hopes some two million alumni will muster in for a massive homecoming reunion at the nation's oldest—and largest—naval training center, Great Lakes. The Navy has invited such famous alumni as Jack Benny, Bob Feller, Larry Doby, Ray Anthony, Tony Zale, George Halas and Harold E. Stassen to return here during the reunion period that ends Oct. 7.

A Navy spokesman said the training center has invited graduates of the last 46 years, and added that each week a different one of the 21 midwestern states served by the base will be honored.

At the time of dedication, Great Lakes had 39 buildings, a capacity for 1,500 men and only 600 boats (recruits) in training on a tract of land equaling 172 acres.

Today, the training center has 775 buildings on more than 1,500 acres of land, and during a peak month in 1944 had a census of close to 104,000 men.

At present there are 17 service schools in operation with a complement of 6,000 boats, plus about 4,000 men, including officers from foreign countries. The spokesman said that during summer months, the number almost doubles when reserves return for refresher courses.

Steve Canyon comic strip panel. Steve Canyon is talking to a woman. Steve Canyon: "We know it will not be easy to disclose the reds from western China, Mr. Culver, but it must be done!" Woman: "Princess, assuming that you gain a foot-hold in the west, how will you hold out when the full force of the Chinese red army is turned on you?" Steve Canyon: "It is our hope that an invasion from the east will then begin." Woman: "Then you do expect to start world war three?" Steve Canyon: "Mr. Culver, if you were driven from your home by forces you would not fear, that you might start a gang war by returning to drive the trespassers from your property—would you?" Steve Canyon: "I merely ask questions, Mr. Hogan—I never try to answer to them!"

Ly Abner comic strip panel. Ly Abner is talking to a woman. Ly Abner: "Fairwell fatchance could have been elected president."
