Truman Sees Russian Military Dictatorship As Threat To West

Revolution, a professional military leader is having a decisive voice. Khrushchev, having survived as the leading figure, had to call on the aid of Marshal Zhukov in order to purge Molotov, Malenkov and Kaganovich. What is more revealing is the fact that Marshal Zhukov, a professional soldier, undertook to make a statement of high policy, presuming to speak in the name of all the Russian people and of the Communist Party.

I do not think we should allow our hopes and determined pursuit of peace to be influenced by the grim alternatives which seem now to confront the Russian people—a choice of evils—military or political dictatorship. We of the West must be careful not to encourage, by word or action, the Russian people to assume that a military dictator could be any more helpful to them, or to peace, than any of the other personal rivals for Stalin's mantle.

People Must Awaken

Until the Russian people themselves awaken to the fact that they and they alone ought to have direct power and control over their government, the world will continue to be distrustful of any Russian government.

In the present phase of the continuing struggle for power in the Kremlin, there are the beginnings, it seems to me, of a dominant role of the military in shaping Russian policy. For the first time since the Bolshevik

During Monday morning's meeting in the Industry Council of Southern Oregon office here the two groups will consider both the Teamsters' proposal and the distributors' counter proposal.

In 'Fluid' Stage

Fred Morlan of the Industry Council office here emphasized that the proposals are still in the "fluid" stage. The parties signatory to the agreement received notice from the union within the specified 60 day period — May 1 through June 1 — that the contract is open for negotiation.

Coos Bay — If a settlement is not reached soon with southwest Oregon beer distributors, the truckers' strike which broke out here July 15 may spread throughout the state, a Teamsters official warned here Saturday.

Dulles Ordered To London To Study Disarmament Talks

Secretary To Make 'Personal Review'

Washington — President Eisenhower Saturday ordered Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to fly to London Sunday night and find out whether the disarmament talks can be saved from threaten'd deadlock or collapse.

A White House announcement echoed by state department spokesmen, said Dulles' unexpected trip does not mean either a "breakthrough" or a "breakdown" is near in the long search for a disarmament formula.

Dulles will make a "personal review and judgment" of the big disagreements between Russia and the West and the lesser issues among the Western Allies on how to make "first step" toward checking the arms race, administration spokesmen said.

The West refuses to stop testing atomic weapons without assurance that Russia will join in a broader and workable system of controlled and inspected disarmament, Russia insists that to tie in nuclear control, conventional arms reductions, open-skies inspection plans, and other complex steps will mean a long delay in starting the temporary ban on bomb tests.

Top Livestock Prices On Portland Market Encouraging Locally

The fact that livestock brought top prices in Portland last week should be encouraging to local farmers, according to W. B. Tucker, county agent.

Steeers sold in Portland last Monday at 26 cents a pound, Tucker said. These were heavy fat animals weighing 1100 pounds or more.

Local beef is on range and is not coming in here until the last of September or the first of October. Now being offered for sale here are those animals on irrigated pasture.

Tucker estimated there are 43,000 head of cattle in Jackson county including both beef and dairy animals.

One explanation for the top prices is that the lower price of hay makes it possible to feed more of it thus producing a higher quality of beef. Much of the hay being used locally comes from northern California and Klamath county.

Also state-wide, 10 per cent more hay was produced this year making it cheaper. The wet spring and hot summer is responsible, he added.

Further affecting the cattle feed picture is more acreage being planted to corn. This also makes it possible to feed cattle on silage during the winter months.

Over-all cost of cattle feed is lower now than it has been during the last two or three years. Barley, for instance, is selling for $40 a ton. A year ago it sold for nothing less than $50 a ton.

A lot of the barley used locally is trucked in from Klamath county and some comes from Willamette valley. Most of the corn is shipped in from Nebraska and other middle-west states.

Little wheat is being fed here in contrast to eastern Oregon, Tucker said. "We used to feed a lot of wheat here but can't feed at the supported price," the county agent said.

Tucker concluded by saying pretty good prospects exist this year for feeding lambs. Local farmers buy them from other areas and put them in the grain fields after harvest to fatten them for market.

A lamb weighing 50 to 60 pounds when bought for feeder stock can be fattened up to 90 pounds in a period of 60 to 75 days. Farmers expect the price on fat lambs to be three to five cents a pound higher than last year.

Senators checked his papers and said documents showed him to be a long-standing member of the Guatemalan Communist party, the only Communist party in the Western Hemisphere which ever gained a grip on a nation.

Washington — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles led official Washington Saturday in mourning the death of President Carlos Castillo Armas of Guatemala as a loss "to the entire free world."

Castillo Armas, staunch friend of the United States, succeeded three years ago in rescuing Guatemala from a pro-Communist regime.

Eisenhower, in a statement released by the White House, said "the tragic death of President Carlos Castillo Armas... is a great loss to his own nation and to the entire free world."

Assassin Commits Suicide as Other Guards Close in

Documents Identify Killer as Communist

Guatemala City, Guatemala — A palace guard identified as a Communist saluted President Carlos Castillo Armas with his rifle Friday night and then shot the President dead with two bullets fired point blank, in a darkened palace hallway.

The guard fled toward a stairs and then committed suicide with his last bullet.

The 43-year-old President, who rescued Guatemala from Red rule in 1954 and gave the country its first real democratic regime, fell dead at the side of his attractive wife shortly after a gay reception. One bullet pierced his heart, the other also lodged in his chest.

At daybreak, the standing committee of congress confirmed first Vice President Luis Arturo Gonzalez-Lopez, as provisional president. A 54-year-old attorney known for his anti-Communist views, he appealed for order and indicated others had been involved in the slaying of the president.

Castillo and his wife had just left his private apartments in one wing of the palace shortly after the reception. They were walking towards the dining room on one of the rare occasions when they were to dine alone.

As they walked down a 50-yard hallway, Pvt. Romeo Vasquez Sanchez, 20, snapped to attention and presented arms with his semi-automatic rifle.

Then he reached up and turned out the lights. He raised his rifle and fired twice at such close range he could not miss.

The hawk-nosed, mustached President pitched to the floor. He died without uttering a word.

Other members of the palace guard heard the shots and raced to the scene. Vasquez fled towards a stairs but he was trapped by guards running up. He raised the gun and fired one shot, killing himself. When his rifle was examined, the ammunition clip was empty.

Officials checked his papers and said documents showed him to be a long-standing member of the Guatemalan Communist party, the only Communist party in the Western Hemisphere which ever gained a grip on a nation.

Explosion Evidence Found On Airliner; Body Located

Barstow, Calif. — A blasting cap and evidence of a possible explosion were found on an airliner from which a heavily-insured passenger was lost in a mysterious blast, the FBI said Saturday.

An insurance firm declared it would fight any immediate efforts to collect on the dead man's flight accident policy.

The body of the passenger, jeweler Saul F. Binstock, 62, was found in a desolate desert area late Friday following the blast which occurred in a flight at 10,000 feet early Thursday. It was being given painstaking examination to determine the cause of death and whether any traces of explosive powder could be found on it.

The twin engine Western Airlines Convair, with a jagged hole torn in its fuselage at the lavatory section where Binstock had been at the time, made a safe emergency landing with 12 other passengers.

John F. Malone, agent in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office, said an unexploded blasting cap was found in the lavatory, with what appeared to be burned toilet tissue and evidence indicating "the possibility of a small explosion."

He refused to speculate on the significance of the discoveries.
