Faulty Mechanism Blamed in Misfire

El Centro, Calif. — A Navy board of inquiry Thursday blamed a "faulty firing mechanism" on a jet plane for sending a cannon shell ripping through a hangar at El Centro Navy auxiliary air station, resulting in the death of two enlisted men.

The accident occurred Wednesday as the FJ3 Fury jet plane prepared to take off on a gunnery mission. The plane's 20 millimeter cannon without warning discharged the shell.

The shell hit one of the sailors 50 feet from the plane, ripped through the hangar wall and struck the second victim in the stomach. Pieces of the non-explosive type shell also nicked a third man.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin. The Navy also withheld the name of the jet pilot.

Navy officials said the pilot had been cleared of any blame in the mishap. They said an investigation revealed that a mechanical "error" caused the can-

Case Collapses in Call-Girl Hearing

Portland — Prosecution's case against an accused call-girl ring here collapsed for the second time Wednesday when the star witness suddenly refused to testify.

Stella Green, a professed ex-prostitute whose statements were responsible for original indictments against seven persons, fell silent in the midst of her testimony and could not be prevailed upon to continue her disclosures.

A first batch of indictments in the case had to be dismissed earlier when Miss Green disappeared saying she wanted to start her life anew as a wife and mother. She later reappeared and new indictments were returned.

The first trial on the charges opened in the court of Judge Frank J. Loneragan. Miss Green at first talked freely and then appeared ill and halted her testimony.

Defendant in the trial was Emil McFerron, 30, a cab driver.
