LARGEST APPLE TREE?
Monkton, Vt.—Willis P. Mould, a mining engineer, thinks he has found New England's largest apple tree. While seeking China clay, Mould spotted the tree measuring 45 inches in diameter.

Green Douglas Fir Market Said Stronger

Portland—A stronger market for green Douglas fir boards has been reported by the Crow lumber price index for the first time in months.

Crow said, however, that reduced production rather than a materially increased demand had improved the market. Boards were in the doldrums so long that mills have been producing as few as possible, Crows said.

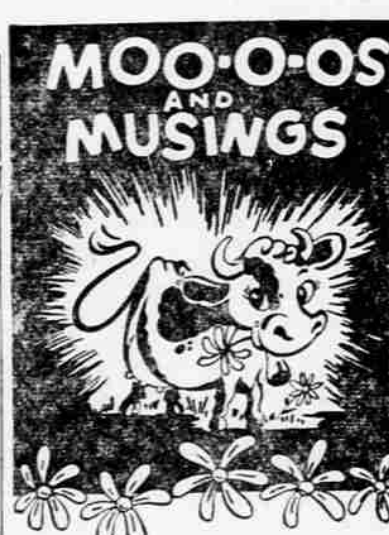

Fir studs also demonstrated more firmness, for the same reason of production cutbacks, according to the market service.

COSTLY CARD

Princeton, Ky.—It was expensive for Mrs. Jack Bardill to mail a birthday card to a friend. As she backed out of a parking spot after mailing the postcard, Mrs. Bardill smashed her auto into the auto—of the friend. So it cost 15 cents for the birthday card—$15 for repairs to the friends' auto.

ELMS ENDANGERED

Portland, Me.—Dutch elm disease was discovered on some of Portland's famous elm trees for the first time during the summer.

Because some Secret Service agents have a southern drawl, it's necessary for the bureau to have two men to decode messages.

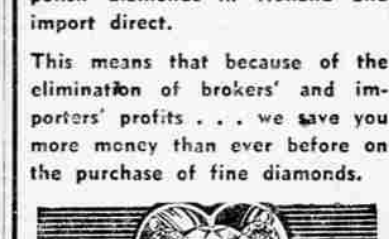

A north decoder and a south decoder.
