The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Doris D.—My brother should revive those old embers.

Donald F.—She would turn me down on sight.

Doris D.—My brother is a bachelor, close to 40, and I think it is high time he took the plunge. If only he would listen to my advice!

About 15 years ago he had a brief romance with a very good friend of mine. I was sure they would marry, but at the last moment a regular Don Juan walked into the picture and swept her off her feet. Donald was so heartbroken he wouldn't even look at another girl for years.

I have corresponded through the years with the girl who walked out on Donald. I never blamed Stella because I felt she was the victim of a very unscrupulous man. Well, it's taken her 15 years to find out about him. Now she tells me they have separated. I felt there was a hint in her letter that she could still be interested in Donald. I think he should plan a visit to her city and revive those old embers.

• • •

Donald F.—The idea Stella could still be interested in me is just plain ridiculous. If I couldn't charm her 15 years ago, how can I do it when I'm bald, fat—and none too successful either.

Stella now has three children, but she is still a beautiful woman. I know because I've seen her picture. She doesn't need me.

My sister is kind enough to think I am sort of a prize any woman ought to be grateful to have. But I'm afraid she's the one woman in the world who has this idea. If I confronted Stella now, she would turn me down on sight.

The way I look at it, a guy who remains a bachelor until 40 is pretty much set for life. Doris is just creating an embarrassing situation for all of us by bringing up my name to Stella, as I know she has done. If Stella wanted to see me, she knows where to reach me. The whole thing is silly.

• • •

The Council: We can't go along with Donald that "the whole thing is silly." Only some of it is silly.

The silliest thing is the attitude of both Doris and Donald that Stella, an ancient flame, the mother of three children, and a woman not even legally free to marry, is Donald's one hope out of his bachelorhood. Donald denies there is even this hope, but he reveals that he requires only a little morale boosting to go flying off to Stella and throw himself at her feet.

Another silly thing is Donald's feeling that because he is bald, fat, 40 and none too successful, he wouldn't be "a prize" for some woman and a nice one at that. From his statement we'd guess Donald's one really serious fault is his utter lack of confidence in himself—even worse, his positive disparagement of himself.

Donald should recognize we are all, in a sense, salesmen of ourselves. Nobody wants what the salesman says is no good. Donald should take a good objective look at himself. Aside from the fact he is probably not as bald, as fat and as unsuccessful as he tells himself, he very likely has fine qualities, generous impulses, interesting thoughts and a capacity for love. These alone would make some woman grateful to have him.

Doctors Race Against Time To Save Girl

Boston — (AP) — Doctors raced against time today with medical tests on 14-year-old twin sisters to learn whether a delicate kidney transplant operation can save one of the girls from death.

The sisters, Delores and Doris Huskey of Desota, Mo., were flown to Boston Thursday aboard a special Air Force plane, arranged for by Gen. Curtis Lemay.

Doctors said that Delores has acute nephritis, a rare kidney disease which usually proves fatal within a few months. She does not have the function of either organ.

In the transplant, the physicians would remove a healthy kidney from Doris and place it in her twin. The surgery has been performed successfully four times previously but only on identical twins.

The thorough medical tests will determine whether the girls are really identical or only fraternal twins.

Officer Finds Cat; Disturbs Bee Hive

St. Louis, Mo. — (AP) — Humane officer Lonzo Roberts got his lumps searched for a missing cat.

Roberts' search Thursday took him to a water-filled quarry where he painstakingly lowered himself to a ledge 150 feet above the water.

While poking about he disturbed a bee hive and was stung four times before he could retreat.

But his efforts appeared rewarded when he spotted a cat on the other side of the quarry on a ledge.

Shedding his clothes, Roberts swam across, and floated the cat to safety on a log.

He returned with his prize, only to find out it was the wrong cat.

Train Has Run-In With Light Airplane

Corona, Calif. — (AP) — A speeding freight train literally had a run in with an airplane Thursday.

Rookie pilot Gene Maxwell brought a two-place Luscombe in for a practice landing at a private field. The plane struck a tree, sheared off a telephone pole, turned a cartwheel and came to rest on the Santa Fe railroad tracks bordering the field.

Maxwell climbed out of the cockpit unhurt. But a speeding train struck the plane and carried the craft a mile and a half on the cowcatcher before the engineer managed to bring it to a halt.

Coal-Dust Explosion Kills One Workman

Jersey City, N.J.—(AP)—A coal-dust explosion ripped through a spice-milling factory Thursday, killing one man and injuring 15 other persons.

The dead man was 53-year-old John Solokowski, of Jersey City, who was milling charcoal on the third floor of the Walter C. Gregory Corp., building when the blast occurred.

Acting Fire Chief Jules Resslard said an "accumulation of dust" around the milling apparatus touched off the blast, which ignited a three-alarm fire that raged for an hour before it was controlled.

More farmers lose their lives from accidents during haying than during the harvesting of any other crop.
