Late summer and early autumn this year brought an unusually large number of important weddings in the Rogue valley, and the most recent of these was the marriage of Miss Sylvia McCabe and Bernard P. Kelly, held Saturday, October 5, at Sacred Heart Catholic church here. The bride is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. McCabe, 1909 East Main street, and the bridegroom is the elder son of Judge and Mrs. Edward C. Kelly, 906 West Fourth street.

The nuptial mass was celebrated by the Rev. William McLeod at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, and the reception was held at Rogue Valley Country club. About 250 guests attended.

The bride wore a gown of exquisite hand made Venetian point lace over satin which had been worn by her sister, Eleanor, now Mrs. John Cooney, and three of her cousins. Of egg-shell color, the gown is fashioned with short sleeves, neckline rounding in front and pointing to a vee in back, and gently flared satin-edged skirt falling into a brief train. The lace design forms a panel from neck to hemline in front.

Her head-covering was a small lace cap holding a short veil of silk illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Cooney was honor attendant for her sister and additional attendants were Miss Noreen Kelly, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Robert Reverman (Margo Lageson), Roseburg, Miss Clarise Wirth and Miss Anne Rowland, both Seattle. They wore frocks of red chiffon with satin cummerbunds, matching hats of feathers and satin and shoes of the same color. Their French nosegays were of Stephanotis.

The bride's two small nieces, Martha and Catherine Cooney, were junior attendants. They wore frocks of imported velveteen in Dior blue with matching hats and miniscule veils, and carried tiny bouquets of Stephanotis.

Mr. Cooney escorted his daughter to the altar, and James Kelly was his brother's best man. Ushers were Mr. Cooney, brother-in-law of the bride, William Deatherage and John Shephard, Portland.

Miss Phyllis Corliss and Mr. Cooney sang for the wedding, and Bruno Pellegrini was at the church organ.

For the wedding and reception the bride's mother wore a sheath dress of wool crepe in Dior blue with purple of the same material, a picture hat of white feathers and corsage of white spider chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother wore a sheath dress of emerald green silk crepe, a cloche hat of harmonizing sequins and her flowers were lavender pompon chrysanthemums.

decorated with fresh roses. The punch tables were decorated with baby roses and maidenhair fern, and the coffee table held pink carnations.
