Dulles Says Job of State Department Is To Look Out for U.S.

Washington — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has told Congress that his job is not to make friends for the United States.

"Not for one minute do I think the purpose of the state department is to make friends," Dulles said. "The purpose of the state department is to look out for the interests of the United States. Whether we make friends, I do not care."

Dulles made the statement June 18 at a secret session of a House Appropriations subcommittee studying the Eisenhower administration's request for $3,864,000,000 to carry on this country's foreign aid programs this year. Dulles' testimony was made public Saturday.

Under questioning by Rep.

Winfield K. Denton (D-Ind.) about the administration's "soft" loan policy toward allies, Dulles said the loans were not intended to make friends.

Making Enemies

Denton questioned whether the loans, if unpaid, would not make enemies instead of friends.

"I do not care in a lot of these cases whether they are friends or not," Dulles said. "We are doing these things because it will serve the interests of the United States."

Denton then said he understood the state department's function was to maintain friendly relations with foreign countries.

"We try to maintain friendly relations with some foreign countries; not all," Dulles said. "Do you think that that will cause hard feelings later when the soft loans come due and cannot be paid, if that is the case?" Denton asked.

"It may," Dulles replied. "But I do not care about that."

"If the making of these loans saves the country from Communism, a people, an area, the loss of which to Communism would be bad for the United States, I do not care whether they like us or hate us. We will have accomplished our purpose."

Denton then asked whether the government's purpose would be accomplished if, in the future when the loans come due, they cannot be repaid.

"I do not know," Dulles said. "That will be a problem for some other secretary of state, not me."

Second Convention of AFL-CIO Adjourned

Klamath Falls — The second annual convention of the AFL-CIO state labor council adjourned here Friday, as delegates took action on policy-making resolutions.

The delegates adopted a resolution calling for an investigation of Portland racketeer James B. Elkins, to determine if he committed perjury during recent vice trials in Portland.

A "tax credit" plan was also offered by political director George Brown, aimed at widening Oregon's tax base without the necessity of a state sales tax. Brown said a sales tax was not the answer to Oregon's tax structure. His plan was adopted for further study by labor.

The delegates, who voted 278 to 21 to keep 23 state officers and directors in office another two years, selected Roseburg as their 1958 convention city.

Family of Six Held Hostage by Robbers Armed With Pistols

Canton, Ohio — A distraught family of six, three generations, told officers Saturday of a 24-hour concentration of terror which gripped them while they were held hostage in their own home by three robbers armed with six stolen pistols.

The men earlier had robbed a grocery and seriously wounded a police officer. The robbery and shooting occurred Thursday afternoon and the robbers picked the home at "random" for a hideout.

A neighbor noticed a strange car in the garage Friday afternoon. Officers, checking the home Friday evening, saw a child held at gunpoint. They retreated and called for assistance. In two hours the house was ringed by 100 officers. The trio surrendered.

Fleeing Robbery

The three who invaded the occupied home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Fenstermaker were fleeing the $400 robbery of a market and the shooting of Patrolman Harris Lillie, 44, of nearby Louisville.

Mrs. Fenstermaker said that several times during the period, members of the family answered the telephone or the door — with a gun a few inches away. "Each time they told us, 'be careful what you say or you won't talk any more.'"

Once 12-year-old Dale Fenstermaker was called outside to be paid by a neighbor for some chores. When he returned, one robber gave him 50 cents for "being a good boy." In all, three persons came to the home without realizing anything was amiss.

Mrs. Fenstermaker said nervously that we can laugh at some of the things that happened now, but they weren't funny at the time. The suspense was terrible."

Decide To Surrender

She said that the three men decided to surrender in the face of a tear gas attack. "They tossed a large roll of bills to my daughter and said it was 'for the trouble we've caused you.'"

The robbers will not be formally charged until Lillie wins or loses his fight for life. He was "improving" at Mercy hospital, following surgery for a gunshot wound in the abdomen.

Flushed from the house they had "occupied" in their flight from crime were Walter Joseph

Miller, 28, Los Angeles; William Rhodes, 25, Anderson, Ind.; and Robert Llewellyn Kline, 25, of Phoenix, Ariz. They said they met in the Army at Ft. Ord, Calif., and "came east for a good time."

They admitted robbing the Fairhope grocery. Deputies said Miller blamed Kline for the "accidental" shooting of the Louisville officer.

Brush, Timber Fire Blackens 900 Acres

Wrightwood, Calif. — Some 750 fire fighters Saturday controlled all but a small portion of a brush and timber fire which has blackened about 900 acres, mostly in the Angeles National forest, the U. S. forest service reported.

Six summer cabins were destroyed Friday after the fire sprang up near the YMCA boys' camp in the Big Pines area.

Forest Service Assistant Administrative officer Bill Dierx said no other structures had been destroyed or endangered. He said there were many summer camps in the Big Pines area but that none of them had been in danger.

Firefighters predicted complete control of the blaze by 6 a.m. today. A small portion remained uncontrolled on the north side. About 750 acres were blackened in the forest area and 150 in Los Angeles county territory, authorities said. Los Angeles county contributed about 200 of the fire fighters.

Dierx said the forest service urged hunters to keep out of the Big Pines area because of the large amount of fire equipment using the roads. He said the Big Pines highway to Valeremo was closed because of fire equipment.

Another Southern California brush fire was controlled today after burning over 650 acres five miles east of Riverside.

Explosion Rocks Rocket Fuel Plant

Sacramento — An explosion that could be heard in a four-mile radius rocked the Aerojet Corporation's solid rocket fuel plant at Nimbus Saturday, but only one employee was hurt.

Plant manager Elmer Nelson said the blast occurred in a mixing station on assembly line three and was "accidental." He said the building housing the station was pretty badly damaged by fire touched off by the blast.

A single fire truck from the Mills, Calif., department was at the scene. It had the flames well under control, although traces of smoke from a huge black cloud over the plant site still hung in the air.

Nelson identified the injured man as D. Enzler, who sustained a back injury.

The dispatcher at the Mills department said he heard the explosion at home, four miles from the plant. And the Sacramento county sheriff's office was flooded with calls complaining of the noise.

The plant itself was comparatively empty, as operations are slowed down on Saturday. Aerojet makes rocket engines and fuels for the government.
