Help Yourself to Happiness

This column is one of a series on marriage and family problems which appears weekly in this paper. It presents problems on everyday living and attempts to bring you the most expert opinion in this area. Readers are invited to present their problems. All queries will receive individual attention and should be accompanied by a stamped self-addressed envelope directed to Mary Harris Seifert, M.A., Department of Education, The American Institute of Family Relations, 5287 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles 27, California.

Be More Possessive!

"My husband says I can go out alone and stay as late as I want—and I don't like it," complains Sally. "I'd feel a lot more valuable if Bill were more possessive!"

A man possesses a treasure. He guards it with his life. He refuses to share it. The treasure is his, and he strives to keep it solely his own. Because it is valuable, he is possessive.

It is easy to be indifferent about items of little or no value. When a man is open-minded with a so-called treasure, the world assumes—and often rightly—that the treasure is not valuable. It is not worth being possessive over!

Ultra modern marriage often urges "complete freedom." license to come and go without regard for the partner, liberty to express individuality in any and all ways desired. Tragically, in these marriages which usually end so briefly, "complete freedom" soon means "indifference." Marriage is and should be a growth process of two into one. It involves a treasure, the treasure of unity and of love. It is impossible for two people in love to be indifferent to each other's behavior. When a spouse urges his partner to go out often and stay long, there is apt to be something wrong in the relationship.

He may be attempting to cover up his own behavior, past or present, or he may be building up credit for future patterns of his own. He may be frankly, bored with the little woman and wish to retreat into a man's world of his own. Or he may be indifferent and actually feel that his treasure is no longer valuable—at least, to him.

A man truly in love is a possessive man. A woman happily married is a possessive wife.

It is normal to be possessive over something you love. Notice, I said possessive, not dominating. Domination denotes attempting at complete control, subjugating one will to another. A wisely possessive mate is one who cares about the welfare of another, who treasures his or her partner and wishes to keep the marriage sacred to its unity. This caring is both right and good! Be possessive in valuing the well-being of your mate and the unity of your marriage!

Burns-Hobbs Marriage Rites Held at First Baptist Church

Central Point—A mid-November ceremony at First Baptist church, Medford, wedded Miss Joyce Ann Hobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hobbs, Central Point, to Dennis Melvin Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Burns, also Central Point residents. The Rev. James Neely performed the marriage rites, held November 14 at 8 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Hobbs gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride wore a ballerina length gown of white Chantilly lace and pleated net over taffeta and carried a white orchid encircled with stephanotis on a Bible. Her finger-tip length veil was held by a crown of pearl-trimmed lace.

Miss Anise Hobbs was her sister's honor attendant, and bridesmaids were Miss Janet Hobbs, another sister, and Miss Sharon Lilly. The honor attendant wore a frock of lime green nylon net, Miss Janet Hobbs wore a pale pink taffeta gown and Miss Lilly's frock was of pale yellow taffeta. They wore matching head bands and their bouquets were of white pompon chrysanthemums.

Donna Sullivan and Beverly Sullivan, nieces of the bride, lighted the candles.

Robert King was best man for Mr. Burns and Vern Parent and Jack Burns were ushers.

Arrangements of white chrysanthemums decorated the church. Miss Ruth Brewster played the wedding music, and Miss Sylvia Yell was soloist.

The reception followed in the church parlor. Pink and white chrysanthemums and white candles were arranged on the bride's table. Mrs. Ray Dahl cut the wedding cake and Mrs. Ira Brock poured. Miss Lona Bishop took charge of the guest book.

Mr. Burns and his bride spent their honeymoon in San Francisco, the bride wearing a grey suit with pink accessories for traveling. They are at home at 215½ Haven street, Medford. Both attended Central Point schools.

Honor Fraternity Holds Initiation

Ashland—Thirteen neophytes were initiated into Theta Delta Phi Wednesday evening in the Carpenter conference room in Britt Student center at Southern Oregon college, according to Robert Semon, president of the men's honor fraternity from Medford.

Initiated were Gerald Barnes, Grants Pass; James Ochs, Klamath Falls; Lawrence Mullarkey, Glendale; Earl Weinhold, Talent; Kenneth Brew, Robert DeVoe, William Welch, Floyd Pawlowski, Medford; James Flora, Marion Jack, Dennis Lohman, Montague Robertson, Arthur Schmidt, Ashland.

Following the formal initiation in the Carpenter room, members met at the home of Dr. Wayne W. Wells, professor emeritus, for a ham dinner. Faculty advisers, Dr. Arthur Taylor, Dr. Bill Sampson, Dr. Elliot McCracken, Ted Schopf, and Dr. Wells, hosted the dinner.

Dr. Taylor presented a brief history of Theta Delta Phi. Dr. Elmo Stevenson, as a guest, commended the TDP members for their scholarship and urged them to continue in their present active role on campus. A film shown by Dr. Wells and narrated by Dr. Sampson concluded the evening entertainment.

Don't Stuff Turkey Before Cooking Time Says Food Specialist

Corvallis—When planning the holiday dinner, it's good management to get some things done beforehand, but hold off on stuffing the turkey.

Turkey should not be stuffed until it's ready to go into the oven, according to an Oregon State college home economist. Mix the dry ingredients for the stuffing the day before, add the liquid just before the bird is stuffed.

Appearance of commercially frozen stuffed turkey on the markets has caused some homemakers to mistakenly believe they can freeze stuffed turkeys at home, reports Mrs. Ruth Klippstein, OSC's extension nutritionist. Home freezing conditions, however, cannot duplicate low freezing temperatures that commercial packers use, she says. It takes too long to get the temperature of a stuffed bird low enough to safely inhibit bacterial growth under home conditions. Food poisoning may result.

Mrs. Klippstein also advises cooks not to prepare and freeze dressing a week ahead. Off-flavors develop and the bread gets soggy at zero degrees.

Gardeners Hear Program on Lilies

Delmer Smith spoke on lilies and their culture at the meeting of the Crater Garden club at the home of Mrs. Thomas H. Smith, 135 Bigham drive, Central Point. He illustrated his talk with colored slides. Mrs. Charles Taylor was co-hostess for the meeting.
