Sparkle Spelling!

Jane McHenry

To have some extra Christmas fun in wrapping your packages or in making greeting cards, get the following props: one big dress-box lid, a big kitchen salt shaker filled with dime-store sparkle dust in any color you like, and some quick-setting, clear-drying glue in an applicator bottle or one equipped with a brush.

Now wrap your packages and secure with transparent tape—no string. Using the package as a drawing surface, write with the glue "TO PAUL" or whatever name it is. Then holding the package over the box lid, shake glitter dust heavily all over the top; wait a moment or two, then shake off the sparkle. The excess will spill into the box and your message will be on the gift in brilliant letters. Draw a Christmas tree or a wreath or dozens of little stars or snow flakes, and treat them the same way. If you can't make letters that you like in the glue, just paste on alphabet soup letters to spell your words, brush glue on them, and sprinkle on the glitter. This will look really professional! Have fun!
