

Mrs. Day Elected To Red Cross Post

Mrs. John Day, Medford, was elected chairman of the Camp White hospital council during Friday's all-day meeting in the Red Cross chapter office.

Other officers elected included Mrs. H. A. Moore, Klamath Falls, vice chairman, and Mrs. Clarice Spatz, Medford, secretary.

A training workshop was held Friday morning for members of the council on governing policies, procedures and membership with Mrs. F. R. Fairweather, volunteer field consultant on the Pacific area staff, as instructor.

The afternoon session concerned Christmas gifts for the patients in the Camp White Veterans administration hospital.

Purpose of the council is to furnish, through the Red Cross, supplementary supplies and volunteers for the VA hospital. In July the council, which formerly consisted of Medford-Roseburg members, divided into two groups, one for Medford and one for Roseburg, it was explained.

Stage Manager for SOC Play Selected

Ashland — Pete Lungreen, Southern Oregon college junior from Klamath Falls, has been chosen as stage manager for the college-community production of Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," according to Angus Bowmer, professor of speech and drama. Besides high school theater experience, Lungreen has served in two previous SOC productions, "Winter-set" and "Aladdin."

Lungreen will be responsible for the staging of 38 scenes, one of the most demanding technical responsibilities ever experienced by the SOC players group.

Dale Flowers, Medford, will serve as chief electrician, and Frank Fann, also of Medford, will head the construction crew. Nellieann Roesberry, Ashland, and Gary Blew, Medford, will assist with the scenery and lighting. Otto Wilda, associate professor of art, is designing the settings.

Additional college students and community members are urged to assist in technical work for this production. Such participation will, it was pointed out, earn points for students interested in becoming members of Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatic fraternity.

ILLINOIS VALLEY Weather Halts Road Work

BY HELEN BOTTEL
Cave Junction—Rainy weather has halted county road work in the Selma area, Kerby and Cave Junction, where grading and graveling had been started. Equipment has been moved to the Holten creek road near Kerby grade school, and when weather permits a construction crew will reroute the road, eliminating the bridge. According to Foreman Frank Gant, engineers are mapping the road to enter the Redwood highway south of the highway bridge near Kerby.

When Junior Gilliam goes overseas with his Navy unit next month, his wife, Laverne, will stay with Gilliam's mother, Mrs. Nettie Sowell, in Cave Junction. Mr. and Mrs. Gilliam are visiting in the valley this month, and will spend part of their time on a deer hunt in eastern Oregon.

Don Fulk brought back a three point buck from Bonanza, the only one of his group to kill a deer. The party, consisting of Fulk, Louis Monroe, and Louis Monroe Jr. returned Saturday.

Home from a five months trip "by plane, train, bus, and private car" are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eye, who visited relatives in Washington, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Guests last week at the Bill Weingart home in Cave Junction were their daughter and family from Newport, the Bob McKinnons, who stayed in the valley to visit Bob's family and the John Shallenbergers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Weingart left Monday for Arlington, Iowa, where they will visit Mrs. Weingart's brother whom she has not seen for 36 years.

While fellow employees at the Redwood inspection station hunt near and far with nothing but tales of the one that got away, Al Hobart took a walk near his home in Takilma, and, as he tells it shot a big buck in self defense when it threatened to run him down in the pathway.

Phil Sawyer at the Illinois Valley Ice Plant says 17 deer have been brought in to hang since the season opened. At least half have been killed locally.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knight spent a recent weekend at Pacific Grove and Ft. Ord, where they went to help celebrate the birthday of their son, David, an Army private. They stayed at the home of Frank's cousin, Mrs. Edna Sefton, at Pacific Grove.

Mrs. Don Beard was honored at a baby shower recently at the home of her sister, Marg Brown. Hostesses were Mrs. Brown, Rachel Foster, Evelyn Parmelee and Glenda Marchant.

The Rev. and Mrs. Robert Kingsbury and children left Monday morning for Portland, where Mr. Kingsbury will assist in evangelistic services at the Cherry Park Methodist church. Mrs. Kingsbury, Kathy and Anne are staying with her sister near Portland.

City Recorder and Municipal Judge Paul Glines is planning to attend the League of Oregon Cities meeting in Portland Oct. 20-23. He will enroll for classes in recorder work and for police magistrates. City Attorney Laurence Cushing said he may also attend the meeting.

Plans for the annual Illinois Valley Garden club plant sale were made at an executive board meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Robert H. Smith. The sale is set for Oct. 18 and will be held in front of the Ivy theater in Cave Junction. Next Garden club meeting is scheduled for Oct. 25 at the home of Mrs. Robert G. Smith.

The first Cub Scout Pack meeting of the season will be held Friday, Oct. 25, at Kerby Grade school. Plans for the event were made at a committee meeting recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Millard in Cave Junction.

Teachers in the release time religious instruction program at valley schools include Opal Martin, George Martin, Evelyn Smith, and Martha Nicholson. Each Tuesday they will travel between Kerby, Evergreen and O'Brien, conducting lessons at churches near the schools.

On addition, Mrs. Smith will also take a class at Selma on Tuesday mornings. Volunteer helpers will assist in the program.

About six inches of rain have fallen in the valley during the past two weeks, reports Ray Ellstrom, district ranger at the Illinois Valley Ranger station. From Friday until Tuesday morning, 2½ inches were recorded at the station.

Vernon Larson, principal at Illinois Valley High school, will attend the convention of the Oregon Association of Secondary Principals at the Marion hotel, Salem, this week.

'Y' Promotional Campaign Backfires

Princeton, N. J.—A promotional campaign by the YMCA and YWCA backfired recently because officials failed to consider the reaction from this community's university population. Those directing the campaigns received permission to paste eight-foot-high paper "Y's" on store windows in the downtown section.

They were startled when angry Princeton University students began ripping down the huge letters.

It seems the Princetonians thought agents of a certain university in New Haven, Conn., had invaded the community and were trying to needle them.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Vivian T.—My husband won't tell me anything about his finances.

Matthew T.—Women and finances don't mix.

Vivian T.—My husband seems to be more married to his family than to me. We have been married 10 years and have four children, but sometimes I think I am living with a stranger. He is closed-mouthed with me. I didn't even know about some legal trouble he had recently until I read it in the paper.

I'm not even sure how much money my husband earns. I don't know whether or not he is insured. When I ask him, he laughs and says he's afraid I'd kill him for his insurance money if he had any.

My husband has some sort of business deal with his brother and he tells him everything. This brother is a very tricky sort of guy and I don't trust him from here to the corner. They get together at their parents' home a couple of nights a week and I'm not even invited over. I'm ashamed to tell my own family that I don't even know anything about my husband's finances.

Matthew T.—Money, money, money and insurance, insurance.

WYATTE F. DE LOACHE To Speak in Medford

Dupont Official to Speak at Rotary

Wyatte F. De Loache, Pacific coast manager of the extension division of the Du Pont company, will speak to the Medford Rotary club Tuesday noon on some of the lesser known aspects of a large corporation.

De Loache is expected to give a behind the scenes discussion of how Du Pont conducts its affairs in dealing with employees, customers, stockholders and suppliers, according to Rotary club members.

He is an experienced lecturer on industrial progress and chemical developments, and a former newspaperman. He has been with Du Pont since 1940 serving in a variety of assignments in public relations for the company.

Before joining the firm's extension division in 1953, he was a plant personnel superintendent, a specialist in community relations, and a consultant on industrial journalism.

Postal Clerk Wins Suggestion Award

Boyd C. Kline, a career clerk at the Medford post office, was presented a cash award and a certificate of merit by the post office department for a suggestion he made for improving the operation of the Medford post office. Kline's suggestion was for rearranging furniture and cases in the workroom.

The certificate is signed by Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, and by S. G. Schwartz, regional director. Summerfield has emphasized the suggestions program throughout his administration, and suggestions, for improving the operation of the service have been given strict attention by the department.

Kline has been on the staff of the Medford post office since June, 1938, except for the time he served in the Navy.

Budd Gall, supervisor, recently received a cash award for submitting an accounting suggestion.

tions about what doesn't concern her.

The Council: If Matthew knows so much about economics, he's probably heard that women and finances mix so well, women hold most of the money in the nation. He may be an old-fashioned guy, but he's living in a new-fashioned world and he is making a big mistake by not sharing this vital information with his wife.

If Vivian doesn't know an asset from a liability, Matthew ought to teach her because his children's welfare might depend on it one of these days. His brother is not a satisfactory substitute for the mother of his children as a financial confidant.

It appears Matthew has good reason to keep his business dealings secret. It is not our function to go into this aspect of the family problem, except to say that his wife should, at least, know what kind of policies he has, the amounts of insurance, the beneficiaries and the company which issued the insurance.

He should also list his bank accounts, safe deposit box number, any real estate or securities, and his debtors or creditors. His wife should also have the name of a lawyer she could call on in an emergency.

This is a practical matter, but more is involved. There can be no real love between this couple while there is no trust, and there can be no trust when the wife is kept in the dark about these vital matters.
