Queen's Wardrobe Augmented By Fabulous Jewel Collection

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor
New York—(AP)—This week in Manhattan:

Queen Elizabeth II will have a lush wardrobe in jewelry for her visit to Canada and the United States, even if she isn't permitted to pack the fabulous crown jewels. These traditionally are not to be removed from England.

The Queen owns at least seven diamond tiaras, assorted flower and foliage brooches, at least 20 pearl necklaces, plus a variety of bracelets, earrings, watches and jeweled orders such as the Star of the Order of the Garter.

It is generally known the monarch wears few rings—for good reason. Hand-shaking is easier without them. But in her collection is what the jewelry industry calls the No. 9 cut of the Cullinan diamond—a pear-shaped gem of five carats, mounted in a ring once worn by Queen Mary.

Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower will have several new costumes in her wardrobe for the Queen's visit. But just how many and what styles are best kept secret on otherwise talkative Seventh Ave. Designers Mollie Parnis and Nettie Rosenstein confirmed they are making new clothes for the First Lady, but wouldn't discuss details. Miss Rosenstein made Mrs. Eisenhower's formal gowns for both inaugural balls.

One of the two stewardesses on the plane bringing Queen Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Phillip, to Canada next week is used to flying the famous.

British Overseas Airways corporation is transporting the royal party to Ottawa October 12, said the senior stewardess on the flight will be Faith M. Sisman, London. She accompanied Princess Margaret on her trip to Trinidad in 1955 and Sir Anthony Eden, former British prime minister, when he went to Jamaica last year.

with SIZE and STYLE NUMBER.

Miss Sisman has made 400 Atlantic crossings and logged nearly two million air miles. The second stewardess is Velma A. Brown, a native of Canada.

One touch of home will be provided the Queen when she visits New York October 21. The royal party will be served tea with all the typically English fixins' when it visits the Empire State building. The Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, which will cater the event, said there will be several varieties of tea, plus scones, crumpets, muffins, jams and marmalades.

New way to keep the breakfast warm: Wrap 'em in mink cozies.

The firm of Maximilian held a breakfast fashion show this week and gave reporters mink cozies as souvenirs. Maximilian, never at a loss for new ways with fur, featured corduroy raincoats lined with chinchilla; a chinchilla blazer; trench coats of mink and seal, belted with suede and gros-grain, and leopard spats.

Sewing Contest To End Saturday

The district style show climaxing the "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest will be held at the courthouse auditorium in Medford, Saturday, Oct. 12, at 2:30 p.m., according to Mrs. Perry A. Strom, district chairman.

There are three divisions to the contest. Sub-deb girls from 13 to 15 make jumpers or skirts; juniors, aged 14 to 17, make suits, dresses or ensembles; and seniors, 18-22, make suits, dresses or ensembles. Each girl will win a prize at the district level. The top winner in the junior and senior divisions will go to Portland and enter the state contest November 9.

The contest is sponsored by the Wool Growers' auxiliary for the purpose of encouraging young Oregon women in the art of sewing quality garments with 100% wool, Mrs. Strom states.
