

Collection Displayed In Ashland

Ashland—The magic of the eastern nations has been captured in the Koreanian collection of art objects now on display daily at the Southern Oregon college library, Ashland.

Sponsored by the Ashland Kiwanis club, showings are from 1 to 7:30 p.m. daily. The visitor sees rare hand-woven tapestries, a gift of the French to the American government...

Part of the fabulous collection of diamond, ruby, emerald and sapphire studded gold jewelry pieces that once decorated the palace of Egypt's ex-king Farouk, is included. Among them is a jewel-studded cigarette box.

Other treasures include what is said to be the most extensive collection of fine Persian silk rugs in the United States, many of them personal gifts to Mr. Koreanian from Eastern royalty.

Newcomers Report Several Attractions in This Area

The Medford area has many attractions, according to many newcomers who have settled here a recent report by the Jackson county Chamber of Commerce and Mrs. Marian Gilbert of Welcome Wagon, Inc., shows.

Mrs. Gilbert gathered information through interviews to determine if newcomers had information about the area before coming to Medford. Nearly all listed several reasons for locating here. Job transfers or job opportunities were given by 58 per cent for moving into the area. Five per cent listed the friendliness of the people as helping to sell them on Medford while 23 per cent said they were sold on the valley as a result of seeing it on previous visits.

Health reasons were listed by 13 per cent and hunting and fishing interests were listed by 13 per cent. Family ties accounted for 18 per cent, according to the survey.

Five per cent said they had come here to retire while 15 per cent said they had returned to live here after leaving. Chamber of Commerce literature describing the area was cited by 26 per cent of the newcomers to Medford.

Comments by new Jackson county residents all were favorable. "I borrowed descriptive material from a friend who sent to the chamber for it... I liked the sound of it," one new person said.

"A letter from the Chamber of Commerce was the big factor in my deciding to come to the Rogue valley. I had written to many places and Medford was the one that showed the most interest through its Chamber of Commerce." Another new Medford resident said.

One new resident said he had been in Medford in the early 1900's during a celebration featuring a greased pig with a $20 bill attached. He was so impressed by the spirit of the community that after traveling he still felt that Medford was the best place to retire.

The school system in Medford appealed to some new residents while others desired to get away from the traffic and smog problems of large cities. One person indicated the courtesy of the Medford city police as creating a good impression which helped to see the community as a place to live.

Wallace spoke at a meeting of the rural fire district 12, Portland Tax Savers. "In his speech at Klamath Falls, Gov. Holmes criticized people who disagree with the present tax system," Wallace said. He quoted the governor as saying "I think we have a right to be suspicious of the good faith of those professional criers of doom and spreaders of melancholy."

Wallace said, "I just want to say that if Gov. Holmes had paid as much in taxes, income and real estate, as some of the rest of us, he would be melancholy, too."

Washington—The Senate late Thursday voted $1 million for start of construction of a $320 million federal dam at the John Day site on the Columbia river.

The House earlier had voted no funds for John Day, and the measure goes there for concurrence. The Senate also voted to start planning on the Bruce Eddy dam on the north fork of the Clearwater river in northern Idaho.

Sen. Henry Dworshak (R-Ida.) strongly favored this project, which was included in the same measure as John Day. Sen. Richard Neuberger (D-Ore.) had favored John Day but opposed the Bruce Eddy project.

CANCEL CONVENTION Miami Beach—The AFL-CIO announced Thursday night that it has cancelled its huge national convention here Dec. 4-10 in favor of some other city.

Help Yourself to Happiness

Readers are invited to present their problems. All queries will receive individual attention and should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, directed to MARY HARRIS SEBERT, M. What is Your J.Q. (Jealousy Quotient)? Phyllis is jealous of Bill—in-ansely jealous, according to Bill. She resents his parents' attention to him, his secretary's protective air in sitting phone calls, his dancing with friends at the club. Bill finds her jealousy increasingly oppressive, and their rift is widening with her questioning.

Every person is, and should be, a little jealous of his or her mate. Jealousy in moderation indicates pride of possession. In excess, it is dangerous, the mark of emotional ill-being which may lead to a person's ruin and the destruction of his marriage.

Are you too jealous? Check yourself against the following: 1. Do you feel your mate neglects you? 2. Do you gossip? 3. Do you quarrel after a party, usually about "flirting"? 4. Do you envy your friends? 5. Do you have a quick temper? 6. Do you need more attention than you are getting? 7. Do you feel your mate is a flirt? 8. Can you take open criticism? 9. Do you try to track your spouse at a party? 10. Do you feel lonely in crowds? 11. Do you like to be babied a lot? 12. Do you suspect that most people need constant watching to keep them playing square? 13. When your spouse is late, do you wait up and demand an explanation? 14. Do you "have it out" with people who have gossiped about you? 15. Are you possessive? If you have answered twelve of these questions with "yes" you indicate excessive jealousy and would probably benefit from the aid of a marriage counselor with whom you could "talk out" your difficulties. If you have answered three or less with "yes," your love may be in doubt.

Roasting Time

Boned and rolled roasts have become increasingly popular with the American homemaker the last few years. When cooking any type of boned or rolled roast, remember that the roasts require approximately 10 more minutes per pound more cooking time than roasts which have not been boned.

Washing Woollens After washing winter woollens such as sweaters and gloves, seal them in plastic bags and place in a deep freezer for 48 hours before storing. The freeze treatment helps destroy any moth eggs which may be left in the clothing.
