Experts Say Potent Chemical Revives Diseased Plants

Stanford, Calif. — Scientists reported Thursday on experiments with a potent new chemical that revives diseased plants and causes potatoes to sprout one or two weeks early.

This chemical is gibberellin, made from a fungus called gibberella fujikuroi. In amounts of one millionth of an ounce in an ounce of water, it makes some plants grow three times taller than untreated ones in just a few weeks.

Researchers at the University of California's agricultural school at Davis said that seed potatoes given a five-minute bath in a gibberellin solution "can shake off their usual rest period and begin to sprout one or two weeks early."

But so potent is the chemical, said researchers Lawrence Rapaport, Herman Timm and Laverne Lippett, that direct treatment of the tubers may not be necessary.

They told the American Institute of Biological Sciences that gibberellin sprays applied to plant foliage as much as seven weeks before harvest can break the dormancy for many of the potatoes grown on the treated plants.

This discovery may prove to be important in California and other potato growing states. Potato production is a year-round operation in California and newly-dug immature potatoes are used as seed for the next crop. However, such seed, because it is usually dormant after digging, often produces erratic stands and decreased crop yields.

Applied to Corn
Earlier this week, Dr. Karl Maramorosch of the Rockefeller Institute in New York reported he applied gibberellin acid to corn plants, asters and clover severely stunted by virus diseases.

"When gibberellin acid was sprayed at 100 parts per million on the leaves of diseased plants," he said, "and this treatment was repeated twice at weekly intervals, a striking response was obtained."

Maramorosch said the stems and leafstalks became strong and erect, elongating themselves at least twice as much.

"Stunting could thus be overcome to a considerable degree, although the plants retained other signs of virus infection," he said.

HORN BROOK Residents Attend Camp

By MRS. H. H. CHAPMAN
Hornbrook — Hornbrook Bible church is well represented at this week's Youth Conference Camp at Lake of the Woods.

Those attending are the Rev. Gordon Titus, pastor, Mrs. Titus and their three children, Tommy, Watt, Gary, McMaster, George Chadwick, and McDaniel Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bear returned Tuesday evening from an 11-day trip through Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. In Reno they visited Mr. and Mrs. Milo Dille and daughter, Betty, former Hornbrook residents. They visited the Mormon Temple and Tabernacle and other points of interest in Salt Lake City. In Seattle, Auburn and Tacoma they visited relatives and friends and also attended to some business in connection with their properties there.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cerwinsky of Sacramento, Calif., were visitors Monday and Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cummins. Mrs. Cerwinsky and Mrs. Cummins are cousins.

Mrs. Margaret Jane Hoxie of Ashland, who died in a Medford hospital last Saturday at the age of 90, was a resident of Hornbrook for several years. She and her late husband, Charles A. Hoxie, lived here at the time their son, George, made his home here in the Henley district.

New Development In Welding Told

Chicago — A new development in arc welding has been announced by National Cylinder Gas company.

The new process is called Dual Shield, and the manufacturers expect it to have a "significant impact" on industries concerned with welding steel.

Dual Shield is three to 12 times faster than manual "stick electrode" welding and about 33 per cent faster than semi-automatic methods, the makers said.

Fourteen and one-half pounds of weld metal an hour can be deposited with this new instrument, compared with three and one-half per hour by average welders.

The depth of penetration is greater than other processes, the manufacturers added, and therefore gives stronger welds.

The Dual Shield arc is at least 1,000 degrees hotter than the average 9,000-degree welding arc of other welding equipment.

The new welder, the manufacturers reported deposits more than 99 per cent of its metal weld in the job, compared with 75 to 80 per cent deposited in manual welding.

Dual Shield was described as the first "economical and effective combination" of flux-cored electrode and shielding gas for mild steel welding, and the first successful flux core electrode for welding steel.

All the continents could be placed in the Pacific Ocean and there would still be room for another the size of Asia.
