Acme Hardware Building Planned

A new $60,000 hardware store building at 245 South Central ave., at 10th st. is planned by A. R. Manno, owner of the Acme Hardware store, now located at 3 West Sixth st.

Manno said he is moving his store to provide off-street parking which will be available at the new site. He said he will have five car stalls along the front of the building and eight along the side of the building, in addition to normal parking places in the street.

The building will be of block construction and finished with a stucco exterior. It will be about 52 feet wide and 132 long, or about the same amount of floor space the store has at its Sixth st. location, he said.

Architect H. E. Mackie designed the building which will be "clear-span." Wood beams will be exposed inside of the store, he said.

Construction will start on Wednesday with completion set for late January, Manno said.

Safety Fair Plans Near Completion

Plans for the first southern Oregon Safety fair are almost complete, according to Myron Terpening, Grants Pass, chairman of the Southern Oregon Regional Safety committee.

Committee members met recently to discuss final details of the fair, which will be held in the Medford National Guard Armory Saturday, Nov. 16.

Terpening said the fair would be a complete departure from the traditional safety conference. Public participation is being planned with the hope of stressing to more people the importance of safety, Terpening said.

More than 50 firms and organizations in this area have indicated they will participate.

A safety poster contest conducted in lower elementary grades of Jackson and Josephine county schools will be an added attraction. Cash awards will be presented to the top four winners. The contest closes Nov. 12, when entries should be received at the office of the State Industrial accident commission, 1510 North Riverside ave.

About 65 parents and friends attended. Short talks were given by Diana Gardener, president; Joanne Dickenson, vice president; Phyllis Briggs, secretary; and Margaret Cearley, treasurer.

Makers of Sputniks Feature Higher List

New York — (AP) — Makers of the Sputniks featured a higher stock market today.

This group includes the whole airplane making section plus the companies which produce parts and fuel for the missiles. Gains ranged to more than three points in the aircraft makers where Douglas was the best performer. U.S. Borax, which furnishes the ingredients for rocket fuels, ran up five points. All others of the aircraft section rose one to more than two points.

This rise spilled over to other departments of the market and for a time they rose substantially. Best prices were achieved at noon when the industrial average showed a rise of 3.82 points and the rails 1.14 points. Thereafter realizing reduced gains.

Susanville Youth Dies in Auto Wreck

Eugene —(AP)— A car carrying two 15-year-old boys from Susanville, Calif., crashed off Highway 58 west of the Willamette pass summit Tuesday night while being pursued by state police.

One of the boys was injured fatally and the other was in critical condition. The Lane county coroner's office said that names of the boys were being withheld until their parents were notified.

State police said the car had been reported taken from a used car lot in Susanville Tuesday morning. Officers said they pursued the car to a point about three miles west of the Willamette pass summit and that it failed to negotiate a curve and plunged over a 75-foot embankment.

Greeters Committee Sets Meeting in GP

The Jackson County Chamber of Commerce Greeter's committee will meet with the Grants Pass Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, Nov. 7, at the Redwood hotel in Grants Pass at 9 a.m., according to Bill Abbott and Ken MacDonald, cochairmen of the committee.

The meeting is another in a series through which the Chamber of Commerce is promoting better relations with other cities in this area.

Persons from Medford who wish transportation are requested to meet at the Medford hotel at 8 a.m. Thursday.

Firemen in Need Of Wheeled Toys

City firemen who are repairing and painting broken toys in their annual Christmas project said today that contributions of used wheel toys of all kinds are needed.

The reconditioned toys will be distributed among needy youngsters of the community by Lady Lions at Christmas time.

Toys may be left at the main fire station at Third and Front sts.

BID ACCEPTED

Ashland — Ashland city council accepted a bid from the Columbia Equipment company, Portland, Tuesday for a road grader. The bid accepted, lowest of three submitted, was for $20,897.

Possible Typhoid Case Indicates Need for Stringent Regulation

The recently reported possible typhoid fever case is further indication that more stringent regulation of sanitation and water facilities in Jackson county fringe areas is needed, according to Orie Moore, senior Jackson county sanitarian.

A confirmed typhoid fever case previously occurred in April in one of the Medford fringe areas, he said. This affected a 2-year-old youngster. Such a disease is transmitted by a common carrier, Dr. A. Erin Merkel, Jackson county public health officer, said. This would include sewage and water.

In the recent suspected case, the disease could have been transmitted by the family's water supply since they are using a hand-dug well. Such a well, the sanitarian explained, is not sealed properly and is shallow, allowing surface waters to seep in. This could include effluent from the family's septic tank, it was pointed out.

Metal Shaft

When a well is drilled a metal shaft is sunk to the bed-rock sealing off ground waters, and drilling extends past bed-rock for the source of water, the sanitarian said. Such wells seldom become contaminated, he added.

Another disease transmitted by common carrier is hepatitis, which is a liver infection. Cases have occurred also in fringe areas, public health authorities said.

Since not all soils in Jackson county are suited to use of septic tanks and require sewage connections, health department officials would like to have a stronger voice on what areas are built up.

Insure Connection

Seventy-five per cent of the Medford fringe areas should be annexed before subdivisions are allowed in, health department authorities recommended following a survey made about a year ago. This would insure connections with the city sewer system for those areas not suitable for septic tanks, it was pointed out.

In fact, public health authorities say there are very few areas around Medford where septic tanks would be or are suitable. Much of the soil is heavy clay soil, or of sticky gummy material. Others have a high water table, which tends to float the sewage to the top. Still other soils are not of sufficient depth to act as drainage fields for the septic tank effluent.

One farmer recently suggested that a map of the soil types in Jackson county be prepared so home-owners can decide for themselves the size septic tank needed.

Jackson county does not have broad areas of changing soil types. Ground conditions can change every 100 feet, it was explained, so it would be hard to set regulations according to soil zones.

Percolation Tests

To determine if soil is suitable for septic tank drainage, percolation tests are made. A six-inch hole is dug. Then enough water is poured into this to simulate winter conditions. Dry ground soaks up water faster than wet ground—not giving a fair test. To pass, the average rate of absorption must be one inch an hour or more.

"Adding more tile to the field is not the answer," the senior sanitatarian said. "We have tried that. The effluent constantly pouring out tends to seal the soil. A septic tank can even work properly up to five years, then go bad. The fifth year is actually considered the critical period."

Give Approval

Moore explained that the health department must give its approval before any development can be financed through Federal Housing Administration, G. I. and some private loans.

'More and more private loan companies are realizing that a check by us can prevent a lot of grief," Moore said. "Otherwise, we have no check until it's too late. We do inspect on request."

"People fail to realize that the septic tank merely makes the waste entering it more easily absorbed in the ground. It breaks part of the material down and the soil bacteria in the drainage field break the rest of it down."

"The thought behind tighter regulation is to protect the health of all the populace," the senior sanitarian pointed out. 'After all, why expand to create more problems?"
