

Medford Woman Reports on UNESCO Conference Held in San Francisco

Mrs. H. P. Bosworth Jr., Medford civic leader who was one of 1500 persons invited to attend the sixth national conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization held in San Francisco last week, has returned home. Mrs. Bosworth is a member of the board of Oregon United Nations Association, and was invited to attend the conference because of her work in the state and Medford associations. Asian-American relations was the conference theme.

Mrs. Bosworth reports that the greatest experience in the conference for her was hearing Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, the first and only woman to be elected president of the United Nations General Assembly. A pre-conference luncheon at the St. Francis hotel, given by American Association of University Women and 12 other organizations with international affiliations, honored Madame Pandit, who also gave the opening and closing talks of the conference.

Leader Quoted
Mrs. Bosworth reports that Madame Pandit set the spirit of the conference in general and for women in particular. Among other statements, the UN leader said "It is never possible to change the world in its diversity." She made a plea to American women to "join hands with the women of Asia to find a road on which we can all exist," and added, "Democracy is only worth while if it appreciates the fact that there are many roads along which the democratic way may progress and each country must follow the road according to its own need. If we realize this we shall have no difficulty arriving at a pattern by which we should live."

Madame Pandit urged American women to fully utilize their opportunity to be a force for world peace. She warned that often "she is content to devote herself to smaller things. She has not organized herself for winning peace. It is not enough to work in groups for small purposes. Some groups at least must work to meet the crying needs of the world as a whole."

More international exchange trips for people in all walks of life — "students, housewives, people doing jobs" is a positive way of building world understanding she said. "The only way to understand people is to see them in their own homes — in all their weakness and all their strength. Then we can form correct judgments of the things we hear and the things we read which tend to separate us."

The Medford woman reports that Madame Pandit was very beautiful in her lovely steel blue or white and light blue saris. "She moved in a charmed circle with a great warmth in her smile for our young people who flocked about her when the occasion permitted," Mrs. Bosworth reports.

A cordon of Boy Scouts escorted her to the Indian delegation car on the last day when she made the closing address of the conference.

That the conference was in San Francisco rather than some other city, was fortunate for westerners, she said, as all delegates pay their own expenses.

Several speakers noted that San Francisco was well chosen because generations of trade with the Orient have given San Francisco a special knowledge of and interest in Asian-American relations.

The conference theme was spelled out at length on the programs which were received during registration "Asia and the United States: What the American citizen can do to promote mutual understanding and cooperation."

Delegates Described
"During the reception in the mural room on the first evening, the great number of distinguished Americans from all over the country were as exciting as the Asians," Mrs. Bosworth reports. "The unusual beards, mustaches, heads of handsome hair with only a spanking of a few baldpates gave an impressive and distinguished air to the men coming from all over the United States."

"The women members belonging to the many permanent UNESCO committees were mostly attractive matrons who talked about many of the countries of the world as if they were next door. A favorite was Mrs. Peavey Heffelfinger, who is the UNESCO vice-chairman in U. S. National committee. She has been a delegate from our country since 1953 to the international UNESCO conferences in Paris, Uruguay and India."

Mrs. Bosworth quoted Mrs. Heffelfinger as saying "We have to stop accenting the differences between Asia and the Western world and concentrate on our likenesses."

Another delegate was Mrs. Waldo E. Stephens, a grandmother, who belongs to five UNESCO committees. To her role as wife, mother, grandmother, she adds "community supporter." "In the home those roles give a tremendous opportunity to shape attitudes and to
