

Sharon Urie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Urie, 330 Hill-house avenue, received a beautiful flower lei from her friend, Stacey Mogush, when she arrived in Hawaii recently for a vacation. Sharon made the trip with her grandmother, Mrs. R. T. Urie of Seaside, Ore., and the two sailed Wednesday for the return trip home. Sharon will spend the remainder of the summer with her grandmother at Seaside and will return home in the fall in time to enroll at Hedrick Junior High school where she will be a seventh grader. While in Hawaii Mrs. Urie and her granddaughter were registered at Henry J. Kaiser's new Hawaiian Village hotel on Waikiki beach. Third Field Trip Taken For Study of Wildflowers

Third in a series of three field trips which concluded a course in southern Oregon wildflowers sponsored by Jackson County Chamber of Commerce was made Sunday. Delmar Smith, Central Point led the group which made a trip into the Mt. Ashland area in 10 cars, caravan style. Residents of Medford, Ashland, Central Point and the Applegate made the trip.

Marcel LePiniec, botanist who taught the class last spring, led the first field trip which was made to Rough and Ready State park in the Kerby region. The second, to the Rabbit Ears and Hershberger mountains, was also led by Mr. Smith.

Cotton Plants May Guide Irrigation

Davis, Calif.—Allowing cotton plants to "ask" for water by leaf color changes may provide a better guide to irrigation timing than other methods, irrigation specialists report.

This premise was advanced by J. R. Stockton and L. D. Doneen of the University of California. Davis, in a recent report of extensive cotton irrigation experiments on a variety of soil types.

The specialists also found that cotton fiber quality is not greatly affected by irrigation practice and that poor roots require more water while control of verticillium requires less.

"By leaf color change and a slight temporary wilting," they said, "the plant itself, affected by changing soil moisture conditions, reports the need for more water."

This timing method works best on light sandy soils, they added.

Tests conducted on a Merced clay soil near Buttonwillow, Calif., showed high soil moisture and frequent irrigations increased verticillium wilt under conditions favorable to the disease. This led to lower fiber yields and indicated need for few water applications.

A Tulare clay soil near Corcoran, Calif., however, showed verticillium was not a problem, and more frequent irrigations resulted in higher yields.

Stew Chicken Brunswick Stew is an easy make-ahead entree to serve a crowd. This colorful combination of chicken and vegetables becomes even more special in flavor and aroma when you use a white table wine for part of the cooking liquid.

Prepare cooked chocolate pudding mix and turn into a baked pastry shell. While still warm cover with finely chopped California walnuts. At serving time top each piece with thick chocolate sundae sauce.

When the recipe says to "candy" a food, it can mean one of two things. It can be to cook the food in a heavy syrup until it is plump and transparent and then drain and dry. Or, it may mean to cook in sugar or syrup as applied to sweet potatoes or carrots.

Parboiling means boiling in water until the food partially is cooked. The cooking then is usually completed by another method.

Another confusing word is "dredging." The food specialists said that no hard labor is involved; just coat with a dry ingredient by sprinkling, dipping or rolling.

Broiling chickens are plentiful, and excellent in quality now. Plan to feature them for an outdoor barbecue soon. Heat well-drained canned cling peach halves on heavy foil on the grill for an accompaniment.

New York—A trick for the picnic season: potato salads or other salads will keep cool if packed in the top of a double boiler, with ice cubes placed in the bottom section.

Cooks Need Word Training

East Lansing, Mich.—Learning the specific meaning of recipe "lingo" may give your cooking experiments a better chance to succeed, suggest food experts at Michigan State University.

Kitchen disaster can be avoided by recognizing the exact meaning of terms such as "to beat," "to stir" or "to fold in."

The specialists remind that "to boil" is to cook in a liquid at boiling temperatures which at sea level is 212 degrees (F). But the term boil often is misused. "Boiled" ham, "boiled" eggs and "boiled" fish actually are simmered because higher heat toughens protein. Even "boiled" coffee should not be boiled; boiling makes the flavor bitter.

"To marinate" is to let stand in a liquid, usually an oil and acid mixture such as French dressing, until seasoned. "To simmer" is to cook in liquid just below the boiling point; the surface of the liquid barely ripples.

Firm Announces Infant Finalist

Ashland — Susanne Sutton, 11-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Sutton Jr., 272 Walker avenue, is one of 24 Oregon finalists in a national college scholarship contest.

The contest is sponsored by Fruit of the Loom Socks Foundation. A total of 1,105 finalists have been selected from four million candidate applications in the nation.

Five of these will be chosen for full four-year college scholarships. One hundred will receive sets of Compton's Pictured encyclopedias and 1,000 will be given Hammond's Illustrated Encyclopedic Atlas and Gazetteer.

A board of educators will make the final selections. Susanne's grandmother, Mrs. Murray Sutton, Talent, sent her name in on an application to Fruit of the Loom foundation.

When cooking cheese, keep the heat low. Cheese needs just enough heat to melt and blend with other ingredients. High heat or cooking too long will make cheese tough and stringy.

Clashes Between Teen-Agers and Parents Said Sometimes a Help

Chicago — A family life specialist says clashes between teenagers and parents are inevitable and sometimes beneficial.

Dr. Evelyn Millis Duvall expressed this view in an article in National Parent-Teacher official publication of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

"Children must grow up, emancipate themselves from their families, and pursue ways of life that make sense for their generation," she said.

Growth and development, for both child and parent, often seem like a series of little explosions that lead to a new level of being."

But such clashes need not be destructive, she said. While the adolescent needs the restraint of a more experienced, mature parent, she said the parent needs to remember that life has changed since his youth.

Almonds

Stir chopped roasted almonds, minced parsley and chopped pimento into hot buttered rice to give it a partylike touch. Use ready-diced roasted almonds in cans for convenience. To keep parsley fluffy, mince it and then "wring out" juice with paper towels.

Pancake Sauce

Try this when serving pancakes and waffles for brunch or luncheon. Heat a 1 pound can of jellied cranberry sauce with 2 tablespoons butter and 1/4 cup brown sugar. Serve hot.

Home Furnishing Ideas Cater to Businessmen

Chicago — The home furnishings industry increasingly caters to the businessman. Charles Whitney, publisher of Interiors magazine, said the shift is due to the "fantastically rapid" development of the contract market.

"The home furnishings industry is a misnomer," he said. "The contract field — offices, banks, showrooms, hotels, restaurants, theaters, hospitals, ships, trains and planes — is getting bigger than the residential field."

Furniture and fabric firms have reported that their contract business today is 60 per cent of their total volume; and in some instances up 400 per cent over five years ago.

Rice Pudding

Rice pudding has gone modern. Try this easy apricot version. Heat to full boil a 12-ounce can apricot whole fruit nectar mixed with 1 tablespoon lime juice and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon. Stir in 1 1/3 cups quick cooking rice. Cover, remove from heat and let stand 10 minutes. Stir in 1/4 cup sugar, cover and let stand until cold. Fold in stiffly beaten sweetened whipped cream and serve in sherbet dishes.

Cook a pound of prunes with whole spices and vinegar to serve with barbecued meats or with fresh summer fruits in salads. Sweeten to taste at end of cooking period, and allow to stand several hours or overnight for best flavor.
