OBLIGING FELLOW

Las Vegas, Nev.—A Veteran laugh-getter Joe E. Lewis at the recent world's premiere of his life story, "The Joker Is Wild," quipped to the movie audience: "If I had thought you were going to eulogize me this much I'd have done the decent thing and died first."

Police Fingerprint Experts Identify Mutilated Body

Chicago—Police fingerprint experts have positively identified a mutilated body found in Lake Michigan as that of missing 15-year-old Judith Mae Andersen.

The girl, who disappeared 10 days ago, had been shot in the head and her butchered corpse stuffed into two oil drums. Her torso and legs were found in a drum floating in a Lake Michigan harbor last Thursday. Her head and arms were found floating in another oil container Saturday.

The identification, from a fingerprint taken from a religious picture in Judith Mae's home, shattered the family's hopes that the girl might still be alive.

Deputy Chief of Detectives Howard Pierson informed the girl's father, Ralph Andersen of the identification Sunday night, climaxing seven hours of painstaking research by Oscar Benke, bureau of identification technician.

Authorities continued a house-to-house search of the Andersen's middle class West Side neighborhood, concentrating on workshops, garages and filling stations where oil drums are located.

Medical authorities estimated Judith Mae had been dead two to three days before her torso was found. That left a gap of from one to three days between the time she disappeared Aug. 16 and the discovery of the body.

Authorities speculated she may have been kidnapped and held prisoner for a time before being shot by a small caliber pistol and her body dismembered.
