Westinghouse Wins Test of '58 Washers!

Monday Night, Nov. 4th "Studio One" Sand Test Proves Again: REVOLVING AGITATOR LAUNDROMAT Washes Cleaner, Rinses Better, Cleans Itself!

In a dramatic test performed before a live studio audience, the Westinghouse Laundromat proved once again that it still holds the world's washing championship. Two cups of dirty sand to represent everyday soil were dumped on towels in the Laundromat Automatic Washer and in three other well-known '58 automatic washers. At the end of their washing cycles not a grain of sand remained in the Laundromat's towels or in the machine either. Towels in the other washers were streaked with sand and there was also sand left in the machines. What's more, the Laundromat did this cleaner job with gallons less water.

HERE'S WHY THE REVOLVING AGITATOR LAUNDROMAT WINS THE SAND TEST!

In the Laundromat, clothes go inside Revolving Agitator that lifts, turns, plunges them 50 times a minute, washes each piece equally well all the time. Lift-Away rinsing drains dirty wash water away from clothes—never back through them.

Center-post machines give clothes bunched around the agitator harsh treatment while those at outer edge of tub get almost no washing. During rinsing, dirty wash water strains back through clothes, redeposits sand, soil, lint and scum on the washed fabrics.
