'Phantom' Bird On Michigan Farm

New Troy, Mich. — Among the many birds on Charles Tichy's farm is a "phantom," a crossbreed of a golden pheasant and a bantam chicken.

The "phantom" is easy to raise, but since it is a hybrid it will not lay eggs and reproduce, said Tichy, a master cabinet-maker who raises fowl as a hobby.

He said his next attempt at crossbreeding will involve a golden pheasant and a chicken of normal size.

"That probably will work out all right, but there again I doubt if the hybrid will lay eggs," he said.
