The Disappearance of Migraine During Pregnancy

Women want to know why their previously-severe migraines quit entirely during their pregnancy. Actually, no one knows. One can suspect that the change was due to some change in the glandular hormones of the body, perhaps cortisone.

The improvement in cases of migraine may be similar to that which we see sometimes in cases of a stomach ulcer or rheumatoid arthritis or asthma or some chronic skin disease—when the woman gets pregnant. What has puzzled me and made me feel that all the available explanations for the relief of migraine by pregnancy are of little value is the fact that some women with a severe migraine tell me they were completely relieved during one pregnancy and left unhelped or made worse during another pregnancy. For a while I questioned such women to see if it made any difference if the child was a boy or girl, but this apparently wasn't the answer.

Curiously, people with frequent migraines are often cured for six months or so when they get jaundiced. What interested me much was to find a migrainous person who lost her headaches completely for several weeks before the jaundice appeared. This showed that the improvement was due to changes in the liver and not to bile in the blood. Since early days, many people have blamed their migrainous headaches on disease of the liver, but once I asked Dr. Carl Morlock to investigate this at the Mayo Clinic, and he found that not only were people with definite disease of the liver largely immune to migraine but often they lost their headaches the day their liver went bad.

Muttnik Cocktail Made by Bartender

Longview —P— The muttnik cocktail is orbiting around the Gold Room of the Monticello hotel here these days.

Bill Norton, head bartender, concocted it from the following formula:

Half an ounce of vodka.
A dash of vermouth with an atomic type atomizer.
Shake well, pour into a champagne glass and decorate with a cherry properly toothpiked to represent a satellite.

Norton says the power of the drink will swing the cherry satellite around the glass. You can go as high as you want on the muttnik at 90 cents a crack.

Where the Fit is Guaranteed

Salem —P— House Bill 2, increasing basic school funds from $95 to $105 and amended by the Senate Committee on Taxation to insure that the entire increase goes for property tax relief, passed the Senate 27-3.

Recently, a woman with a bad migraine, who got jaundiced following the taking of a tranquilizer, had no relief from her headaches. Apparently, then, the jaundice produced by a tranquilizer is different from one produced by a hepatitis (inflammation of the liver) or by obstructing gallstone.

Many persons think that they can get rid of their headaches by parting with some gallstones, but in my experience, in perhaps 99 per cent of cases, the headaches go on just the same after the removal of the gallbladder.
