

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A CANNY FARMER separated his apples into two piles: the big ones, red and luscious, on one side, the green, dwarfed ones on the other. A new farmhand rolled up an empty barrel and remarked, "I suppose you want the little ones on the bottom and the best ones on top?"

"No, sir," said the farmer virtuously. "Honesty is the best policy. You put those little ones on top!"

The farmhand, muttering darkly to himself, obeyed instructions. "Get the top nailed down!" asked the farmer.

"Yup," said the helper, "and I parked it just like you said."

"Good work," approved the farmer. "Now turn the barrel upside down and label it."

Overhead by Mike Connolly: "She'd make a great Juliet. She can't act, of course, but, brother, can she lean over a balcony!"

U. S. Drug Results Show Little Effect On English Patients

By DELOS SMITH

United Press Science Editor
New York—British scientists suggest that the tranquilizing drugs tranquilize American mental hospital patients mainly because American mental hospital conditions are such that they'd rob every relatively sane people of their tranquility.

The suggestion was made to the American Psychiatric Assn. by three doctors whose investigation showed that one of the most widely used of the drugs had very little effect on extremely untroubled patients in English mental hospitals.

Their results were so completely opposed to the results of many American investigations of the same drug in American patients that some sort of an explanation was very much in order. And so they suggested one.

The drug is reserpine which was the original "tranquilizer." Its "main effect" on mental patients "seemed" to the British scientists to be not on the symptoms of the mental disease but on the symptoms which arise as a direct result of the conditions which are imposed on psychotic patients—overcrowded and locked wards.

Not Convinced
"Disturbed patterns of behavior would, we suggest, undoubtedly occur in 'normal' people under similar conditions," continued Drs. Charles P. Gore, George P. Egan, and Donald Walton. "In short, we are not convinced that reserpine or any other drug currently available can take the place of an enlightened approach to the care of these patients."

In Britain, they said, mental hospitals are smaller, locked and overcrowded wards do exist but "maximum security" wards are unknown, and there is a growing tendency to abolish all locked wards. They cited a British study which showed that "the unlocking of wards produces results as gratifying and dramatic

Farmers Scheduled To Travel In USSR

Rockford, Ill.—Twenty-four Rockford area farmers were to leave Sunday on a 17-day goodwill tour of the Soviet Union, it was announced.

The group of "typical midwestern" Agrarians were selected by the U. S. government to represent this country as part of the recent travel exchange program with the Soviets.

The men were scheduled to leave Rockford at 7:10 a. m. (CDT) Sunday and arrive in Chicago at 7:45 a. m. They were to leave Chicago at 9:15 a. m. (CDT) and arrive in New York at 1 p. m. (EDT) and depart for Brussels, Belgium at 5 p. m. (EDT) today.

The purpose of the trip, representatives said is to allow farmers from the U. S. to study Russian agricultural techniques and potentials as well as to acquaint them with that country's culture and history.

Ex-Miss America Hard Title To Live With, Former Queen Relates

By WILLIAM EWALD
New York Staff Correspondent
New York—The toughest part about the Miss America job is becoming a former Miss America, says Bess Meyerson.

"I guess that every Miss America feels as I once did that all the doors are going to swing open once you go knocking for a job. But it's not like that at all and it was a terribly rude shock to me to find that being a Miss America meant nothing in terms of getting the job I wanted," says Bess who was Miss America '45.

"Some girls never get over it. They still expect people to fall all over them. I know one former Miss America who lives abroad because she says they treat her like somebody over there while over here, she's nothing. Hers is an unfortunate, destructive attitude, but I suppose it's one of the hazards of the title.

For most girls, the Miss America cockade is a one-way ticket to nowhere. Bess Meyerson is one of a tiny fistful of former winners who have remained in the public eye. Bess has been in the TV business for seven years now, four-and-a-half of them on CBS-TV's "The Big Payoff," a daytime entry.

Talent Not Too Good
"One reason why you don't hear about Miss Americas is that although some of the talent is very good, on the whole the talent is not of too high a quality," says Bess.

"If a girl has any real specific talent—if she can sing, dance or act—the chances are she's caught up in her career by the time she's 18, 19 or 20. She has no time for something like a Miss America contest.

"Another reason is many of the winners are from small towns and are a little afraid of the big city. You can't really blame the stay-at-homes though—in their own towns, Miss Americas are heroines all their lives. But in New York, a Miss America is just another girl on the treadmill."

Bess, a native New Yorker, tried to disentangle herself from the Miss America title a year after she won it.

Came To Senses
"It was a turning point in my life," says Bess. "It happened at a hotel here when a woman said—'That's Miss America? She's not so pretty.' Well, that hurt came to my senses and decided I wasn't supposed to be the prettiest girl in the world and it was foolish to go parading around as a Miss America.

"Actually though, you can't ever really divorce yourself from the title. It's like being Jackie Robinson who'll always be known as a former second baseman no matter how far he goes as a business executive. It's like being a former wrestling champ or flagpole sitter."

Bess has a daughter, Barbara, who'll be 10 in December. "I didn't think I'd ever be able to say anything but good about Miss America," sighs Bess, "but I think it must be a terrible thing having a mother who once was one.

"I hope that by the time she is 19 or 20, she'll have progressed so far on whatever her career will be, that she'll have no time for such a thing as the pageant. If there's one thing I'm sure of, it's that I don't ever want my daughter to become a Miss America."

NEEDS IDEAS

Vienna—Czechoslovakia's Communist government appealed to all citizens today to come forward with ideas for "improving the country's living standard." First Deputy Premier Jaromir Dolansky said measures to improve living conditions would include surpassing the five-year plan goals in industry, transportation and building, increasing the number of collective farms and their output, and decentralizing the nation's economy.
