

Buried Treasure by Pinky Gage

Valuable Stamp Found In Old Research Book

The history of the island of St. Lucia, discovered by Columbus and one of the most fought-over and most beautiful in the world, has always interested me.

And so, when Paul asked me over to see a wealth of source material he had gathered for his projected book on the subject, I promptly went along.

Paul had acquired a couple of boxes of books and papers dealing with the history of the Windward Islands and the West Indies.

In going through the contents of one of the crates I happened to notice a bit of paper that seemed to be a page mark in one of the books. The volume was the second one of Sir C. P. Lucas' well-known work, "Historical Geography in the British Colonies."

The piece of paper was the corner of an envelope, the one with a stamp on it.

It was a deep blue, four-penny item, bearing a portrait of Queen Victoria, left in an oval frame around which appeared the words St. Lucia Postage.

A quick check with Scott's Catalogue gave the value of the find. That stamp was an 1860 issue, as the watermark proved. Its catalogue value was $50.

"Just about what I paid for the books," Paul said.

SHINY BUTTON DATES BACK TO CONFEDERATE ARMY

"The button gleamed so that I thought it must be a fake, but something made me buy it. Is it any good?"

It did look suspiciously new. But as I examined it, explaining that my knowledge on the subject was severely limited, it became quite clear why she had bought it.

The button was brass, and the owner of the salvage shop in which it had been found had polished it with the utmost care.

The design was simple and beautiful. In the center of the convex face was the banner of the South. Two crossed bars containing 13 stars lying in an oblong field.

There was plenty of space around the banner and between it, and the letters which lay just inside the rim. The letters spelled out the words CONFEDERATE ARMY. There were also, below the banner, the initials A. G. D., standing for Adjutant General's Department.

On the reverse, on the flat brass back, supporting a brazed shank, was a shield with the number 21 on it. Above the shield was the name of the manufacturer, "G. & Cie." Below, were the words Paris.

The buy was a good one—she had paid $5 for it. A check with some button-collecting friends brought a quick offer of $35. The value of such buttons seems to range from $20 to $40.

MISSING DATE MAKES BOOK FIRST EDITION

Frank said that his copy of Katherine Mansfield's "Bliss and Other Stories" was a first edition. His brother, Jim, who wanted to buy it, maintained that it was not.

Did I have anything, they wanted to know, that would decide the matter?

I asked to see the book. For a first edition, or even a second, it was in suspiciously good condition. Especially so in consideration of Frank's having bought it in one of the bookstalls along the Left Bank, in Paris.

The book even had a white dust jacket, one with a portrait of the author on it.

I removed the dust jacket for a look at the binding. It was of brick-red cloth, just as my notes said that of a first edition ought to be.

Furthermore, the volume contained 280 pages, was published in London, by Constable and Company Ltd., and it had no date. That was the clincher, for the later editions are dated.

I said I was convinced it was a first edition. Frank thanked me, took the book and opened it to a flyleaf on which were the words, "Fontainebleau, Oct. 24, 1922, K.M."

The handwriting looked like that in a facsimile of the author's handwriting, but I was not graphologist enough to identify it as such.

That didn't matter to Frank, however. He was sure the handwriting was the author's. He knew that she entered the Curjel Institute, at Fontainebleau, near Paris, on Oct. 17, 1922, and did there from tuberculosis on Jan. 8, 1923.

Though Frank had paid only $2.50 for the book, he sold it to his brother for $100.
