

Star Producer Strike Blow for Long-Short Love

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press Correspondent
London — When Sophia Loren, who is five feet eight, married producer Carlo Ponti who is—let's be generous—five feet five, she did not realize she was striking a blow for the long and short of love the world over.

Her fan mail is swollen with letters from small men in love with bigger girls. And from tall girls in love with smaller males.

They all say that the "courageous" example of the Italian film star has emboldened them to "flout the traditions," too.

"I never dreamed that love depended in people's minds so much on height," said the pride of Pozzuoli, Italy, looming over me.

Looming is the right word. Miss Loren was in costume for her new Carl Foreman film, "The Key"—slacks as clinging as ballet tights and a woolen sweater that couldn't have fitted the original sheep more closely.

"You're a nice height," she remarked, scanning my five feet seven. "A trifle too tall, perhaps."

As to how this amber-eyed goddess happened to fall for a smaller man, 21 years older, Miss Loren will only say: "If you love someone you do not notice his height or his looks. I tell all these girls who write me about it that a man is a giant if you love him. He becomes everything wonderful, my Carlo."

Sophia is not only big and spectacular but demonstrative. When Ponti is around she cannot hide her feeling for him. She fusses with his tie, touches his hand and otherwise displays an ownership that is vaguely primitive and, according to other members of the cast of "The Key," somewhat disturbing.

Director Sir Carol Reed is quite happy about this uninhibited emotion. Some of it has rubbed off in the love scenes with William Holden, even though he is a six-footer.

Detroit — Waldorf T. Kirk, 60, secretary of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co., died Wednesday at Providence hospital. He was a member of the Detroit Board of Commerce and the Engineering Society of America.

Jury Expected To Get Beck Case Momentarily

Seattle — A jury of seven men and five women may begin deliberating the grand larceny case of Teamster President Dave Beck late today.

Beck, 63, is accused of embezzling $1,900 of union funds obtained from the sale of a 1952 Cadillac owned by the Western Conference of Teamsters. The state charges he placed the money in his private bank account.

Beck testified Wednesday for 51 minutes, 24 minutes under cross-examination by deputy prosecutor Laurence Regal. During the cross-examination, defense attorney Charles S. Burdell made five futile moves for a mistrial on grounds Regal had gone beyond the scope of direct examination.

Answers Calmly The Teamster head answered questions calmly. However, Burdell limited his questions to Beck's career and authority within the union.

Judge George H. Revelle permitted Regal to question Beck about the identity of the Cadillac and who authorized the sale but efforts by the deputy prosecutor to go farther were stymied.

"Did you authorize the sale of the car?" Regal asked. At this point, Burdell objected, the jury was excused and after a brief argument Revelle upheld Burdell.

A few minutes later Regal asked Beck where the money was deposited. He was permitted to answer despite Burdell's objection.

"The money was deposited, I think, in the B. & B. account," Beck replied.

GH Lions Plan to Sponsor Contest

Gold Hill — The Gold Hill Lion's club will sponsor an outdoor home Christmas lighting contest for residents of the Gold Hill community, according to Neal Smith, president of the club.

The contest is open to residents within the city limits of Gold Hill and the surrounding area including homes near and on Highway 99, north, as far as the Foothills creek bridge; Highway 99, south, to the top of Blackwell hill; Galis creek road; sardine creek rd.; upper River rd.; Sams Valley rd., about three miles; Lampman rd., and on Old Stage rd. just to the Kanes Creek turn off, Smith said.

Smith noted that this is the third year the local Lion's have sponsored an outdoor lighting contest to promote the Christmas spirit through beautifying the area with outdoor lighting decorations.

Residents who wish to participate in the contest this year may enter by mailing a post card to the Gold Hill Lion's club before the deadline, Friday, Dec. 20.

Officials stressed that no home will be judged unless the person has registered by that date. Judging will be based on three requirements, originality, Christmas theme and outside lighting techniques. Judging will be done sometime between Dec. 20 and Dec. 25. The judge's decision will be final.

Winners will receive various cash prizes, which have been donated for the event by Gold Hill stores and businesses. First place winner will receive 40; second place, $25; third place, $15; fourth place, $10; fifth place, $5 and sixth place, $5.

Ashland Man Hurt In Traffic Crash

Ashland — Thomas Francis Rashe, 22, of 1955 Wine st., Ashland, was released from the Ashland General hospital this morning after being treated for facial injuries received in an accident Tuesday night.

State police reported his car was involved in a three-car rear-end collision on Highway 99, one mile south of Talent, Tuesday night.

A logging truck driven by Charles Elmer Cooper, 30, of route 1, box 224, Talent, was making a left turn into a driveway when the Rashe car ran into the rear of the truck. Another car driven by Zola Grace Peters, 775 Forest st., Ashland, struck the rear of the Rashe car, state police said. Officers blamed the poor visibility due to foggy weather. No other injuries were reported and no citations issued.

No damage was reported to the logging truck. Rashe's car was reported damaged beyond repair.
