

Indianapolis Speedway Man To Give Safety Lecture Here

An educational highway safety program will be brought to Medford high school tomorrow by an Indianapolis speedway driver, it was announced today.

Fred Agabashian, who began his career on California tracks when 17 years old and has raced in the famed Indianapolis speedway classic 11 times, will conduct the lecture-demonstration here. Agabashian will illustrate his talk with a racing film, a flannel-board demonstration and with anecdotes from his own racing experience. He will compare race track situations to highway driving. Upon request, he will give student cars a safety inspection, explaining how to detect functional defects that could lead to traffic accidents.

Lecture teams of internationally known track veterans are in their third year of personally giving teen-agers expert instruction on safety from experiences on the race track and on the highways. The visit here has been arranged by Littrell Parts.

The National Safety Council Public Interest Award of Exceptional Service to Safety was recently presented to the Champion Spark Plug Company of Toledo, Ohio, for developing and maintaining this highway safety program in public schools.

The program was developed to supplement the work of secondary school educators in emphasizing the safe driving theme. The nation's top race drivers—Indianapolis Speedway veterans—were selected in order to gain and hold the attention and respect of students, many of whom are familiar with their names.

Fred Agabashian is one of the world's few drivers who have qualified for membership in the exclusive Champion 100-Mile-an-hour Club, a feat attainable by driving the 500-mile Indianapolis race without relief at an average speed in excess of 100 mph.

More than any motorist on the highway, he points out, professional race drivers know the crucial necessity of driving with a mind constantly alert, with sound judgment at all times, and with a constant spirit of courtesy. They know the importance of having cars in sound mechanical condition. These race drivers travel from 35,000 to 50,000 accident-free miles per year, on public highways, going from race to race and school to school.

Is That So?

For a change let's talk about the most fascinating creature in the world. You, yourself.

Ever look at a stranger across the aisle on a streetcar and say to yourself: "He looks mighty sad to me." Don't bank on it. Researchers at the University of Colorado Medical center have found that two people looking at the face of a third person are likely to interpret the expression differently. The reason is that we tend to read our own emotions into other people. Too often apparently we look into other people's faces and see our own feelings mirrored.

Don't be surprised the next time you take a physical check-up and your doctor says: "Now please weep into this container. We need a tear sample."

According to Dr. Olive F. Erickson of the Stanford Medical school in a recent issue of Coronet, the ratio of the three chemical elements in tears changes with the patient's health and emotions. Tears from an undernourished person differ from one ill from rheumatic fever. Dr. Erickson thinks tear analysis may become a routine diagnostic tool.

Don't Blame Age
If you've slowed down in athletics in middle age, don't blame your age. Blame your sheer laziness. Anyway, that's the word I get from Dr. Laurence E. Morehouse of the University of California, based on the studies of men who continued an active physical life into their 80's.

Royal Family Observes Wedding Anniversary Fighter Squadron Flies to Islands

London — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip observed their 10th wedding anniversary today and enjoyed the luxury of staying home for a change.

The royal couple, usually on a hectic whirl of social, civic or diplomatic functions, reserved today just for themselves and possibly the family and a few friends.

There was no prearranged reception, no official salute or flag flying. Just a day at home in Buckingham palace.

Palace sources said Princess Margaret and the Queen Mother might join the royal couple and Princess Anne for a family dinner party.

Prince Charles, away at Cheam Boarding school, was not brought home for the occasion.

Fighter Squadron For Combat Mission

Clark Air Base, Philippines — A squadron of F100D fighter-bombers arrived here from the United States today and promptly launched a practice combat mission.

The exercise, part of operation "Mobile Zebra," demonstrated to U. S. and Philippine Air Force officials the ability of the Air Force to cross oceans and carry out combat operations immediately.

It was reported that six Air Force "Voodoo" reconnaissance planes, capable of speeds of 1,000 miles an hour, would arrive from the United States Friday to participate in the operation.

The planes which arrived today island-hopped across the Pacific in 16 hours with the aid of aerial refueling. They were hampered by typhoons Kit and Lola.

Immediately after landing they were refueled and armed and sent on a 700-mile practice combat mission over the Philippines.

Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, commander in chief Pacific Air Forces termed the flight a "dramatic reminder" of tactical air force ability to rush air power to the Far East in the event of a "brush fire" war.

Col Arlie J. Blood, commander of the 312th Fighter-bomber Wing from Cannon AFB, New Mexico, led the flight from California.

Two of the planes that started out landed at Midway after receiving minor damage during refueling operations in high winds. They were expected to arrive Thursday.

The RF 101 reconnaissance planes will fly to the Philippines from Shaw AFB in South Carolina. It will be the first time they have left the United States.

They are capable of photographing a 16-mile wide strip 2,400 miles long.

Corvallis Labor Council To Reorganize Tonight

Corvallis — The Corvallis Central Labor Council will exercise county-wide jurisdiction starting tonight when all AFL-CIO unions are merged at the local level. Name of the organization will be changed to the Benton County Labor Council.

A large number of unionists will be brought into the council's jurisdiction with the new charter, according to James Stewart, president of the Corvallis council.

TOO LATE
New Haven, Conn. — An absent-minded former guest of the Tontine mailed his key back, but the postmaster said it was "just a little late." The hotel was razed in 1912 to make room for the present post office.

New Telephone Contract Negotiated in Seattle

Seattle — A new contract affecting about 8,000 workers in Idaho and Washington was negotiated early today between the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company and the Communications Workers of America.

Raises of from $2 to $5 weekly in the plant and accounting divisions and from $2.50 to $3 weekly in the traffic division were agreed upon.

HELP FOR COLOMBIA

Bogota, Colombia — An American group helped establish the first technological research center in this country. The assistance came from the Armour Research Foundation of the Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago.

Fire Alarm Calls Drop In October

The Medford fire department answered 24 fewer calls in October than in September, according to the municipal report for October. The report also shows the rural fire department answered the same number of calls for both months.

Dwelling fire were listed at 17 with the rural department answering six and the city 11. Ten of the dwelling fires were listed as flue fires, four for overheated stoves and three miscellaneous.

Four car fires were reported during the month, one by the rural and three by the city. The city department reported extinguishing one grass fire, two hotel fires, one cafe fire and seven trash fires.

The rural department reported extinguishing four trash fires and one lumber yard fire. The city department also recorded three false alarms, seven gasoline spills flushed and 11 miscellaneous calls.

Fire Marshal Truman Nelson reported making 44 inspections during the month and giving 120 orders and recommendations for removal of hazards. Major cause for the orders was defective wiring, according to the reports.

Twenty businesses and 11 schools were listed as inspected during the month, in which fire prevention week took place.

Memphis, Tenn. — General Sessions Judge Heard Sutton put a 26-year-old man under a peace warrant not to strike his wife "or so much as to raise your hand to stir a wind that might blow her hair."
