

Groucho Marx Show Said To Be Oldest On Television Net

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Writer
Hollywood — Today's quiz:

Q—Who has the oldest continuous TV show on the air?
A—Groucho Marx. His "You Bet Your Life" program moved into its ninth season this month.

The mustachioed comedian not only holds the longevity record, he also has the astonishing distinction of being among the top ten in each of his years as quizmaster.

"It's really nothing," Groucho said with exaggerated nonchalance. "But I'm afraid to look back over the years—too many people chasing me."

Chides Romanoff
He took out time to peruse the menu in Romanoff's elegant restaurant, and signaled the Maitre D. "Get Romanoff over here," he ordered.

Prince Michael himself marched over, his face reflecting the dread of a much abused target for Groucho's blasts.

"Mike, you fraud," the comic asked, "Is there anything edible on this menu. The whole thing looks suspicious to me." Romanoff flinched. "I don't know why I ask you about the food," Groucho went on. "You can't afford to eat in this joint either."

After five minutes of wrangling, and much to the discomfort of Romanoff, Groucho ordered a raw hamburger with a single caper and a soupcon of raw onions.

Romanoff departed, mumbling about the hardships of running an eatery.

"Because I'm the oldtimer on TV other performers ask me how I manage to stay on the air year after year," Groucho said. "The answer is that I've saved my money and remained independent."

"I'm not kidding about this."

Goldendale Woman Killed in Collision

The Dalles — A Goldendale, Wash., bank teller, Mrs. Blossom H. Davis, 38, died of injuries Sunday suffered in a two-car crash at Rufus, 28 miles east of here on Highway 30.

The driver of the car, Donald E. Jackson, also of Goldendale, was hospitalized with a head laceration. He was reported in good condition Sunday by hospital attendants here.

The Jackson car was involved in a collision with an eastbound car driven by Ben Weatherall, of Arlington, who received slight injuries.

Mrs. Davis had been employed by the National Bank of Commerce in Goldendale.

Church Music Gets Jazz Treatment

London — Hot trumpets, sweet clarinets and throaty saxophones replaced the traditional organ in an Anglican church Sunday night and played hymns in swing and jazz time.

The congregation, from all reports, was enthusiastic about it. The Rev. Geoffrey Beaumont conducted the experiment in jazzing up church music at St. Augustine's church in Highgate, North London.

Peter Knight, a top musical arranger, adapted the hymns to modern rhythm. The British Broadcasting corporation liked the idea so much it televised the service.

The orchestra was made up of musicians from some of London's top jazz and swing bands. It included a popular singer and a four-piece rhythm section.

Hugh Bryson Denied New Hearing by Court

Washington — The Supreme Court today denied a hearing to Hugh Bryson, San Francisco union leader, convicted of filing a false non-Communist affidavit with the government in 1951.

Bryson, as national president of the Marine Cooks and Stewards union, was indicted in 1953.

On conviction by a San Francisco jury, he was sentenced to five years in jail and fined $10,000.

POET, NOVELIST DIES

Sydney, Australia — Will Lawson, 80, poet and novelist, died Saturday.

As long as you're independent you can do as you please without worrying about losing your job.

"I do the show because it's fun — not for the money. When it ceases to be fun I'll quit. It's that simple. Actually, I haven't thought about quitting."

Favors Pay TV

Having survived wrestling, quiz shows, situation comedies, panel shows, and now westerns, the little man with the big cigar figures he still will be around when pay TV enters the picture tube.

"It's coming for sure," he said, "and the advertisers deserve it. They've provided such poor programs people are willing to pay to see worthwhile entertainment."

Groucho was interrupted by Romanoff who returned with a pleased smile. His mustache quivered importantly.

"Incidentally, Mr. Marx," he crowed, "your brother, Harpo, was the first person to eat in my Palm Springs restaurant."

"I know," Groucho concluded dryly. "We just got a report from his doctor."

Romanoff moved away again. He didn't come back.

Torrential Rains Bring Flooding To Parts of Texas

By UNITED PRESS
New flooding hit Texas today in the wake of torrential rains that sent the Colorado river over its banks and forced the evacuation of about 100 families at Ballinger, Tex.

A series of cloudbursts Sunday dumped nearly three inches of rain at points in central Texas and up to nine inches in western portions of the state.

Rivers and creeks throughout much of western Texas climbed to flood stage, but the worst damage appeared to be at Ballinger.

Stormy weather was common throughout the West Sunday, with only North Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and New Mexico failing to report rain.

East of the Mississippi river, a vast high pressure center brought generally fair skies except for a few thundershowers along the east coast of Florida.

Overnight temperatures tumbled under clear skies, with Phillipsburg, Pa., reporting an early morning low of 27 and readings in the 30s common in New England and the Great Lakes.

Snow in Colorado
The western rains were mixed with snow in western Colorado where 2 to 20 inches of new snow blanketed the Uncompahgre plateau in the Rockies.

Light snow also hit the high mountain passes west of Denver, but no main highways were reported closed.

Forecasters predicted continued scattered showers or thundershowers today from the Pacific to the Mississippi except for California.

Fair and warmer weather is predicted for the Mississippi east to the Atlantic coast.

Japanese Volcano Erupts at Bad Time

Tokyo — The sudden eruption of Tokyo's "suicide volcano," Mount Mihara, appeared to be a one-shot blast that came at a bad time, police said today.

The unpredictable volcano spewed forth stone and lava in a mighty cough Sunday while hundreds of sightseers were on its slopes and rim.

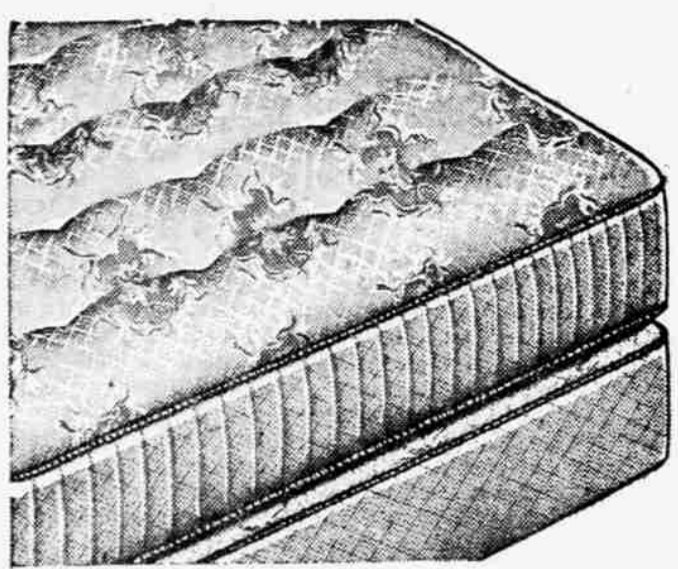

One sightseer, Kiyoma Maki, 24, was killed when hit on the head by a piece of volcanic rock while standing on an observation platform. Another 54 were injured by flying stones and hot ashes.

The 2,477-foot mountain, noted for the many suicides by leaps into its crater, is on an island south of Tokyo and technically in the greater Tokyo area.
