TURKEY AND SYRIA AGREE TO EFFORT AT MEDIATION

Arabian King's Offer Accepted By Both Nations

Meeting Expected 'Within Two Days'

By UNITED PRESS
Diplomatic quarters in Washington disclosed today that Turkey and Syria have accepted Saudi Arabian King Saud's offer to mediate their dispute which had threatened to kindle World War III.

The Syrian embassy in Washington announced its government's acceptance. The Saudi Arabian embassy said Turkey also had accepted. There was no immediate word from the Turkish embassy, but other diplomatic sources confirmed the Saudi announcement.

There still was no word from Damascus or Ankara of acceptance by either side, although the Saudi Arabian Directorate of Information in Djeddah said in an official statement issued earlier in the day that Turkey and Syria had accepted.

The Saudi announcement said both sides would send delegations to Damman, Saudi Arabia, "within two days." It added that Saud offered to mediate the dispute to "clear the climate" between the two countries.

This development further eased the Middle East crisis, despite a week end rash of Moscow propaganda statements and charges by Syrian leaders that Turkey had sent three divisions and 800 tanks to the border.

Afro-Asian Leaders Meet To Organize Public Opinion

Cairo, Egypt — Delegates from 18 nations met here today in an attempt to organize Afro-Asian public opinion into a cohesive and instrumental force in world affairs.

All Political Shades
The delegates were of all political shades but mostly left of center. They were meeting for three days to make final plans for a giant Afro-Asian "solidarity conference" to be held in December, probably in Cairo.

Organizers of the conference invited 38 nationalities to the meeting which they said would be the "first effort on the peo-

Corvallis Infant Snatched From Crib

Corvallis — A seven weeks old baby was snatched from her crib while her mother slept in the same room early today and was later found abandoned unharmed under a tree at the edge of the yard in near-freezing temperature, police reported.

Mrs. Howard Pope, the mother, told investigating officers she awoke at 2 a.m. to feed her baby, Winnette Marie, and found her gone. She immediately called police and her husband, at work in a plywood mill, Corvallis Policeman C. V. Rue was checking behind the house when he heard a noise in the darkness and then heard footsteps as if someone running away. He found the infant partly wrapped in a blanket, a pillow case containing the child's bottle formula and clothing was found nearby.

There was no note or other indication that ransom was the motive for the abduction. The Papes are of modern means.

Charge Angers Roseburg Ranchers

Roseburg — A band of nearly 100 angry ranchers in the Roseburg area met here today with Attorney Paul Geddes after one of their neighbors was ordered into federal court for shooting an American bald eagle.

Louis Bell was ordered to appear in federal court in Klamath Falls in connection with the shooting that occurred last March.

Bell said that he had been watching his flock of sheep through binoculars when he saw an eagle attack a newborn lamb. He said he ran out with a gun and killed the bird. He did not discover until later that it was a bald eagle, protected by federal law as the model for American heraldry.

Mrs. Bell commented today. "We didn't think it was against the law to protect our bread and butter."

A spokesman for the ranchers said they would seek a change of venue for the court hearing set for the Bell case. He said ranchers in the Roseburg area had long been plagued by depredation of eagles among the sheep flocks.

Democratic Senators Discuss Stimulation

Portland — State Democratic senators meeting in caucus in Portland's Congress hotel Sunday morning voted to use a portion of a prospective surplus of $70 million in the state's general fund to promote new housing construction and stimulate the development of industry.

The senators agreed to a proposal by Sen. Monroe Sweetland of Milwaukie that calls for exploring "legislation for loans to promote immediate new housing construction," and legislation "setting aside funds to stimulate industrial development."

Tickertape Parade Greets Elizabeth On New York Arrival

New York — Queen Elizabeth II rode up New York's Canyon of Heroes today in a deluge of confetti and tickertape. It was the biggest celebrity reception here since Gen. Douglas MacArthur returned from Japan.

Curbside crowds of hundreds of thousands cheered the 31-year-old monarch and her consort Prince Philip as their royal motorcade moved slowly in brilliant sunshine from the Battery to City Hall. The windows of skyscrapers along the route were jammed with office workers who scattered tons of confetti, ticker tape and torn telephone directories on her bubble-top limousine.

It was the Queen's first visit to New York, the city she said she had "wanted to see since I was a child." It was also the first ticker tape parade ever accorded a British monarch.

Shout "Hi, Liz!"
New York's informal shouts of "Hi, Liz!" brought the Queen's broadest smile and the jauntiest wave she has exhibited on her six-day visit to the United States. Fashion conscious New York women eyed her rust-colored ensemble trimmed with regal white mink and set off with flashing diamond jewelry.

Handsome bareheaded "Prince Phil," whose car followed the Queen's, flashed a smile that thrilled the Wall Street's secretaries who had been given an extra-long lunch hour to attend the parade.

She Is Excited
Elizabeth's first view of the towers and monuments of Manhattan drew this comment:
"Wheel!" she exclaimed. "How exciting! I didn't realize the buildings were so closely knit."
Her brief route to City Hall for Mayor Robert F. Wagner's official welcome to the city called up one of the heaviest forces of police, federal security officers, firemen and first aid personnel in memory.

Prince Philip was impressed, saying "Good heavens," he was watching "this is a most overwhelming thing."

Portland Hunter Fatally Injured By Mystery Shot

Three Others Die During Week End
By UNITED PRESS
Oregon's hunting season claimed four lives over the week end, boosting to ten the number of hunters killed so far this season.

Ernest McKinley, 45, of Portland, was fatally injured when he was shot in the back while deer hunting about four miles north of Pringle Falls Sunday.

The bullet, in a .308 rifle, entered his left shoulder and passed through his body. He died while two hunting companions were taking him to Lapine. A coroner's inquest was to be held this afternoon in Bend. State police said they did not know who shot McKinley.

Body Discovered
Two hunters discovered the body of Andrew M. Larson, 71, of Portland, a heart attack victim, slumped over near a road one mile north of Spofford in eastern Oregon. State police said Larson had been hunting pheasants in the area when the seizure came.

Donald Olsen, 17, of Reith, was injured fatally by a rifle bullet as he and his sister, Carol, 11, returned from a pheasant hunting trip in Umatilla county. The gun, propelled in the front seat of Olsen's car, discharged after being jammed earlier in the day.

The fourth victim, Charles Richter, 63, Wheeler, died of a heart attack near Ontario while on a hunting trip.

Attempts To Stop School Integration Blocked by Court

Virginia Appeal Against Order Barred

Washington — The Supreme Court today struck another blow at Southern attempts to block or delay school desegregation.

It refused to hear a Virginia appeal against federal court orders to integrate the Norfolk and Newport News schools.

This leaves in effect a ruling by the Fourth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals which knocked down the barriers to school integration raised by Virginia's 1956 Pupil Placement Act.

Other Laws Adopted
Other southern states have adopted similar laws to nullify the Supreme Court's 1954 racial desegregation edict. They were watching today's action for an indication of how their laws will fare in court.

Neither the Supreme Court nor the appeals court ruled directly on the constitutionality of the Virginia law. But both courts left standing an opinion by federal District Judge Walter E. Hoffman of Norfolk that the law is unconstitutional.

The action left Hoffman free to order the school boards to admit Negro applicants to Norfolk and Newport News schools.

A separate appeal is being carried through the courts against a similar desegregation ruling affecting Arlington, Va., schools.

A lawyer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said he interpreted the high with lower court rulings, as throwing out the Virginia law. On this basis, he said, the NAACP probably will ask federal District Judge Albert V. Bryan in Alexandria to order immediate integration of Arlington schools.

Removes Authority
The Virginia law removes authority over placement of students from local school boards and seeks to make the boards immune from integration suits. It vests assignment in the hands of a state board. If a white school admits Negroes, the governor may close it, deny it state funds, and provide for "private" education for its white students.

Good Return Reported On Tax Statements Mailed Last Week

A good return has been reported by the tax department of the some 33,000 county tax statements mailed last week. The majority of the payments are being mailed in, tax officials said, although some persons are making the payments in the tax department in the county courthouse.

Deadline for payment is Nov. 15. If payment is made before then, a 3 per cent discount will be given.

County Treasurer Karl Janouch also reminded taxpayers today that none of their tax bills this year will go for county government. No general levy of taxes for county purposes was made this year, and all tax money will go to other taxing units, such as cities, school districts, and special districts such as fire protection, sanitary or water districts.

Outside Districts Large
It was possible for the county to get by without a tax levy this year because of large revenues from outside sources, Janouch pointed out.

Largest single source of income to the county is from the federal government, and most of this is from O & C and National Forest timber sale proceeds. Second-largest amount in this year's budget is a cash carry-over from the previous year, much of it also the result of income from the federal government.

Sources Listed
The budget total for the fiscal year is $3,112,695.72, Janouch reported. He listed the sources of income to meet the budget as follows:
Delinquent taxes from prior years — $3,245.21, or 2 per cent.
Cash on hand — $1,196,088.02, or 38.4 per cent.
Miscellaneous fees and collections — $206,145.23, or 6.6 per cent.
County's share of state funds (highway taxes, liquor fees, etc.) — $466,700, or 15 per cent.
Federal payments — $1,238,517.24, or 39.8 per cent.

The fifth passenger, Mrs. Charles Martin, 65, 497 N. 36th st., Springfield, was treated for minor injuries along with Vanderzanden, who had been alone.

Schuman Refuses Coty's Request To Attempt To Form French Government

Paris — Veteran statesman Robert Schuman told President Rene Coty today that it was impossible for him to form a new government as long as the nation's political parties remain so bitterly divided.

Schuman spent an hour with Coty at the Elysee Palace this morning, reporting on France's dangerously deepening financial crisis.

Labor Unrest Increases
Schuman's refusal to form a new cabinet came as snowballing labor unrest threatened new troubles for the country. There were threats of strikes and a nationwide "workers protest" against the current freeze on wages and the rising cost of living. In addition, there were reports that the French National Treasury was almost empty and the country on the verge of bankruptcy.

Schuman refused to try in the face of previous failures by three other political leaders in their efforts to set up a government to replace that of Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury. The latter has resigned, but is remaining in office until a new regime can be set up.

Needs Money for Expenses
The government reportedly needs up to 200 billion francs ($476 million) to meet its expenses for the remainder of the year. It may have trouble even paying back a 50 billion franc ($199 million) loan payment to the Bank of France.

The nation's workers are up in arms over wage, working and living conditions.

Motion To Reject Rank-and-File's Charges Denied

Judge Erred, Attorney Says

Washington — Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts today refused to set aside a temporary court order barring James R. Hoffa from taking over at once as president of the Teamsters Union.

The judge also denied motions by union attorneys that would have thrown out of court the charges by 13 rank and file members that Hoffa's election was rigged.

Letts then proceeded to turn arguments on whether to hear his temporary restraining order into a preliminary injunction and place affairs of the nation's largest union under court supervision.

Violation Charged
The 13 charges that more than 80 per cent of the delegates to the union's recent convention at Miami Beach, Fla., were selected in violation of the union's constitution.

Martin F. O'Donoghue, attorney for the union, said that Letts erred in signing the temporary order last Monday without giving the Teamsters a chance to be heard.

O'Donoghue, quoting from Rules of Federal Procedure and the Code of Ethics of the American Bar Association, said that such orders should not be issued without a hearing except in an emergency.

There was no need for quick action in this matter, the lawyer argued.

Letts last week issued an order temporarily restraining Hoffa from taking over as president. The judge acted on a request from the rank-and-file members of the Teamsters who claim Hoffa's election was fixed.

Ordered To Show Cause
Letts ordered the union to show cause today why the restraining order should not be converted into an injunction.

Such an injunction would remain in force until a trial was held on the rank-and-file charges. No matter how Letts ruled, the decision was almost certain to be appealed and the entire case could be in the courts for some time.

Letts has also told the union to explain why the court should not nullify the election of new officers and all other proceedings at the convention. In addition, it must also show cause why court officers should not be appointed to supervise major union spending and all but "routine" decisions.

TAKING IT EASY—Relaxing between sessions at state convention of Professional Engineers of Oregon are Paul B.
