

Women Attend Church Session In Grants Pass

A delegation of members from First Methodist and St. Luke's Methodist churches of Medford attended the Rogue sub-district meeting of Women's Societies of Christian Service held recently in Grants Pass at Newman Methodist church.

Mrs. Melvin Dixon of St. Luke's church conducted the opening worship service and Dr. Meredith Groves, Eugene district superintendent, spoke during the morning.

The Rev. William Bray, missionary to Japan and now on furlough, told of his work in the schools of Japan and of the great need for more schools in that country.

Study books which the societies will use this year and supplementary materials were discussed by district officers. Mrs. Glenn Roberts, district secretary of literature and publications, had materials on display.

Miss Annette Gray, president of Ruth Esther Wesleyan Service guild in Medford, spoke about the function of the guild.

The society from Immanuel Methodist church in Cave Junction invited the group to hold the spring meeting in Cave Junction. Mrs. Larry Watson, Eugene district president, announced that the goal for attendance at this meeting would be 25 per cent of the membership of each local society.

Mrs. John Poage, Medford, closed the seminar with worship and benediction.

New Household Tape Has Two Sticky Sides

New York—A new household tape is sticky on both sides. It can be used to restore stamps or envelopes without mullage, to hold snapshots in albums or secure recipes, hold innersoles or hat linings which have pulled loose, or for sealing gift packages invisibly. The tape was made possible, the manufacturer reported, by development of two adhesives which won't stick to each other.

Emphasis On Stripes For Men

New York—A preview of the fall fashions in men's clothing makes it obvious that the men are out to capture at least part of the spotlight from the distaff side of the fashion picture. With new ideas, new silhouettes, new fabrics, new colors, the stylists are apparently determined to make the American male look like a plutocrat—regardless of his bank balance.

The big emphasis is on "easy elegance," combining the type of tailoring, colors, patterns and fabrics which all add up to what designers quite frankly call "gentleman's clothes." It may not be just a coincidence that this trend closely follows the same feeling in milady's apparel for fall.

Colors will be medium to dark with the interest in new patterns and interesting use of color in traditional patterns. Stripes are everywhere—in tailored clothes and sportswear and in every variety imaginable. Multi-colored stripes give a new and smart note in some of the business suits for the man who likes a touch of brightness.

Tweeds and flannels are due for greater popularity in men's clothing even as the same story is repeated in women's fashion news.

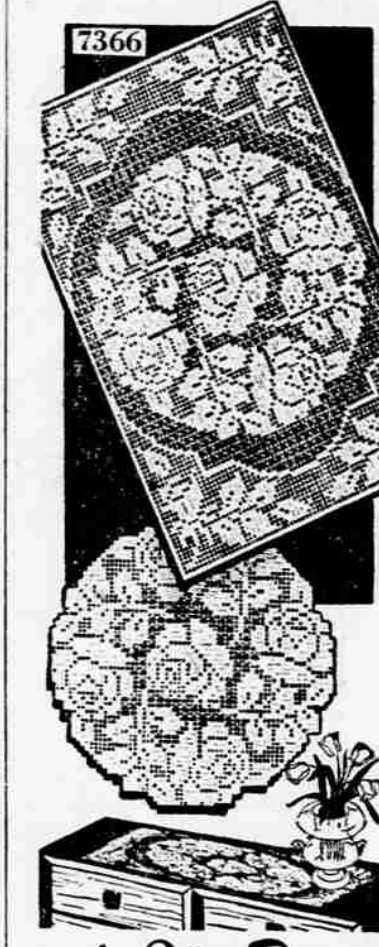

There is a big emphasis on the elegance of special fabrics. Blends with silk will carry a lot of their summertime popularity over to the new fall weights. This reaching for the "something special" in the fall clothes has inspired H. Daroff & Sons, one of the biggest popular price houses, to bring out a special "customized" line featuring special trimming, fabrics and tailoring "extras" at a popular price for the man who wants to look "tailor made."

The Ivy League styling is firmly rooted in the men's fashion world and is obviously here to stay for a long time. Some slight modifications have been made in Ivy styling for fall to make it more wearable by the man who has lost his collegiate figure but not his taste for the youthful distinction of these special clothes.

For the man who neither feels, looks or aspires to Ivy, one firm has borrowed the best of British tailoring in a new suit model with a slightly shorter coat, higher lapel gorge and slightly squarer shoulders. The effect is subtly different.

There is solid agreement all through the men's clothing industry on the importance of the plain blue suit this coming season. It is again emerging as the fashion staple of the American man's wardrobe—both for semi-dress and for business wear. This classic favorite has been given a lot of new treatment with shadow stripes, soft overplaids as well as the plain, unfinished, fine worsteds.
