Jackson Urges Law Go Into Effect Soon

Washington — Sen. Henry M. Jackson Friday urged the Federal Housing administration to put into effect immediately the lowered down payments on FHA-insured loans as authorized by Congress and signed by President Eisenhower last week.

In a letter to Federal Housing Administrator Albert Cole, Jackson said he was "disturbed" at press reports that the FHA will refuse to lower the required down payment until late this year.

The Washington Democrat said he has received urgent messages from home-builders and potential home-buyers in Washington state which indicate home building is at its "lowest point since the depression" and that a "terrible housing shortage can be expected in a few years."

Putting the new down payment requirements into effect immediately would give housing construction a "needed shot in the arm," Jackson said.

Interior Department Has Reindeer Problem

Washington — The interior department has a surplus problem—reindeer.

In 1944 the Coast Guard brought 29 reindeer to St. Mathew Island in the Bering Sea to assure an emergency food supply during World War II. The war ended, the Coast Guardsmen left, and the reindeer herd began unrestricted multiplication.

The island, 200 miles from the nearest Alaska coast, is 20 miles long and two miles wide and virtually uninhabited except by animals—particularly reindeer.

At last count, there were about 800 reindeer and not enough reindeer food to go around.

The department's bureau of fisheries and wildlife has sent two biologists to survey the situation and to make recommendations.

Forestry Department Reports Two Fires

Two minor fires occurred Friday, the state forestry department reported.

One occurred just south of Ashland in dry grass and the other in brush at the head of Ramsey canyon. Both were small fires and were soon under control, it was reported.

Grass fires also kept the Medford fire department busy Friday and Saturday. A pumper was dispatched to a grass fire at 1901 Stradford way. The fire originated in a trash fire and extended to a grass field firemen said. Approximately one acre of grass was burned before it was extinguished. Humidity which dropped below 30 per cent after 11:30 p.m. was partially blamed.

A second fire occurred at 10:15 a.m. Saturday at 2179 Crater Lake ave. A pumper crew extinguished the fire which burned approximately 1 1/2 acres of grass.

The Federal Housing administration was started in 1934.

Mountain Blast Scheduled Today

Little Valley, Utah — A spark will detonate 1.7 million pounds of explosives here this morning as Southern Pacific railroad engineers crumble a mountainside to build a fill across great Salt Lake.

The blast, largest non-atomic explosion ever set off in the U.S., is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. The scene is a barren mountainside on Promontory Point, a finger of land jutting southward from the northern shores of Great Salt Lake. Rock and earth ripped from the mountainside will go into the S.P. $49 million rock fill across the northern end of the lake. The fill will replace the half-century-old Lucin cut-off.

Today's blast will be the fourth since work on the project was started about one year ago. Others were set off here and at Lakeside on the lake's western shore.

Company officials said the blast would probably register on seismographs in Salt Lake City and Berkeley, Calif., as a minor earthquake.

The project is scheduled for completion in 1960.
