Oregon Optometric association is sponsoring color perception tests being conducted this week, under the auspices of the National Rifle Association, according to an announcement by Dr. R. Max Peck, president of the association.

The tests started yesterday at Ft. Lewis, Wash., with tentative plans for further tests at a site near Pendleton, Ore.

Dr. Peck noted that the results will be very helpful in determining the best color, or colors, to be worn for greatest visibility while hunting, under various field conditions. Tests up to now indicate that a golden yellow color can be seen five to six times easier than red by both men with normal vision and by those who are color-blind.

Previous tests were staged with Army personnel in co-operation with the California and Washington optometric associations and the state game commissions of Washington and California. Test conditions included snowy field, evergreen field and yellow grass and scrub oak field.

The present test, the final one in the series conducted over the past two years, will be made under autumn yellow woods conditions with two test groups. One ten man team of Army personnel selected are color blind and the other ten man team has normal color vision.

Clark Walsh of the Oregon state game commission will assist the NRA in arranging for a site for the portion of the test to be conducted in Oregon. Colonel Sloane of the NRA is director of the research project, with Leslie Elar of the California game commission in charge of site selection.

The sponsoring optometric groups will provide scientific evaluation of the test conditions and results. The conclusions reached will assure the hunter

Charges Against Hungarians Dropped

Los Angeles — U. S. Judge Ernest A. Tolen Monday dismissed deportation proceedings against two Hungarian refugees who fled to the United States last December from their riot-torn country.

The U.S. Immigration department sought deportation of the couple, Joseph and Irene Szabo, on grounds that Szabo concealed the fact that he had once been a member of the Communist party.

Szabo said he tore up his Communist party card and joined the freedom fighters in their futile revolution. When he was asked at Camp Kilmer if he was a member, he said he truthfully replied, "No."

Judge Tolen placed the Szabos on a parole status which makes them subject to deportation any time the Immigration department wants to reopen their case.

Deadlock Continues On TV Quiz Show

New York — The deadlock continued and stakes climbed higher Monday night in a television quiz contest between psychiatrist David Mayer of New York City and dairy farmer Harold Craig of Granville, N.Y.

Rocket Would Set Space Record

Washington — A U.S. rocket designed to plunge further into space than the Soviet satellite "could go at any minute," an Air Force spokesman said Monday.

He said the four-stage rocket, expected to climb 1,000 to 4,000 miles to the highest point ever reached by a man-made object, has been ready for firing since Sept. 30. The only thing delaying it is the weather, he said.

The launching, known as "Project Far Side," will take place at Eniwetok atoll in the Pacific. The rocket will be carried to 100,000 feet by a balloon-supported platform before being fired into outer space.

The Air Force had planned to fire it in late September but was delayed by weather and other factors. Sources there said it could be set off at any time.

These sources said the rocket is too small to boost an earth satellite into space but is considered important as a research instrument.

Pleven Agrees To Form French Cabinet

Paris — Former Premier Rene Pleven has agreed to make an attempt to form a government and end France's deepening political crisis.

Pleven, 56, who has served as a premier twice before, told President Rene Coty he would try to form a middle-of-the-road government. He is head of the Radical Party (USDR).

French newspapers were not optimistic about Pleven's chances although he is known as a conciliator.

Coty chose Pleven after another former premier, Socialist Guy Mollet, told the President Sunday he could not marshal enough support from parliament to become premier. Mollet said there was too much Conservative independent party opposition to his economic program.

APPLEGATE VALLEY Hunters Get Wet, No Game

By MAUDE ZIEGLER
Applegate Valley—A story of two Medford bear hunters and seven hounds made news here the first rainy day of the season.

The hunters were Canton Lee, of Kim's restaurant, and Harry Marshall of Medford Realty co., who wandered for miles over the mountains and wound up at a local farm house wet to the skin, having seen no bear nor a track of one. They were five miles from their car. They spent the afternoon drinking tea and munching apples and cookies as they dried out around the old kitchen range at farm. The hounds found refuge on the porch and in woodshed.

Sometimes the odor of burning rubber mingled with the aroma of hot tea as Canton left his boot too long on the hot stove. As radio recordings played on, Marshall, whose wife is Attorney Jeanette Thatcher Marshall, recalled the days when he took his singing friend, Stewart Hamlin, on a hunting trip. Canton Lee telephoned to his wife, speaking to her entirely in Chinese, except for the last two words of American, "Yeh, okay." He expressed interest in domestic methods of canning apple sauce. Kenn Paine of McKee trailer park drove the stranded hunters to their car at Beaver-Sulphur camp ground.

Committee chairman are Mrs. Jim Winningham, membership; Mrs. Harley Hall, hospitality; Mrs. John Byrne, luncheon; Mrs. F. H. Mapston, recreation; 4-H club, Mrs. Gail Buffington; greeting card, Mrs. Loyal Hard; Azalea House, Mrs. Harry Davis; ACWW, Mrs. Lynn Valentine; Health and safety, Mrs. Estel Cox; research, Mrs. Mike Loftus and citizenship, Mrs. Edgar Sawyer.

Food preservation by freezing was the project for the day. The unit will present the grange with a sizeable gift in appreciation of use of the hall for their meetings this winter.

Women of the unit participated in several events this summer, including assistance at the local and county 4-H fairs, participation in officers' training, and attendance at a district 5 meeting at Southern Oregon college. The meeting Nov. 6 was on consumer and credit buying.

Ranger station during the past week was their daughter, Miss Barbara Taylor. Barbara arrived from Portland yesterday and is scheduled to go on duty soon as a surgical nurse at Sacred Heart hospital. She was graduated from the Providence school of nursing in Portland in August.

A son of Ranger and Mrs. Taylor, 1st Lt. Douglas Taylor, left Wednesday for the Marine air base at Miami, Fla., after a few days' visit here. Lt. Larry Janssen is confined to his home for a few months, and is wearing a cast as a corrective measure for a spinal ailment.

Rural Reflections: Borrowing a phrase which Mary Sorber conveniently used to describe her own "sneaky" ways of putting on a food demonstration, it has been noted that there are a number of other "sneaky" doings going on, such as Thelma Jones, long employed in a florist shop, using chicken wire and locker tape and finishing up with a professional autumn corsage for a fellow club member. And Leonard Wickstein enjoying pilfered prunes in his lunch pail while working on the new Rogue Valley Memorial hospital. And there is Jim Corson switching loyalty from the Volkswagen to the little Bavarian car, "Isetta," which he says will fit inside his Volkswagen. Jim visualizes riding about his ranch to irrigate once he gets a little Isetta. This writer also feels really sneaky in taking over this column following resignation of Helga Mitchell who so ably covered this area both in news gathering and feature stories for two years.

Hours are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. when all fire fighting equipment will be on display. Also, on Thursday, at 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. a demonstration will be given on extinguishing an oil fire.

Officer Spikes Rumors On Enlistment Cutting

Unfounded rumors regarding curtailment of enlistments in the U. S. Navy are being circulated, according to Lt. Comm. C. Helm, officer in charge of Navy recruiting for Oregon and southern Washington.

"Recent defense department manpower cuts have enabled the Navy to release several thousand so-called non-trainables of the lower mental groups to reduce the overall manpower strength of the Navy, but the need for high school graduates and reenlistees to replace normal attrition continues to be high priority," the commander said.

Applicants for enlistment should contact Chief Boe or Chief Herring at the Medford post office for further details, he said.
