

Feeding the Family

By ZOLA VINCENT
Food Editor

If you've thought only of times as a beverage ingredient, you've been missing something good. Limes add flavor interest to canapés, spreads, cause guests to ask "what did you do to make these taste so good?"

Anchovy Butter. Combine one-quarter cup butter with one tablespoon anchovy paste, two tablespoons lime juice and a dash of paprika.

Chives Butter. Combine one-quarter cup butter with 1½ tablespoons finely minced chives and 1½ tablespoons lime juice.

Lime Butter. Combine one-quarter cup butter with 3 tablespoons lime juice, one-quarter teaspoon grated rind.

Parsley Butter. Combine one-quarter cup butter, two tablespoons finely chopped watercress, 1½ tablespoons lime juice and a few drops of worcestershire sauce.

Herbed Halibut

Here's a fish story family will like. Choose two pounds halibut steaks or fillets, either fresh or frozen. Herbs will transpire them into a gourmet's delight. Arrange fish on well greased grill. Mix two tablespoons melted butter or margarine, juice of one lemon, dash of cayenne pepper. Take your choice of one-eighth teaspoon thyme, rosemary, basil or sage or one-quarter teaspoon chili powder or one-quarter teaspoon curry powder or one-quarter teaspoon paprika or one-quarter teaspoon celery or garlic salt. Add to butter and lemon juice; spread over fish.

Preheat broiler. Broil under moderate heat placing fish about two inches below heat. Cook in about 10 minutes. Be careful as always with fish, not to overcook.

Or you can oven broil these in 400 degree oven, uncovered the first 15 minutes, then cover with lid or aluminum foil for another 5 to 10 minutes. Tartar sauce is good with this.

Baked Eggplant

Eggplant, a member of the potato family, has been grown since remote antiquity. Available all year, eggplant is most abundant right now. You're missing a treat if you do not make this a menu item occasionally. For a dish with zest, proceed like this:

- 1 large eggplant
 - ¾ cup flour
 - Salt and pepper
 - 1 teaspoon paprika
 - 2 eggs, slightly beaten
 - 2/3 cup olive or salad oil
 - 2 medium onions, chopped
 - 1 medium green pepper, diced
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 2 cups (303 can) tomatoes
 - ¼ cup tomato paste
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - ¼ teaspoon black pepper
 - 1½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Lime Gives Distinction
Peel and slice eggplant one-quarter inch thick. Dip slices in flour seasoned with salt, pepper and paprika. Dip in beaten eggs and then in flour again. Fry in one-half cup salad oil until brown on both sides. Saute onions, green pepper and garlic in remaining salad oil until onions are limp. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, salt and pepper and simmer 10 minutes. Arrange alternate layers of eggplant and sauce in a two-quart casserole, sprinkling each layer with Parmesan cheese and having sauce as top layer.

Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake in preheated moderate, 350 degree, oven for 30 minutes. Eight servings. Family will come back for more.

Pear Gingerbread

This is really pear-topped gingerbread but that was a little long for the headline. Make gingerbread according to favorite recipe or one of the popular mixes. Bake and cut gingerbread into individual servings.

Place a fresh or canned pear half on each gingerbread square. Pour a hot lemon sauce over each portion. One of those in-between puddings makes a good sauce for almost any cake and fruit combination, by the way.

September Harvest Fills Bins

Melons by the million roll to markets as melon growers harvest cantaloupes, casabas, cranshaws, honeydews, Persians and watermelons. We should warn you that cantaloupes and watermelons are slackening off so you'd best enjoy them now at very reasonable prices. Cranshaws are pretty wonderful but not likely to be bargain-priced because the variety is new, production comparatively low. They're very perishable and come in such big sizes, averaging six to eight pounds, that many markets are offering cellophane wrapped halves. We recommend them as genuine treat. Chill, slice in any preferred way, peel and provide plenty of lemon and/or lime wedges alongside. Salt and pepper, of course.

Fruit Buys. Peach supplies have passed their peak but will be around for a while. Nectarine best buys are in the medium sizes. Luscious Bartlett pears are fine eaten out-of-hand or try halving, coring and baking them quickly in orange juice with spice sprinkle. Many grape varieties in market with Thompson seedless and Muscates piled highest. Enjoy Gravenstein apples now. Their season is short.

There are plums and Italian prunes, a few berries, small size oranges, lemons, limes and how about fresh figs for a change?

Vegetable Buys. Vegetable displays are a joy. Think of one and you're likely to find it. Artichokes, beans, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, corn, cucumbers, lettuce in several varieties, bunched green onions and radishes, eggplant, Bell peppers, tomatoes, squash varieties, tomatoes, onions, spinach.

Poultry and Meat. Frying chickens are a bargain and so are turkeys. Watch ads and market displays. If you've a home freezer, put in a few months supply. Beef prices are a bit lower. Lamb and pork remain same. Veal is higher. Frankfurters, hamburger, cold cuts and canned luncheon meats are budget savers.

Fish and Shellfish markets offer fine variety, both fresh and frozen. Look them over. Try something different. Canned tuna, salmon and sardines are versatile, economical.

Dairy Products. American (good old cheddar) cheese is plentiful, reasonably priced. Get out your favorite macaroni, soufflé, fondue or other cheese recipe. Cottage cheese is fine value.

Amphibious Jeep Reaches Anchorage

Anchorage—The amphibious jeep "Half-Safe" arrived here from Homer, Alaska, Wednesday and skipper Ben Carlin said his vehicle left the water for good at Kenai, 120 miles southwest of Anchorage.

Carlin, 45, of Montreal, Canada, made the trip from Homer in a little more than two days. He has now logged almost 10,000 nautical miles by sea and some 27,000 miles on land. He has only to drive across North America to complete his around-the-world journey in the Half-Safe.

The skipper and his crewman, Boyd De Mente, 28, Phoenix, Ariz., said they would remain here about two weeks before starting down the Alaska Highway. Carlin said the jeep needed extensive maintenance and re-fitting.

REFUGEES USE CASTLE

Copenhagen, Denmark—Sixty-seven Polish refugees who "jumped ship" when the Polish liner Batory docked here two weeks ago, settled down today in a castle in the suburbs. Mrs. Dagny Plum put her castle at the refugee's disposal while they await permission to emigrate.

More than 50 million tons of bituminous coal were moved over the Great Lakes during the 1953 shipping season.

Council Authorizes Contract With Engineering Consultant

Contracts with a Corvallis engineering firm and with insurance and medical service companies were approved by the city council last night.

The contracts for engineering services were with Cornell, Howard, Hayes and Merryfield, which submitted the best offer for designing and preparing plans and specifications for a sanitary sewer system in the Kenwood - Grandview district which was annexed to the city recently.

The city administration recommended obtaining the firm because use of topographical aerial maps with two-foot contour intervals presents a new engineering approach, and because the city department is pressed with other work, City Manager Robert Duff said.

Start About Sept. 15
He added that the firm can start work about Sept. 15, and complete its work by about Nov. 15. A tentative cost of $7,500 for the work is estimated by the engineering department.

Contracts for life insurance and medical service for city employees also were approved.

City officials recommended West Coast Life Insurance company provide insurance from Sept. 5, 1957, to Aug. 31, 1958; Rogue Valley Physicians service provide basic medical service for employee and dependent medical service between Sept. 5, 1957, and Aug. 31, 1958; and Equitable Life Assurance company for major medical during the same period of time.

The council postponed action on the dedication of 10th st. between Central and Riverside aves. until after the council approves the property. Improvements to the street would cost about $9,000, Duff estimated.

Asphalt Pavement
The dedication involves the Sears, Roebuck and company property. The ordinance accepting the easement and dedication provides that curbs, gutters and asphalt pavement be installed within a year.

Medford Irrigation district property, including a new office building, shop and yards on Barnett rd. was annexed after a public hearing in which no objections were voiced.

Bids for construction of a sanitary sewer on Woodlawn drive will be opened at 11 a.m. Monday, Sept. 16, in the city council chambers. The council also adopted an ordinance levying assessments for a sanitary sewer in the Verde Hills area.

Authorize Sewer
The council authorized a sanitary sewer on Woodlawn drive after a continued public hearing. The assessment method determined by the council will be on the basis of one-half connection charge and one-half on a square foot basis. The engineering department has estimated that the one-half connection basis will be $146.6129 and one-half on square foot will be .0075994 cents per square foot.

The council authorized a quit claim deed to W. E. Thomas to correct an error made in the description of property when it was sold to Thomas by the city in 1946.

In other action, the council adopted an ordinance amending the sewer connection ordinance.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The "family council" does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Rose T.—My husband is in cahoots with my mother.

Matthew T.—She's a wonderful woman.

Rose T.—My mother wants to run my life and the worst of it is that my husband is in cahoots with her. In fact, I sometimes wonder whether he married me for myself or to have her for a mother-in-law.

Whatever plans we make, my husband always says, "Maybe we better ask Mother first, hon." Considering that we've been married eight years, I should think we can make out by ourselves. We have four children and I want to have more because I always wanted a big family. Imagine how I felt when Matt came home one day and said, "I've been talking to Mother, hon, and she thinks our family is plenty big already. Isn't it time to call it quits?"

That really capped the climax as far as I'm concerned. For years I've been hearing Mother this and Mother that, but when she decides to dictate the size of my family, and my husband goes along with her, that's the end.

Matthew T.—From the beginning of our marriage Rose seemed to resent the fact that her mother and I got along so well. She seemed to expect us to fight. Before I met her mother, Rose said that she was a narrow-minded, domineering woman who didn't know how to get along with people.

Well, I sure was surprised to see a charming, generous, sensible woman. My own mother died when I was 10, so it meant a lot to me to have such a nice mother-in-law. Rose was just 18 when we were married and I was only 21, so we were really babes in the woods and I appreciated all the good advice we got from her.

I don't think Rose's mother wants to run anyone's life. She just wants to see us happy. She isn't dictating — only making suggestions. She realizes that my income isn't ever going to be very high and things can get pretty tough when you have a real big family.

The Council: It's easy to see how it happened, but Matthew was foolish to let himself get caught in the middle of this mother-daughter conflict. Rose may be very wrong about her mother, but Rose is the woman Matthew is living with, the one he must please. He certainly couldn't expect her to be delighted by his joining forces with her arch rival.

Unfortunately, Matt lost a good opportunity to pour oil on these troubled waters. With a little tact, he could have assured Rose that while she was tops in her sex, her mother wasn't a bad sort either. Rose needed that kind of assurance.

Rose is now mature enough, however, to take her husband's attachment to her mother with a grain of humor. She also ought to realize that her own hostility causes her mother to seek contact with her through Matthew. In other words, if her mother could talk to her directly, without fear of angry retorts, she would be less inclined to get into "cahoots" with Matthew.

On the other hand, Matthew should recognize that his over-dependence on his mother-in-law has led to her to intrude herself too far into the marital picture. Since Matthew and Rose are no longer the youngsters they were eight years ago, it is high time for him to start gently dissolving the too-close tie. He should leave it to Rose to decide when to get advice from her mother.

Kelly Loe, Veteran Labor Leader, Dies

Portland—Kelly Loe, 76-year-old veteran Oregon labor leader and former newspaperman, died Wednesday after a brief illness.

For 20 years Loe had been associated with labor and had worked on various civic commissions.

Loe retired in 1954 from his position as assistant secretary and public relations director of the Oregon State Federation of Labor.

He was the author of one book and co-authored a book with Richard L. Neuberger, now a U. S. Senator, "An Army of the Aged," a critical account of the Townsend pension plan.

Loe is survived by three daughters and three grandchildren.

The ordinance amends connection charges. Pre-qualification statements from E and W Construction company, Everett M. Den Herder, Phoenix-Matthews, Inc., Riverside Construction company, Keith Brothers Construction company, and Hamilton and Thoms of Eugene were accepted by the council.

Request Granted
A request from B. N. Ellis for additional driveways at the southeast corner of Crater Lake ave. and Spring st. for a service station was granted.

An ordinance authorizing a variance in set back regulations will be considered at the council's next meeting after it voted 4-3 to adopt the ordinance last night. Unless there is a three-fourths majority vote in favor of an ordinance when it is first presented, the ordinance is reconsidered at the next regular meeting.

The variance was recommended by the planning commission and requested by George Field for a proposed service station at the corner of Crater Lake highway and Delta Waters rd.

Quotes From the News

BY UNITED PRESS
Newport, R.I.—President Eisenhower, commenting on his poor golf game at the Newport Country club Thursday:

"It takes a little time to get my joints limbered up."

Cincinnati—Art Fowler, Cincinnati Redlegs pitcher ordered shipped back to the minors:
"If I can't make the Red's pitching staff, then I'd better quit baseball."

Las Vegas—Jayne Mansfield, who after losing a mink stole was promised a full length mink coat by a hotel if the stole is not found:
"If I weren't a law-abiding citizen I'd almost wish the police didn't find the stole."

Washington—Chairman John McClellan of the Senate Rackets committee, on New York labor racketeer Johnny Dio's fine and two-year prison sentence for labor shakedowns:
"It is gratifying to know that the law can reach these crooks, convict them and make them serve their sentence."

London—A Soviet disarmament delegation spokesman, on the East-West disarmament conference that broke up in deadlock Thursday:
"The disarmament subcommittee has finished its mandate and ended its work in failure."

Consumers Beat Ike To Punch in Appeal For Careful Spending

The American consumer has beaten President Eisenhower to the punch in his appeal for discriminate buying to help combat inflation.

That was the opinion of merchants in all parts of the nation contacted in a United Press survey.

The President, in a news conference Tuesday, urged the public to spend more carefully and try to save money as a safeguard against greater inflation.

But big city store managers and owners were almost unanimous in their opinion that buyers already are more cautious in their spending habits.

Spend on Recreation
They reported only a moderate increase in sales of luxury items, largely among the so-called middle-middle and upper-middle classes who are spending more on recreation goods like hi-fi sets and marine equipment.

Then, too, some merchants pointed out there's a question of semantics involved — what's a luxury item?

A spokesman for Kaufmann's department store in Pittsburgh recalled that not too many years ago women regarded an automatic washer and dryer as a longed-for luxury. Today, many women regard these items as essentials.

At Denver, Joseph Ross, manager of Daniels & Fisher department store, said he was "not qualified" to determine whether customers were buying luxuries or essentials.

'Confounded' by Statement
"A $49 dress is a necessity to one customer, but a luxury to another," he said.

Fund Raising Starts For Special Election

Cave Junction — At the kick-off breakfast for the Illinois Valley Irrigation district fund raising drive this week the Illinois Valley Chamber of Commerce through its president, James McDermott, announced a contribution of $300 toward expenses of a special election.

Some five years ago, when former Illinois Valley News publisher Richard Pinkerton was president of the Chamber, he urged that a fund be set aside each year toward the then nebulous irrigation district. Because of his foresight and the cooperation of officers who followed, the chamber had nearly $500 saved when an irrigation district vote was proposed for this year.

Of this, about $150 was spent in preparing maps for use in canvassing landowners within the boundaries of the district.

American railroads in the past 30 years have earned a 6 per cent return in only one year which was in 1942 and in 13 of those years the return has been less than 3 per cent.

Nothing New Found to Create Interest in Wall Street Market

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor
New York—The bull to the bear: "Find one thing in all Wall Street that's new against this market."

Said the bear to the bull: "Find one thing in all Wall Street to generate a real enthusiasm for this market."

There you have the gist of the argument going on in the financial district.

Look at the adverse items — tight money, profit pinch, cutbacks in defense spending, declines in metal prices, new Communist threats along in the Middle East, and a high plateau for industry.

Those things have been around so long everyone knows them by heart.

Now what's on the favorable side of the market — no speculation, accounts well margined with the market practically on a cash basis, real investors holding stocks, rising steel operations, outlook for a big year for autos, outlook for more housing

There could be a new leadership in the market, Tabell notes. This might come, he says, in such groups as food chains, retail stores, drugs, cans, baking, finance, farm machinery, cement, glass, and automobiles. These, he said, may take over temporarily from the capital goods issues.

Illinois Valley High Offering Latin Class

Cave Junction—A course in Latin, the first foreign language ever offered at the Illinois Valley High school, was started this week with Mrs. Eulah Shawhan as instructor.

Mrs. Shawhan, who came to the Josephine county school system from southern California, taught Latin at Long Beach High school last year. She will have four classes in English, one in Latin.

The decision to add a foreign language to the curriculum was made because of a drop in enrollment, and because a qualified teacher was available.

Olympia — About 120 delegates from the United States and Hawaii are expected to attend the 35th annual meeting of the Association of State Foresters Sept. 11-13 at Longview, Wash.
