Clair Engle Asks Seaton for Full Report on Use of Colorado Water

By VERNON BAKER
United Press Correspondent
San Francisco (AP)—Rep. Clair Engle (D-Calif.) has asked Secretary of Interior Fred Seaton to provide him with a full report of "unlawful water uses along the lower Colorado River."

It was also learned that Engle plans to hold hearings in southern California after the adjournment of Congress on the Colorado river "squatter" situation. Meanwhile, in the Colorado river suit, David E. Warner, attorney for the United States, warned that if the court attempts to curtail the government's Indian case, the U.S. will ask to withdraw. Warner said the case would then fail "for lack of an indispensable party."

Engle Is Concerned
Engle, in a July 12 letter to Seaton released Saturday by the Colorado River Board of California, said that he was "very much concerned that there seems to be very little progress being made toward resolving the serious problem of unlawful land and water use along the lower Colorado river."

Engle, chairman of the House Interior committee, wrote that he "was somewhat surprised that the problem of illegal water use was not given more attention" by the interior department.

Engle was referring to a complaint by California that "squatters" along the lower reaches of the Colorado river, between Laguna dam and Yuma, Ariz., were illegally pumping water from the Colorado river. In particular the complaint concerned "squatters" in the Cibola valley.

Engle Wants Report
The California congressman said, however, that Undersecretary of Interior Hatfield Chilson "did state that he recognized that this would probably be a most difficult problem to resolve."

Engle told Seaton that he would appreciate an "up-to-date report on unlawful water uses along the lower Colorado river, particularly for irrigation," so that his interior committee "may properly appraise this problem."

Seaton was asked for "detailed data as to diversion and use of water by individuals or units, together with maps showing the location of the individual areas or parcels irrigated."

Hearing To Be Set
In a letter to Raymond Mathews, engineer for the California board, Engle said a date for the southern California hearings ard W. Schwahn and Dr. John R. McLaughlin.

The new clinic building is dedicated to the late Dr. Robert W. Sleeter, an originator of the group and staff member until his death two years ago.

Paul Hayden Kirk, Seattle architect, designed the structure. Jack Edson, Medford, supervised architectural work, and Dwight L. Seely was general contractor. Landscaping is to be done by Mrs. Mary Lorish, Medford, and C. E. Corry, Ashland.

I WAS HOPPING MAD..

when Nancy's sweater came home from the cleaners shrunk and faded... I was so angry and worried because it was her best school sweater and buying new clothes just wasn't in our budget...

BUT THEN...

I heard of the Amazing NEW 2 BATH SYSTEM

Used by the Central Point CLEANERS

So, I sent her other sweater to try this amazing 2-bath system. That evening it came back in a transparent plastic bag looking JUST LIKE NEW!

NOW

I wouldn't send my clothes anywhere else because they even measure clothes before and after cleaning for you to prove they don't shrink... AND, BEST OF ALL, they use a 4 1/2% soap detergent in their cleaning solution which cleans twice as quick and doesn't give the clothing the beating that most other methods do. For me it's CENTRAL POINT CLEANERS

Pendleton Grain Elevator Destroyed

Pendleton (AP)—Fire roared through the Fulton grain elevator nine miles north of Pendleton today, destroying wheat and barley worth more than half a million dollars.

Officials of the Pendleton Grain Growers co-operative which owns the elevator, said the fire might smoulder for three months. Efforts were concentrated on protecting a barley storage elevator near the burning elevators which contains 100,000 bushels of barley.

In the three sections on fire were 250,000 bushels of wheat and 100,000 bushels of barley. There was little water in the area, and firefighters depended largely on chemicals to fight the flames, still raging out of control in the three-section area. Two sections of the end elevator have collapsed and the middle section has folded in on top of a mountain of wheat and barley. The spilled grain from the elevators puffed and mounted higher than the elevators themselves.

Several grain dust explosions spread the fire, making it virtually impossible for the firefighters to save the sections of the elevator already ablaze.

The same elevator burned in 1934. The blaze today was discovered by a farm boy about 12:30 a.m. as he was returning home from the Umatilla county fair at Hermiston. Cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

He told attorneys to "get together" over the week end to attempt to arrive at some workable solution to the problem.
