Medical Doctor Demanding More Attention for 'Somatopsychics'

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
New York—Swimming against the present-day scientific current, a medical doctor demands more attention for the "somatopsychic" and less for the "psychosomatic."

In case you didn't figure it out instantly, "somatopsychic" is the influence of the body over the mind instead of the other way round, which is "psychosomatic."

popularity among medical doctors of "psychosomatic medicine," implied that nowadays many people are called hysterics who actually have a nervous disorder. Genuine hysterics always want something—that is why they're hysterical, he said, and then he complimented American women on the grounds that there are few genuine hysterics among them.

The official organization of psychosomatic medicine has more than tripled its membership in the last few years. However, Wartenberg did not propose establishing an American Academy of Somatopsychic Medicine. But he said "great medical sins are committed by the designation, 'psychosomatic.'"

Birth of the Bulldozer
It has been told that the bulldozer was first heard of as a steam-powered contraption made for Paul Bunyan for spreading the molasses on his hot cakes. More conservative historians, say Hols Holbrook and Chuck Hoonan, like to play up Ed Stamm and other logging and machinery engineers as the crew that first rigged up the modern bulldozer and put it to work in the woods.

by chains. This was an idea he'd been looking for. Subsequent experiments at CZ camps developed log bundling techniques used today, with steel bands instead of chains.
Forestry Leader
Ed Stamm has been in the forefront of the tree farm program. During his service with Crown Zellerbach, thinning and snag falling became established practices. He was vitally interested in the establishment of the Keep Oregon Green and Keep Washington Green programs. Only last year, he stepped down as chairman of the Keep Oregon Green association.

Christmas Card
Now Ed Stamm has joined the ranks of the "retarded," as Dizzy Dean calls them. But he liked Retarded George L. Drake, who pioneered in tractor yarding for Simpson Logging company, and Retarded Roy Morse of Long-Bell, will be on hand with bells on at the Pacific Logging Congress in Seattle, Oct. 30 through Nov. 1. And he will be heard.
The logging industry does not forget its pioneers. They also remember Ed Stamm as the engineer who introduced smaller and-one-half yards, and smaller-power shovels into logging rail-road construction, reducing costs in one astounding case, from $100,000 to $14,000 per mile.
A more recent improvement fathered by Ed Stamm was log bundling. A Finnish forester visited Stamm and inspected Crown-Z timber lands and logging operations.
Upon his return home, the Finnish woodsman mailed the Stamms a Christmas card made from a pen and ink etching from real life.
The card depicted a scene at a pulp mill in Finland, and Ed noted that logs shown in the etching were bound in bundles
