

'Prayer Cell'—Little Publicized Nation's Protestant Movement

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Correspondent
Washington — A little-publicized "prayer cell" movement is spreading through American Protestantism. Some ministers consider it the most significant development of the current religious revival.

Prayer cells are small groups of Christian laymen who take their religion seriously. They meet privately, usually in a member's home, to pray together, read the Bible and talk over the problems which beset an ordinary man and woman in the effort to "draw near to God with faith."

Clergymen are impressed with the movement for several reasons. It is growing rapidly in all parts of the country. It is largely spontaneous in the sense that most cells are formed by laymen on their own initiative, rather than organized by churches. It cuts across denominational lines.

Many churchmen have been dubious about the sincerity of the religious revival that has swelled U.S. church rolls to a record high. But prayer cells are not easily explained by any of the superficial motives that are sometimes attributed to church membership.

Not Particularly "Respectable" Joining a prayer cell is not a good way to make social or business contacts, or "set an example for the children." Even in this day of public piety, it is not a particularly "respectable" thing to do. People who would congratulate you warmly for becoming an usher or a deacon at church are likely to lift an eyebrow at the idea of meeting in somebody's living room to pray.

The obvious conclusion is that small, informal prayer groups meet a spiritual need widely felt among today's Christian laymen.

Episcopal Bishop Austin Pardue of Pittsburgh, who has seen more than 100 prayer cells spring up in his city in the past few years, believes they attract people who "are seeking a faith that is more intimate and personal than can be found in formal Sunday services."

Other ministers regard the quiet simplicity of prayer cell worship as a valuable antidote to the busy round of activities which characterizes modern church life.

"We have all gotten so caught up in the successful running of the church that it is common for many to think that business activities are identical with religious," said the Rev. John Heuss, rector of Trinity church, New York. "To pay mortgages, to build new parish houses, to put on a drive for new members, to hold bazaars, lunches, dinners and bake sales—all this is admirable, but it is not religion."

Supplement Church Attendance For most participants, prayer cells are a supplement, rather than a substitute, for regular church attendance. Many cells are formed among people who first met each other while working together on some church project. Others bring together people who live in the same neighborhood, attend the same university, or work in the same office. Some kind of common bond is important to help overcome the self-consciousness and embarrassment which most laymen feel about praying aloud or talking sincerely about their religious feelings in front of a group.

This self-consciousness wears off, members say, after the group has been meeting for a while. The experience of sharing doubts and convictions, of "bearing one another's burdens" in the most important concerns of life, can make friends out of strangers rather quickly.

The result is a relationship which the church historically has prized as one of the fruits—and one of the prerequisites—of true Christian living.

The Bible calls it fellowship and Jesus made plain the great value he attached to it when he promised that wherever "two or three are gathered together in my name, there will I be also."

MISSIONARY—The Rev. Floyd McElveen, Conservative Baptist Home Mission society missionary to Alaska, will speak at the First Baptist church, Wednesday, Aug. 14, at 7 p.m. The local church, of which the Rev. James W. Neely is pastor, helps to support the Baptist mission work in Alaska. The public is invited.

Interim Pastor Accepts Call to Jacksonville Presbyterian Church

Jacksonville — The Rev. Robert Bridge, interim pastor at the First Presbyterian church, Jacksonville, for the past several months, has accepted the invitation of the church to remain as regular pastor.

Mrs. Bridge, former, assistant minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, Washington, D.C., was assistant minister there from 1948 until the death of the late Rev. Peter Marshall. For the following 14 months Mr. Bridge was acting pastor of the church until his retirement in 1951.

Prior to his May arrival in Oregon, Mr. Bridge had been active in church fund raising, making his home in Abilene, Texas. Mrs. and Mr. Bridge are making their home at the parsonage in Jacksonville which was renovated by the members of the church last April and May.

The Jacksonville church has been without a permanent pastor since the resignation of the Rev. Norman K. Tully, present pastor of the Central Point Presbyterian church, last December.

Medford Church Tells Meetings

Sunday Dr. D. Kirland West will bring the second in a series of sermons on prayer when he speaks on the subject "Does Prayer Change Things?" The next two Sundays will also be devoted to prayer in its different aspects.

Churchmanship classes for adults and high school students are being held each Sunday at 5 p.m. under the direction of Dr. West and will continue for the next three Sundays.

Youth worship service for combined Geneva and Westminster fellowships will be held in the Fellowship hall with Donald Hatch leading the service. Following this combined service, the Westminster fellowship will meet for its own discussion meeting. The discussion theme will be "What's Troubling You?" and will be a question and answer period with Dr. West answering the questions that have been submitted by the young people of the group. David Carter will act as vice-moderator. Fireside will be at the home of Jim Fontaine, 516 Belmont ave. Geneva fellowship will also meet for its own discussion period after the joint worship service and will be led by Loretta and Norman Gallucci in a discussion on "The Function of the Church." The Geneva fireside will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. James, 1426 Euclid ave.

Mid-week prayer fellowship will meet on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the fireplace room and will be led by Dr. West in further study of the Gospel of John.

Guest Speaker Sunday At Eastwood Baptist

The Rev. Earl R. Berg, field secretary of the Oregon Baptist convention, will be guest speaker at the Eastwood Baptist church, North Keene Way dr., at Ridgeway, Sunday at the 11 a.m. service. Presbyterian Church Topics for Sunday Told Ashland — The Rev. B. J. Holland will preach on "The Whole Gospel of Christ," Sunday at the 11 a.m. worship service at the First Presbyterian church, Ashland.

Central Point — Sermon topic, Central Point, will be "Are You Wounded?" by Dr. Norman K. Tully. The service will begin at 9:45 a.m.

Charles Anderson To Preach Sunday At First Methodist

The Rev. Charles Anderson, a Union Theological student, New York City, will speak at the First Methodist church, Sunday, at the 9:30 and the 11 a.m. services. The sermon title will be, "My Name Is Adam." The Rev. George A. Trobough, associate minister, will conduct the services.

Mr. Anderson is a graduate of the Medford High school, Willamette university, and a winner of the Danforth scholarship. Besides attending Union, Mrs. Anderson has served as a staff member of the East Harlem Protestant parish. This is work with several Protestant churches, united into one parish, and the work is coordinated through several workers.

His work was mostly of a survey, nature, working with adults, and calling. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and children are living in Medford this summer, and staying at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Anderson. They plan to return to New York this fall.

Mrs. Anderson will be soloist Sunday singing, "The Living God."

Miss Bower Joins Local Church Staff

Miss Eleanor Bower has joined the staff of the First Christian church as youth director and secretary.

Miss Bower, a native Oregonian, has had experience in religious work. She is a graduate of Burns High school and of Northwest Christian college where she received a degree in bachelor of theology in 1953.

Her father is the minister of the Church of Christ in Burns. Miss Bower comes to Medford from the St. John's Christian church in Portland where she has been choir director as well as the leader of youth groups.

She has also been active as a camp director in church summer camps.

The Rev. William C. Piper will continue his series of sermons on the Book of Job Sunday morning. His sermon title will be "God's Faith in Man."

A vocal duet will be given by C. Warren Fairbanks and Marne E. Olson. At the evening service Mr. Piper will preach on the subject "How Do We Know?"

Monday evening three meetings will be held at the church. At 7 p.m. the finance committee and the World Outreach committee will meet with the official board meeting at 8 p.m.

Vesper Service Sunday at Crater Lake

The Congregational church will hold their annual vesper service at the rim of Crater Lake Sunday at 4 p.m. if the weather permits. To locate the place of the service turn left at the Rim Village Junction and go 1.6 miles north on the west rim road. The worshippers sit on the ground looking over the lake. The brief sermon by the Rev. Thomas McCamant will be on "God's Creative Work."

The usual morning service will be held at the Congregational church in Medford. The sermon will be on "The Work of the Lord in the Lives of his People."

ELDER SPEAKER

Elder Joe Petrie will be speaker at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday at the Re-Organized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Adventist Youth Leave For Camp Umpqua Sunday

A group of Medford Seventh-day Adventist boys and girls will leave Sunday to join approximately 150 other Adventist youth from Oregon churches in a summer training camp opening Aug. 11 at Camp Umpqua, located on the grounds of Milo Academy, Milo, Ore. The camp will be divided into two sections, Aug. 11-18 for those in the 9-12 age group, and Aug. 18-25 for youth from 12-16.

The Adventist summer training camp provides not only a retreat in the out-of-doors for the youth, but also instruction in Christian living, nature lore, crafts, and sports.

The camp is organized to appeal to both boys and girls. It is subdivided into control units of seven and eight youngsters with an adult counselor in charge. Camp Umpqua's organization is based in an Indian theme, recalling the early Indian settlement of the area and each unit has the name of an Indian tribe.

A day's program begins at 6:30 a.m., and ends with a 9:30 curfew. A special attraction is the "Chapel in the Woods," an outdoor chapel among the trees with seats made from hewn logs.

This season's training camp marks the fifth annual session at Camp Umpqua according to Oregon Conference headquarters in Portland.

St. Luke's Postpones Groundbreaking

The ground breaking ceremony for the new St. Luke's Methodist church which was originally scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 11, has been postponed until Sunday, Aug. 25. The deferring action of the event was made by the Quarterly Conference of the Church, which met on Aug. 1 at the St. Luke's parsonage with the Rev. Meredith Groves, Eugene district superintendent of the Methodist church, presiding.

On this occasion, the pastor, the Rev. Melvin Dixon, announced that a more desirable parcel of land from the Dr. I. D. Phipps estate is available north of the present site on Barnett rd.

The congregation has been meeting in the Bingham Hall at the 4-H fairgrounds and will worship Sunday at 9:30 a.m. Because of the coming annual fair activities, the Aug. 18 worship service will be held at the Roosevelt school gymnasium.

Programs Set By Central Point Church

Central Point — "What is a Christian?" will be the sermon topic at the 11 a.m. worship hour Sunday at the Community Bible church, Central Point. A baptismal service will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. on the Apple gate river near the Star ranger station, according to the pastor, the Rev. Paul O. Kroon.
