

Charm School Planned By Local Girl Scouts

All Intermediate Girl Scouts in the Rogue Valley area and their leaders will have an opportunity, starting Nov. 9, to attend a "charm school," sponsored by the Rogue Valley Area Girl Scout Council.

The program, to be held the second Saturday each month from November until February, will include such items as care of hair, hair-styling, skin care and make-up, nutrition, and dental care, posture, physical fitness, and a fashion show.

Intermediate Girl Scouts are those from the fifth through the eighth grades.

Consultants

Consultants for the charm school will include professional people of Medford who will volunteer their time and advice. Approximately 150 girls have already registered for the course, Girl Scout officials said.

The first session Saturday, Nov. 9, will cover care of hair, and hair styling, skin care and make-up, and the special consultant will be Mrs. Eloise Logan; also to be studied will be dental care and nutrition. Dr. Raymond W. McNair, orthodontist, will be the consultant.

A film, "Gateway to Health," will be shown. This is an educational film showing the need for better eating habits to promote better dental hygiene. Mrs. Blanche Frisbie will assist by giving nutritional advice.

Senior Girl Scouts will assist with the program, including ushering at all sessions, which will be held at the new Red Cross building, 60 Hawthorne ave., Medford. The time will be 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

The program has been planned by Mrs. Raymond Reter, for many years a leader, and a member of the area program committee, and Mrs. Al Carrar, a leader for 12 years, who is also on the program committee.

Several requirements toward proficiency badges in good grooming, health aid, homemaking, hospitality, personal health, nutrition, and clothing, will be completed by those attending all sessions. Other requirements toward these badges can be covered in troop meetings.

The second session of the charm school will be held Dec. 14 and will cover good posture, and physical fitness. On Jan. 11 the group will learn about etiquette, hosting, introductions, conversation, and how to make friends. On Feb. 8 the session will study what to wear for any occasion, and a fashion show with teenagers modeling clothes is scheduled.

March 17 is planned as graduation day for those who have attended all the sessions.

The school, as well as many other benefits the girls receive through the Girl Scout organization, is made possible, in part, through contribution to the United Medford Crusade.

PLAN SCHOOL—Girl Scout leaders and the Senior Girl Scouts are making plans for the "charm school" to be held once each month, November through February. Left to right are Mrs. Al Carrara, Mrs. Maurice Ritchey, Mrs. Raymond Reter, Mrs. Anthony Manno, and Miss Ann Manno.

Ashland-Talent United Fund Reaches $10,067

Ashland—The Ashland-Talent United Fund reached the 50 per cent mark this week with a total of $10,067 reported at the headquarters office at 399 East Main st.

RETIRE BANKER DIES

East Hampton, N.Y.—Clarence F. Alcott, 70, retired investment banker and onetime Yale football captain and All-America end, died Wednesday.

Manor Explained at Carmel Gathering

M. N. Hogan, president, and Walter Higgins, executive director, of Rogue Valley Manor, conducted another in a series of meetings explaining the manor last Monday in Carmel, Calif., Hogan reported today.

He said 65 persons attended to inquire about plans for the $3½ million retirement home, to be constructed on Barneburg hill in Medford next year.

The meeting, held in the Presbyterian church there, is the eighth in a series of similar meetings, which have been held also in Coos Bay, Klamath Falls, Grants Pass, Ashland, Roseburg, Medford and Paradise Valley, Calif.

Others are scheduled soon in Corvallis, Lakeview and Bend, and later in other Oregon and California communities, including Portland. Higgins remained in California to call on interested individuals in Carmel, San Mateo and Menlo Park.

Memorial Services Held for Bar Members

Memorial services for five members of the Jackson County Bar association who died within the past two years were held in circuit court here this week.

Resolutions eulogizing the attorneys were adopted by the association and made a part of circuit court records. Memorial services were held for George H. Jackson, who died Oct. 18, 1953; Gus Newbury, who died Oct. 26, 1955; Tracy H. Crum, who died April 26, 1956; Rawles Moore, who died April 8, 1957; and Robert W. Shepherd, who died Sept. 16, 1957.

The resolution recognizing Mr. Jackson states he "was a lawyer of great integrity, a sincerely religious man, a fine husband and father, and an honorable member" of the bar, which "recognized his passing as a loss to this Bar."

Mr. Newbury will be remembered by those who knew him for his firm sense of advocacy, his keen wit and loyalty to his friends and his fund of knowledge of the history of southern Oregon. The resolution stated recognizing the late Gus Newbury. It stated that the state "lost a capable, courageous and pioneer attorney and educator and this court has lost an able and distinguished member of its Bar."

The association resolution on Mr. Crum noted he was a "prominent member of the legal profession for many years, a trust officer of the First National Bank of Portland, and at the last in the active practice of law." It said "he discharged his obligations, trusts and responsibilities with great industry, ability and honor."

The late Rawles M. Moore, the bar resolution stated, "was an honorable, capable and worthy member of the bar... having also served as district attorney for Jackson county." It continued that "in recognition of the outstanding qualifications possessed by him, he was appointed as judge of the district court... where he served well and conscientiously until his untimely death."

Mr. Shepherd was recognized as an "honorable and worthy member of the bar." It noted that "his sudden and unexpected death" was a "great loss."

CONDUCTS WORKSHOP—The Rev. Raymond W. Schaefer, director of Christian education, Oregon American Baptist convention, and chairman of the Oregon Bible committee of the National Council of Churches, is one of the guest leaders for the use and understanding of the Bible conference in Medford today and Friday. On Friday he will conduct a workshop on the use of the Bible with youth. Six workshops are offered each day for interested persons.
