

Shaping Up for Fall

by Allyn Rice

FULL OF GLAMOUR and surprises, new Fall fashions are exciting to anticipate. Though there's no one silhouette this year, the "melon" or "bubble" look is new for after-five wear. You will, of course, choose the line most flattering to your figure, but remember that each calls for a gently uplifted bosom, molded midriff, and tiny waist leading to a pleasingly rounded curve at the hipline. Designers have developed comfortable long-line bras, raised the waistline, and cleverly styled and reinforced girdles for that curved hipline. The strapless one-piecer is more comfortable and flattering than ever. Current emphasis on simple elegance makes properly styled and fitted undergarments a must.

1. Designed for the important late-day dress, Perma-lift's "Bra-lette" of Dacron and Dacron lace gives fine control for the new "melon" shape which curves out from the hip to mid-hip fullness, tapers in below the knees. Magic insets in the bra give firm uplift. It hooks in front for convenience and for that smooth bare back ($13.50).
2. Nylon power net and bands of gleaming ribbon give hip and tummy control in this Treo girdle. To be worn 2 to 3½ inches above a tiny waist ($16.50). For plunge necklines, the trick in Formfit's new nylon-lace bra lies in its center wire supports, criss-crossed bands in back, and plush-backed elastic shoulder straps ($5.00).
3. A smooth look of elegance requires long-line bra control to give a molded midriff. Playtex's longlife bra is mostly elastic with embroidered nylon cups and front panel; it gently firms as it uplifts ($6.95). Meeting it is Bien Jolie's waistline-tapering zippered girdle of nylon leno and satin elastic, with full hip and thigh control ($12.50).
