Explosion Causes Large Trash Fire

An explosion of unknown source caused a large trash fire on the fairgrounds property near the new Armory last night, firemen said today.

Firemen said they were called to the fire about 9:30 p.m. Several persons reported to the department that they heard an explosion. The trash fire in tree limbs and scrap lumber started afterward, they said.

The fire was near the entrance to the fairgrounds. Earlier in the day, firemen were occupied with three grass fires and three trash fires. They extinguished grass fires in the 3900 block of South Pacific highway, in the 900 block of north Central ave. along the Southern Pacific tracks, and in the 1700 block of Roberts rd.

The Pacific highway fire damaged fence posts. No damage was reported in the second, and the third burned over an area of approximately two acres, firemen said.

On complaint of neighbors, trash fires were extinguished at 312 South Grape st. and in the 1500 block of Prune st. Firemen stopped a third trash fire at Fourth and Fir sts.

At 9:13 p.m., a truck was sent to stand by as an Air Force T-29 airplane was refueled at the Medford airport.

London Disarmament Talks Not to Effect Military Cut-Backs

Washington — No matter what the outcome of the London disarmament conference, U.S. military forces are going to be cut back.

The reason: The declining buying power of the dollar has forced up defense costs. While disarmament negotiators are haggling in London for some token "first step" reduction in arms and men, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has clamped a $38 billion spending limit on the military services.

This would be at a level some $2,200,000,000 less than the current annual spending rate of $40,200,000,000 on America's defenses.

And more cuts are coming, Wilson said, because of "creeping cost increases" resulting from inflation. He added that the grass roots sentiment of the country as reflected by Congress favors reducing defense outlays.

Asked at his press conference Thursday about the effect of the slash in America's military might, Wilson replied it still would produce a "reasonable minimum" of security.

He quickly added that the Pentagon would ultimately have to answer for the big question of "what is enough."

He said the situation is helped by the fact that "the temperature of the world is down a little," although he was not "downgrading the threat" to world peace.

The government is in a "cost bind," the defense chief said, and has to "back down" on some of its military spending goals so as not to exceed the federal debt limit.

Presidential Approval
Wilson, who said his economy program has the approval of President Eisenhower, said more manpower cuts are coming on top of the 100,000 men he had ordered dropped from the military rolls by the end of the year. But he refused to say how many, although he hinted that future draft calls may drop as low as 7,000 men a month. This compared with the September quota of 8,000 men—the lowest
