Nervous Bloaters

Several women want to know what is wrong when they bloat either suddenly, or gradually, during a day, and look as if they were 8 months pregnant. As they say, during the night they usually go flat again without passing a gas. Perhaps a doctor once x-rayed the woman while she was bloated and was surprised to find that there was no excess of gas in her bowel. One woman said that with the bloating, she has so much pain that her doctor sometimes gave her an injection of morphine. When he did, she would suddenly go flat, without the passage of any gas.

I was able to tell these women that, years ago, I described over 90 such cases which I had studied. In every case the bloating was not due to the presence of extra gas in the abdomen; it appeared to be due to the forcing forward of the abdominal contents by muscles on the back of the abdominal wall. I, too, have seen many of these women suddenly go flat after an injection of morphine, or while they were vomiting, or when they were given a little anesthetic. Quite a few of the patients I saw had been operated on, some of them several times, but the surgeon had never found any cause for the bloating. All Highly Nervous

I have found that all of these women were highly nervous; some had an emotional problem that was a bit too much for them, and in some cases, there was no question that the bloating was hysterical in nature. Several of the women got better only when they either married the man or divorced him!

I am sorry to say that, after 30 years or more of studying these women, I don't know how to keep them from bloating, and I don't know of any safe drug that will make them go flat! I won't give morphine, because I know too many of these women who took it and got the habit. I know some of these women who tell me that, if in the evening they have to go out with a beau, they will not eat all day, and thereby they will keep from bloating. An important thing the woman should know is that there is no use in being operated on; also, the bloating "does not turn into anything." Sometimes there is pain with the bloating and sometimes there isn't. There are all degrees of this type of bloating. Fortunately, in thousands of cases, the bloating is not marked enough to cause deformity and embarrassment. Normally, the trouble can be most distressing to a young unmarried woman.

Train-Car Crash Kills Man at Warren

St. Helens, Ore.—Elmer William Roney, 66, was killed when his car struck a switch engine at Church road and U.S. Highway 30 junction in Warren. Walter Ray Grim, Portland, engineer on the engine, said Roney had turned off Highway 30 to cross the railroad tracks onto Old Portland road and drove in front of the engine. Grim said he was going about 20 miles an hour and that he sounded his horn when he saw Roney coming.

Skellon's Hospital Stay Indefinite

Santa Monica, Calif.—Comedian Red Skellon today faced an "indefinite" stay in St. John's hospital where he is hospitalized after an acute "cardiac-asthmatic" attack which nearly cost him his life. Dr. Garth K. Graham, the comic's physician, said Skellon was "progressing very satisfactorily" but that it still was too early to tell how long he must stay in the hospital. "He still is a sick man," the doctor said. Skellon was stricken Monday night at his Bel-Air home and rushed unconscious to the hospital where he was reported to have been near death. The 43-year-old comedian rallied strongly and Wednesday was able to greet the New Year with a midnight phone call to his wife, Georgia, who had gone home to be with the couple's children.
