Members who attended the annual convention of the Oregon Federation of Garden clubs gave their reports.

Hostesses were Mrs. Warren Born and Mrs. Ellen Warren. The exhibit was "best flower from my garden."

Potpourri

When Potpourri left the office Monday afternoon for a hasty trip down town, we told Lillian, the telephone operator, that we'd be back in half an hour. By this time, Lillian knows that we practically never come back when we're supposed to return, and Monday was no exception. Somehow or the other, we always meet too many people.

We popped into Woolworth's for a small purchase, and ran on to Mrs. Clyde Moffitt, and since we hadn't seen Odie for weeks and weeks, we stopped to chat. As neighbors will, Potpourri asked about her children and grandchildren, and Mrs. M. inquired about the Army wife.

The Moffitts' daughter, Jane, and her husband, Frank A. Prime, a post exchange officer, left Medford almost five years ago and have been abroad since. First they were in Japan, then in the eastern United States, then in Casa Blanca and the last and present stop is Adana, Turkey. The Prime's second child, born November 28 in Casa Blanca, was named Barbara Jane. Their son, Michael, 12 years old, is enjoying all this world travel as much as his parents. Last summer he toured Europe with friends of his parents.

Jane writes her parents that they find Adana even more interesting than Japan or French Morocco, and that they do not worry about unsettled conditions in the Middle eastern countries.

While the two of us were talking Mrs. Earl York came along and stopped to hear the news. From Marian we learned that her daughter and son-in-law, the Larry Marshes, left Medford in early September to live in Phoenix, Ariz. Letters and phone calls from the young pair and their two small sons say that they have fallen in love with Arizona. While the fall rains were making Medford damp and dismal, the Marshes wrote to say that the weather was still in the mid-eighties in Phoenix, and that they were enjoying swimming and sun-bathing. The Barton LaFons and their children have also left Medford to live in Phoenix, and they also report glowingly of their new home. Mrs. LaFon is the former Joyce Freed.

Mrs. Moffitt and Mrs. York went their ways, and around the next corner Potpourri came upon Mrs. O. D. Frazee, who said she was just back from a trip to Minnesota and North Dakota. Mr. Frazee and her sister, Mrs. H. H. Corliss, left the first week in September and were away from the city a month.

Most cherished memory of the trip is a reunion with their three sisters, held in Grand Forks, N.D. The three other sisters are Mrs. Oscar A. Bondell, Grand Forks; Mrs. Andrew Johnson, East Grand Forks, Minn., and Mrs. Herman Melheim, International Falls, Minn.

The two Medford women were also in St. Paul, Minn., and Ft. Francis, Canada, during their trip.

The "old faithfuls" of Civic Music—plus a goodly number of new workers, gathered at the Jackson hotel Monday night to plan the annual membership week. Potpourri luckily sat next to Mrs. Darell Huson, one of Civic Music's most ardent supporters, and across the table from a couple of the newer workers, Mrs. John Anicker Jr. and Mrs. John Dellenback, and enjoyed the dinner table talk very much.

Workers were briefed on the advantages of Civic Music—something which it seems would be apparent to everyone interested in concert music, and Chairman Seth Bullis pointed out again that only through advance organization can an area with a population this small be assured of first-rate concerts. Some of the "biggest names" in the music and artistic world have been brought to the Rogue valley by Civic Music, and audiences here have also had the privilege of hearing young musicians who are now on their way up the concert ladder to success.

Indeed, those who attended the dinner were given a taste of fine music as part of the program. Louis Clayson, new to the faculty of Southern Oregon college, sang and afterwards many said "why don't we just hire him for a concert?" The young man, who received his master's degree in music at Eastman School of Music, not only has a beautiful voice but knows how to use it well and he was greeted with more than the usual perfunctory applause which one usually hears for dinner music. Helene Robinson, also of the SOC faculty, accompanied him.

A few motorists who own the undersized cars have solved their parking problems, as Potpourri and the Tribune's Countess can testify. Some of these drivers just squeeze their two-bit size cars in between those already parked correctly in the yellow-marked spaces, if there happens to be a little extra room. This results in a bumper-to-bumper situation which causes a general losing of tempers and raising of blood pressures when it comes time to drive away. Wonder if the city has an ordinance to cover this problem.

Methodist Women Attend Meeting In Burlingame

Mrs. O. P. Taylor and Mrs. C. R. Adamson have returned to Medford after attending a meeting of Methodist women in Burlingame, Calif. Mrs. Taylor is conference secretary of promotion for the Methodist church in Oregon, and Mrs. Adamson is conference secretary for Wesleyan Service guild.

The Burlingame meeting was one of 10 being held throughout the United States to train members of Woman's Society of Christian Service in group dynamics and leadership development. The workshops were planned by a special committee headed by Mrs. Walter Eichinger, Seattle, and have five goals: "To refresh leaders of the Woman's society, to further understanding of human relations problems in the program of the society, to develop insight into the potentialities and problems of leadership in the society, to provide an opportunity to practice some skills of working with others, and to provide opportunity for using these learnings in the local church."

Mrs. Adamson and Mrs. Taylor will attend a meeting in Eugene November 4-5 in which the training material will be handed on to Oregon women. The Burlingame meeting was attended by women from Oregon, California, Nevada and Arizona.

Prevent Raisin "Sinkers"
San Francisco—The California Foods Research Institute suggested this method for keeping raisins evenly distributed in making pound cake. Add ½ teaspoon of cream of tartar to the basic 2 cups of flour recipe. The cream of tartar adds just enough "body" to the dough to keep the raisins from going to the bottom of the batter.

WAF Recruiter To Be In City

T. Sgt. Florence Green, Women's Air Force recruiter for Oregon, will be in Medford October 10 at the Post Office building. It was announced today. Any young woman interested in joining the United States Air Force may interview Sergeant Green.

A young woman joining the Air Force today will find more than 30 occupations open to her, it is stated. Within this selection there are many types of secretarial and administrative positions, as well as diversified technical opportunities, from which to choose.

Since the women's branch is not separately organized, but integrated into the Air Force structure, young women serve with Air Force men, sharing the same responsibilities and reaping the same benefits while performing their duties, Sergeant Green states.
