News and Notes From Camp White

By SID HOLLINGSWORTH

There is nothing like being away from home for a while in order to catch up with the news. The big change this time is the spurt in the arts and crafts wing of the domiciliary.

Stan Sears, the new recreational assistant, who came here from Boeing Aircraft in Seattle, has completed his preliminary survey of the "plant" comprising woodworking, ceramics, lapidary, leather craft, weaving and hobbies. The machinery has been "oiled" and the men are picking up interest in their work.

If a problem arises, Sears is around to help in working it out. The new feature is the establishment of a schedule of classes, Monday, woodworking at 9, leatherscraft at 1; Tuesday, lapidary at 9, ceramics at 1; Wednesday, special classes for aphasia members, musicians and writers; also one in knitting conducted by the VFW auxiliary.

Lapidary and ceramics are repeated on Thursday.

Those who have been interested in hobbies and crafts welcome the new setup, and it only remains for interest to be aroused among new members and those who have lost their enthusiasm, to regain it with the present attention given to this phase of the activity program.

Assistant Manager H. Jeffrey has announced a change in the Medford terminal of the Camp White bus, made by the Evergreen company, from the Trailways station to 17 South Front st.

Approximately two-thirds of the members at the domiciliary have received flu shots under the voluntary plan, Dr. Wallace Pianska states. A new vaccine shipment is expected to arrive at this time for continuance of the immunization program.

Dr. Pianska is going to San Francisco for a course in internal medicine at the Letterman general hospital all next week.

Manager E. K. Ricker returned last week from a month's absence during which time he went to Washington, D. C., and return. He was the recipient of the gold pin award for 40 years government service at the volunteers' orientation and indoctrination meeting Wednesday afternoon.

A special visitor at the domiciliary Monday was T. Otis Black, field representative of the VA information service with headquarters in Seattle. Black is a newspaperman.

He was Sunday editor on the Times Herald in Washington during an exciting period of that newspaper's checkered career, under publishing names from Munsey to Patterson.

Herbert Hoover was reported as owner of the Herald early in his political career. Another legend is that Hearst and Munsey had a gentlemen's agreement that kept the former out of the nation's capital. Munsey founded the Washington Times.

Halloween festivities started early at the domiciliary with the VFW auxiliary dance Monday

Grange Notes

Gold Hill Grange

Gold Hill Grange held their Booster night program on Monday, Oct. 14. A good crowd enjoyed the program and displays, following which coffee and cake was served by the HEC ladies in the dining room.

On the program were four musical numbers by the Dell Millards, who also showed slides taken on their vacation in Yellowstone and Idaho.

There were tableaux presented depicting the four seasons of the year—accompanied by music by Betty Malloy and Dorothy Eskew, who also contributed a duet on the program.

Jessie Hayes and Vada Page contributed readings and Danny Estromado sang and played on his guitar.

Roscoe Roberts, state steward, gave a talk on the purposes and achievements of the Grange.

There were displayed fruits and vegetables and fancy work items.

The regular meeting of the Grange was held Thursday, Oct. 17, with a program of games and music following the business meeting. Refreshments were served by Dale and Gail Collins and Grace Bruce.

The HEC ladies and the Grange members are making plans for the annual bazaar and chicken supper to be held in the hall on Saturday, Nov. 2.

A chorus of mixed voices has lately been organized in the Grange and has appeared on two occasions. On Oct. 6 the chorus gave a number at the Gold Hill Methodist church on the occasion of the service honoring the Job's Daughters. On Sunday afternoon, Oct. 13, the chorus sang two numbers at the dedication of the new Upper Applegate Grange.

Hartford, Conn. — Two contractors submitted identical bids on three contracts—the first time such a coincidence has occurred within memory of veteran State Highway Department workers.

night and the regular Halloween carnival arranged for Friday night. This event is one of the few original parties planned for members by the pioneers of the voluntary services.

Lelia Birch, incharge of the VFW auxiliary, brought Dorrie Lynn and her orchestra for the Monday evening dance, including Bill Trent, Randy Hurdahl, Ken Bruce and Caesar Muzzioli.

Grover Gulley has an outstanding military record in the Crazy Snake Indian uprising in 1909, with the Oklahoma National Guard and in the Meuse Argonne offensive with the 42nd division in World War I.

He has a letter from Major Henry A. Bootz, his regimental commander, commending him for his action in being "able to get through the severe shell fire and deliver my orders to Captain Stout."

The incident referred to is a story of war itself. It was at Sedan on Nov. 8, 1918, that Gulley got across to ask Major Bootz what to do since Captain Stout was getting low in ammunition.

"Fix bayonets and charge" was the message Gulley carried to his company commander. The result was the capture of 77 prisoners and eight machine guns. Among the prisoners was the younger brother of Major Bootz, whom he had never seen since coming to the United States from Germany.
